Sprinkling of Love Washes Bylaw Away

LADYSMITH—Romance isn't dead in city council—probably because the mayor's a woman.

Previously reluctant to lift the sprinkling regulations, council finally relented Friday.

And only because Mayor Kathleen Grouhel told them of a phone call she received.

A male resident called to say his wedding anniversary was coming up soon.

He told the mayor: "I want to take my wife to Victoria to celebrate, and I would like to wash my car."

VOTE FORECAST

Maritimes Sweep Out

Canadian political scientist Peter Regenstreif is on a 10,000-mile coast-to-coast tour aimed at predicting what the Canadian voter is going to do on Nov. 8. Here is his first report.

By PETER REGENSTREIF

HALIFAX—Nova Scotia is running true to form in 1965.

Political affiliations remain relatively stable here with changes in partisan commitment few and far between. The basic party orientation and family tradition of not only this province but of the entire Atlantic region continue to stand in sharp contrast to the wild instability of the rest of the country.

The breakaway from Conservatism in federal politics so evident in 1962 and 1963 is no longer apparent. While there is no question that Diefenbaker's position is lower here than it ever was, there is little inducement for potential defectors to vote for any of the alternatives, either on grounds of leadership or issues. Certainly Pearson's standing with the electorate has not noticeably improved since last election.

There seems to be but one issue now: majority government. It is especially important here because Nova Scotia, to say nothing of the entire region, is a have-not area and, as such, depends heavily on federal largesse. But the dominant consensus is that no one will have a majority after Nov. 8. There is even some doubt as to the eventual winner.

"What I'm afraid of is an impasse—just like it happened last time. It could go one way or the other." This is how a bank-clerk's wife saw it.

And the prime minister's decision not to campaign strenuously during the early weeks has only contributed to the uncertainty. As a Halifax photo-engraver who is voting Liberal again pointed out: "Reading the papers, you'd think Diefenbaker was more popular this year than last time."

A traditional Liberal supporter in Halifax readily admitted bolting party ranks in the last provincial election: "In Nova Scotia, Stanfield is going to get in for as long as he wants. He's another Angus L. Macdonald. People vote for him—not for his party. No one cares about his party. It's him."

It is understandable, then, why the Liberals in Ottawa get virtually no marks for the improved economic climate here which everyone recognizes. The wife of a fire inspector summed up the situation this way: "I don't know how to vote. No matter who is in, we're all doing better than we ever did. You know. We've had Conservatives here and Liberals in Ottawa and nothing's changed. We're all doing well and I can't see them having any effect."

In most other regions, the political coloration of a provincial government would count for little. But here, the evidence is very strong that voters maintain identical partisan commitments in both federal and provincial fields to a markedly greater extent than elsewhere.

The pattern for the province is essentially this: far more 1963 Conservatives claim they are "undecided" this time than any of the 1963 supporters of the other parties. But when they are probed fully as to their probable behavior on Nov. 8, they almost invariably come down to remaining Tory, often using their local candidate as an excuse.

The following exchange with a foreman who works in a Windsor textile plant is indicative of the difficulties confronting the Liberals in their quest for increased representation. He voted Conservative in 1963 and now doesn't know what to do. Why?

He replied: "Because you've got so mixed up you don't know who to vote for. I've always leaned Conservative. There is no question about that, but . . . ."

I asked: "Well, what's stopping you this time?"

He answered: "Diefenbaker. We gave him a good majority and he blew it. He wouldn't let his men tell him anything—the great I Am."

●

I probed further: "Any chance of you voting Liberal?"

He blurted: "Not with all this mess Pearson's got into. Only if he cleans it up. He's a good man himself but not some of the people he's got with him . . . I guess I'll vote for Kennedy (the Tory MP for Colchester-Hants) again. Not for Diefenbaker. Kennedy. I guess we need the American system."

If anything, the electorate seems to be looking for an excuse for voting Conservative because of the absence of a Pearson appeal. As a car dealer who is voting Liberal in spite of his

THERE ISN'T MUSH-ROOM for any more, thinks Jimmy Bailey, 10707 Bayfield. And there isn't mush-room for doubting that the little clump growing through the one-inch deep blacktop at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Norrington, 138 Selkirk, Victoria, is unusual. Provincial botanist Adam Szczawinski said the mushrooms, of the Shaggy Main species, are known to perform weight-lifting feats. (Halkett Photo.)

Police 'Hot on Trail' Of Fraud Ringleaders

QUEBEC (CP)—Justice Minister Claude Wagner says authorities are hot on the trail of ringleaders of a fraudulent bankruptcy and arson operation that has cost the province $1,500,000 a year in lost taxes since 1959 and is blamed for the violent deaths of at least seven persons.

At a press conference Friday, the justice minister said steps have been taken to prevent several panicky leaders of the Montreal underworld from skipping the country.

Police were on their trail and "it is only a question of time before we reach the leaders."

Mr. Wagner said more than four persons — he declined to give an exact number—are being held as important witnesses, and a number of persons have asked for and received police protection in connection with the investigation.

Of the seven persons known to have been murdered to prevent them from testifying about the operations of the ring, four bodies had been recovered and three were being sought. The bodies of the victims had been covered in quicklime, in an apparent attempt to make identification more difficult.

Just how much the hundreds of fraudulent bankruptcies in Quebec have cost investors over the last five years has not been estimated officially.

The most recent indication was a report released by Revenue Minister Eric Kierans in August which said the province was losing as much as $1,500,000 a year in tax revenue through phoney bankruptcies.

WAGNER

The shady operators often increased their rake-off through arson—paying small (from $20 to $500)—for setting fires that netted thousands in insurance and possibly helped to cover discrepancies in inventories — but precise figures for fire losses were similarly lacking.

Investigators say the racketeers either form companies on their own or take over faltering firms by various means.

Using false bank statements or doctored credit ratings, they buy merchandise on credit which they quickly resell to other racketeers, making the goods difficult to trace. Then bankruptcy is declared. Sometimes company buildings are insured. After the goods are secretely removed, the buildings are set afire to increase the harvest.

Mr. Kierans' report said one such group of racketeers had a

Woman's Suspicion Sparks Probes

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Pandora who lifted that lid on the latest sensational fraud and arson cases in Quebec is a 62-year-old business woman, Miss Rachael Smiley.

Miss Smiley had the suspicion she was being defrauded to the tune of $115,000.

Rather than work it out among friends she laid the charge which has placed top-level suspect Moise Darabaner before the courts.

For a year the Quebec government was delving into an investigation of fraudulent bankruptcy which Revenue Minister Eric Kierans estimates cost the provincial government $1.5 million annually over the past six years. The cost to the public was a minimum $50 million which Kierans has said is a conservative figure.

Some place it is as high as $100 million.

At any rate, the report of the investigation, drafted by a revenue chartered accountant, Lucien Mercier, came out last August and the government has been busily trying to get the whole thing rolling before the courts with not unlimited success.

Then along came Miss Smiley.

She wanted provincial approval for a building contract and a chap named Gaston Constantin said he could assist her if she put up $95,000 in cash. With one thing and another the total mounted to $115,000.

Constantin, who has travelled extensively in Canada, was then working for Darabaner, who is a money lender and Quebec city businessman. He was a director of one of Darabaner's companies.

Miss Smiley took the two of them to court on a charge of fraud. The preliminary hearing of that case will continue Oct. 12.

He said he had heard Darabaner and a Mr. Ray Daoust of Montreal discussing a plan to do away with Miss Smiley, an idea in which he did not concur.

At that point all Dara-

RHODESIA CRISIS

We'll Fight Not Crawl, U.K. Warned

LONDON — Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith said today his white-ruled African colony "would rather go out fighting than go out crawling on our hands and knees" in the clash with Britain over independence.

Smith has threatened to declare independence unilaterally —the first colony to do so since 1776. Such a move would face the Commonwealth with a grave crisis and in the words of Prime Minister Harold Wilson "set Africa ablaze."

Talks between Wilson and Smith broke down Friday night after an American warning to Smith the United States would not recognize his all-White government since there are only 220,000 whites in Rhodesia and 3.6 million Negroes.

RETURNING

Smith told a news conference he would return to his capital of Salisbury for a final decision on the declaration of independence. Observers believed he could not continue as prime minister if he does not make the declaration.

Wilson was reported to have made arrangements to call Parliament in emergency session if Smith declares his country's independence from Britain. Britain already has threatened economic sanctions which would cripple Rhodesia.

LIST PRINCIPLES

The British had told Smith Rhodesia must fulfill five principles before Britain could grant independence:

1. Progress toward black African majority must be guaranteed.
2. There would also have to be guarantees against amending the constitution in any way to harm the Africans.
3. The political status of the Africans would have to be upgraded immediately.
4. Progress must be made toward ending racial discrimination.
5. Independence must be acceptable to both Africans and whites in Rhodesia.

Primarily, the British object to the present constitution because they maintain it is being applied in such a way that Africans cannot expect self-government for from 15 to 50 years.

UN SESSION FORECAST AS LONDON TALKS FAIL

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — United Nations Secretary-General U Thant said today the UN Security Council is likely to meet on the situation in Rhodesia now that the London talks have broken down.

"I think perhaps it's up to the U.K. to take the next move, perhaps even in the context of the United Nations," he told reporters who questioned him on the subject as he arrived for work.

Ontario Linked To B.C. Arson

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver newspaper says today three fires in Ontario have been linked with investigations of burn-for-profits rackets in British Columbia.

The Sun says it has also learned that number of "heavy-loss" blazes in the Prince George, B.C., area are being investigated.

Attorney-General Bonner said Friday police and fire officials are investigating 22 fires. One of the investigations was reported to involve $1,000,000 in fire losses.

Mr. Bonner said the investigations were being conducted in co-operation with officials of another province. He declined to name the province, except to say it was not Quebec.

The newspaper says it has learned the alleged rackets were discovered recently. They had been going on for four or five years.

Vancouver city police are involved in the investigation and police and fire officials were reported caught off base by Mr. Bonner's announcement halfway through their investigation.

STUDENTS FAST OVER HOLIDAY

OTTAWA (CP) — Gathered under a sheltered doorway entrance in overcast, drizzly weather, a group of students started a three-day fast today on Parliament Hill.

About 20 university and high school students started the fast through the Thanksgiving weekend to point up the need to fight hunger throughout the world.

The students, who had their last meal before 9 a.m. today, plan to limit themselves to a glass of orange juice and two cups of coffee a day throughout the fast.

"We're not trying to be martyrs," said Don Marcovitch, 18-year-old student at the Ontario Vocational College here and publicity director for the fast staged in connection with the Young World Mobilization Appeal and International Co-operation Year.

But the fast would help the students to realize the meaning of hunger and might help to dispel "the attitude of complacency that surrounds this soft country of ours."

NEXT PAPER ON TUESDAY

Members of the Times staff will observe the Thanksgiving holiday Monday and there will be no editions of the paper. Next regular editions of the Times will apear Tuesday.

Analyst's Comments — Monday Entries

By HAL MALONE

FIRST RACE: They tried to rate Dark Interview last time and it didn't work. Anytime they go to the front under a pull we're impressed and they're switching riders here. Mac Man showed speed Friday but the fractions weren't too impressive. Morro Velko appreciated the slop but a pace duel set it up for him. Magic Eve belongs with these and Loncue, coming back after a layoff, should go better with a race over the track. If Mr. Spree draws in he could be difficult to handle . . . DARK INTERVIEW (Loncue).

SECOND RACE: Six and one half furlongs seems to be just a few steps farther than Kelly Joy likes to go . . . under pressure. But there's no apparent speed to go with her today and if she breaks promptly she could be long gone. Miss Simon is usually around the money and won't find an easier spot. Mantina travelled with slightly better and Axidental Affair is overdue. If Lees Time draws in, Kelly Joy's chances diminish. My Imagination lack early zing but gets Broomfield today and could run a big one . . . MY IMAGINATION (Kelly Joy)).

THIRD RACE: There's a lot of early speed in here but none of it is guaranteed to be sustained. No Soap and Champagne Waltz should bubble along in front for a ways with Totem Miss and Forall Speed in the second flight. Old Boag once would have scuttled these but his spark plugs have been rusty lately. Loodani could wear them down if he draws in and Baby Joe could wake up under the rider change. In a grab-bag . . . FORALL SPEED (Baby Joe).

FOURTH RACE: If he runs back to his last race Guessin' Boy shouldn't leave anybody guessin' where he'll finish. They took him off the pace and it worked like a charm. The conditions are identical here; Mil Easy, Power Tip, Green Again and Alice Kaput are the go-go kids. Rondocal and Big Clint came up with smashers but they need perfectly-timed moves here . . . GUESSIN' BOY (Rondocal).

FIFTH RACE: Even burdened with everything but the kitchen sink Orista could seize the lead here and be obstinate for a long way. Except for Wee Jock who didn't like the mud and has some lick, the contenders take a while to settle before making their move. Irish Jubilee will likely be the chalk; he doesn't get too far back and Shields fits him like a glove. Dark Doll was thwarted last time waiting for a hole that never came. Rough Road and Chow Jung could get on the board. It's interesting to note that Combs who won on both Eltadrive and Chow Jung is staying with the former. She was practically left at the gate, fanned out on the turn, came on the extreme outside and won going away. In a close one . . . ELTADRIVE (Irish Jubilee).

SIXTH RACE: He's running for a new owner and gets a different boy here but Little Boy Fly has been running like Big Boy Roar. At the distance, though, strange things can happen. Candy Capital closed resolutely at shorter and Broomfield might wake him up. Red Nictrum, Fighting Hawk and Chekaj Chekaj all have a good look and if Hamish gets in he could be trouble . . . LITTLE BOY FLY (Candy Capital).

SEVENTH RACE: Zounds! With weight shifts and rider changes, a handicapper's best friend here could be his crystal ball. Indian Spirit, Sefton Park and Crazy Arms should lead them away but we suspect the winner will come from out of the pack. Prince Scorpion and Lord Renraw might be in the second echelon and when it comes to heart they pay off 100 per cent. McGregor Glen has a fair charge. Our serious thinking, however, is between Devonshire Cream and Wild Deuces. The latter adds two pounds and gets a different boy but in the lane he frightens people . . . and horses. Devonshire Cream drops five pounds and is at her peak. If Combs finds room that might be it. In a close shave . . . DEVONSHIRE CREAM (Wild Deuces).

EIGHTH RACE: With all the early (but fainthearted) lick here, the race seems made to order for the chargers, Bay Toe and Tzatzkalla. Lady Flag won handily but the time was nothing to write home about. Bull Strength might hold on better but we'd like him more if there was less contention early . . . BAY TOE (Tzatzkalla).

CHATHAM, England (AP) — The British navy today provided a full-dress parade and an admiral's salute to honor Mary, a 20-year-old carthorse. The 400 officers and men of the naval barracks were saying farewell to Mary, who has pulled a water-cart around the establishment for the last 12 years. She will go to a home for old animals expectation of another minority government put it: "If the Conservatives would change their leader, so many people would switch Conservative that you'd think they were always Conservative."

This does not mean that changes in seats are not in the offing. But these changes are more the result of local situations than of regional or province-wide trends. All are potential Conservative losses.

The likeliest Liberal gain is the late George Nowlan's bailiwick of Digby-Annapolis-Kings. Nowlan's son, Patrick, came all the way from Vancouver to claim the Conservative nomination over local David Waterbury after Waterbury had been campaigning since the beginning of the year on this party's behalf. John Shaffner is once again the Liberal candidate and he came within 416 votes of the winner in 1963.

Purely on grounds that he is a local and young Nowlan is an outsider, Shaffner will probably have a margin more than twice that by which he was defeated last time.

* * *

A Kentville furniture store salesman who is switching to Shaffner this time expressed the prevailing mood: "A lot of people don't like the idea of this young Nowlan coming in here after being away so long. What does he know about conditions here?"

The other possible Liberal gain from the Conservatives is Colchester-Hants. However, this is a much tougher seat to take than Digby-Annapolis-Kings in spite of the mere 292 votes separating 1963 winner Cyril Kennedy and Liberal Hector Hill.

Kennedy may fail to keep it Tory because the locals feel neglected by his provincial government's policies.

As a Windsor taxi-driver complained: "Stanfield does too much for Halifax and Cape Breton and not enough for the Valley. People around here don't like that."

Finally, its new candidate, Ed Johnston, will probably make the difference for the NDP in Cape Breton South which was a CCF stronghold for 1940 until 1957 when Conservative Donald MacInnis captured it. The New Democrats won in 1962 but lost again to MacInnis by 980 votes the following spring.

The remainder of the ridings are more or less firmly in the camp of their present holders.

* * *

As for the rest of the Atlantic region, it is clear that there is no sweep under way. The Tories stand to lose only one more of the four they now hold in New Brunswick, the riding of York-Sunbury.

Prince Edward Island is in a state of flux with only the constituency of Kings relatively safe. It is now Liberal.

Newfoundland is still Liberal territory with Premier Joseph Smallwood in command. There is every indication there that all seven of the province's seats will remain with the government.

Memorial Service Held for Surveyor

A memorial service was held in Oak Bay United Church Friday evening for land surveyor Philip M. Monckton, a resident of Victoria for 50 years.

Mr. Monckton died in Vancouver Monday, after a brief illness, at the age of 73.

Born at Wynberg, Cape Colony, South Africa, he came to British Columbia with his parents in 1908. His father, a civil engineer, was associated with design and construction of the early irrigation system at Kelowna.

Mr. Monckton was commissioned as a B.C. land surveyor in 1913 and served in the First World War with the Royal Welsh Fusiliers.

Afterwards, he was engaged on a number of exploratory surveys in northwestern British Columbia.

In the Second World War, he was commissioned by the RCAF and performed engineering and survey work on the west coast and later in Quebec province.

From 1944 until his retirement in 1957, he carried out extensive surveys in B.C. under the Land Act. One of these was a reconnaissance survey of possible routes for a highway from Hazelton northwest to the Yukon.

Mr. Monckton is survived by the widow, Lavender, at 2199 Lafayette Avenue, Victoria; a son, Cmdr. George R. Monckton, RCN, in Hamilton, Ont.; a daughter, Mrs. Thomas B. Wilson, in Vancouver, and seven grandchildren.

An elder son, John Philip, was killed in action with the RCAF Bomber Command in 1943.

baner was charged with was fraud, but as testimony rolled on a new charge was added — conspiring along with Gaston Cadrin to set fire to La Tour, a Quebec City sports centre. He has further been charged with conspiracy to commit arson in a house fire.

One of the alleged conspirators, as revealed in testimony in the preliminary hearing of the house fire charge last Wednesday, was Redempteur Faucher.

But Faucher was gunned down in the lonely woods near St. Gilles, Que., south of Quebec City last May. His body, decomposed by caustic lime poisoning, was found and identified several days ago.

OTHER BODIES

Three other bodies have now been found in a similar state and the search continues for yet another three.

Justice officials say there were potential valuable Crown witnesses, other than Faucher, among the murdered.

Darabaner, who was taken into court in handcuffs, will stand trial along with another man for the house fire at the Quebec Assizes next month.

Mr. Wagner said Friday that authorities are not surprised at the "violent reaction" of the underworld as the law draws closer to the ringleaders.

"I hope there will be as few deaths as possible," he said. "But on the other hand we must not forget that these people are playing for big stakes. It is them or us."

The justice minister also disclosed in an interview that there have been threats on the lives of two Crown prosecutors involved in the investigation—Anatole Corriveau, chief Crown prosecutor, and Roch Lefrancois, deputy Crown prosecutor.

Both men and their families were "well protected" under heavy police guard.

WAS THE LATEST

Meanwhile, a justice department spokesman said there are indications that Paul Chandonnet, a Sherbrooke businessman whose body was found in the Sherbrooke area Thursday, was the most recent victim in the underworld purge of potential witnesses.

Chandonnet, 38, who owned a Sherbrooke snack bar, was reported missing Sept. 25 and was believed killed two days later. His quicklime-covered body was found in a wooded area near the village of Ham-Sud, 30 miles northeast of Sherbrooke, and a revolver was found buried under a few inches of soil nearby.

The justice department spokesman said Chandonnet played an active role in the arson-bankruptcy ring and was to have been a witness in cases currently before the courts.

Mr. Wagner has said the number of potential witnesses killed by the underworld could be 12 or more.

N.Y. Papers To Return

NEW YORK (AP) — Newsrooms stirred with activity today as New York Sunday newspapers—except for The Times—prepared to resume publication after a 24-day strike-shutdown.

The Times awaits AFL-CIO New York Newspaper Guild ratification of a tentative contract agreement before returning and the Guild's membership meeting is not until Sunday.

Nevertheless, The Times urged newspapers which had suspended publication because of its Guild strike to go back into print, without awaiting the ratification meeting.

DIEFENBAKER

'My Lips Would Be Sealed'

SELKIRK, Man. (CP) — Conservative Leader Diefenbaker said today if he accepted Justice Minister Cardin's invitation to examine department files concerning bankruptcy cases "my lips would be sealed."

Mr. Diefenbaker told reporters that as a member of the Privy Council he would be bound by secrecy.

He said if all the files were made available to him and he would be free to discuss them he would be glad to examine them when he returns to Ottawa. But he said he would be shown only the files which the government wanted to show.

"Mr. Pearson insists there is no such report and now Mr. Cardin is offering to show it to me — the report that doesn't exist."

Mr. Cardin said Thursday night in Ottawa there's nothing in the bankruptcy documents in his files to indicate any offences were committed by members of Parliament or other public servants. He said three particular files mentioned by Erik Nielsen, Conservative member for Yukon in the last Parliament, are "routine financial reports."

Mr. Diefenbaker commented on the bankruptcy cases as he spent the morning visiting Selkirk and Beausejour, where he walked the main streets shaking hands and talking to passersby.

Don't Steal From Lawyers!

Kenneth Harold Keith, 21, of HMCS Naden, received some sound advice after he pleaded guilty today in city court to theft of a garden hose

"I don't do this all the time," he told Magistrate J. A. Byers.

"If you do go in for this again," the magistrate replied, "take my advice. Don't steal from lawyers . . . or policemen."

Keith was fined $25 and ordered to pay damages of $6.95, value of the hose.

Que. Minister Tries To Squash Rumors

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN
Times Ottawa Bureau

QUEBEC CITY—Quebec Justice Minister Claude Wagner has received no report indicating that any federal members of Parliament, past or present, are involved in the provincial crackdown on a large-scale bankruptcy racket.

During the week there have been repeated reports, mainly from Montreal that names of seven or eight members from both the Liberal and Conservative parties have come up in fraud squad investigations.

Friday the rumor mill churned all the way to Quebec City with widespread stories of suitcases full to the brim with political implications being stashed away somewhere in Montreal.

Wagner's office, which is trying to put a stop to wild speculation on anything other than verified fact, has eased its flow of information to a trickle.

But Wagner's executive assistant Marcel Vleminck said the justice minister "has not in his possession any report suggesting a link-up with members of parliament."

MIGHT EXIST

"I don't deny that it might exist, but the minister hasn't got it," he said. "We know nothing about such links."

When questioned about reports Thursday that a Montreal fraud squad investigator said that seven or eight former members of parliament have turned up near the core of the bankruptcy racket, he replied:

"We have had no report at all from Montreal."

"Anything can happen in this case," said Vleminck. "But if there is such a link up we haven't heard about it and it is a pretty big 'if'."

He also said that as far as the minsiter knew, the lime pit murders have involved only arson cases—and not fraudulent bankruptcy.

JURISDICTION

The federal government has some jurisdiction in the field of bankruptcy but arson is a provincial responsibility.

As the whole seamy investigation provided new steam for protagonists in the federal election campaign, Quebec City was more concerned with the even seamier task of digging for further remnants of gangland murders.

A seventh name has been added to the list of known murders, but justice officials would not divulge where the new search was taking place. The name of the new victim is also not known.

DIEF CHARGES

Gov't Forgot Wheat Lands

WINNIPEG (CP)—Armed with his "policies for the people," Conservative Leader Diefenbaker today began his whistle-stopping trek across the Prairies to tell farmers that under Liberalism, Western Canada is "a 'forgotten orphan."

The 70-year-old former prime minister warned Friday night that no one knows what's in store for western farmers if the Liberal government should come out of the Nov. 8 general election with a majority.

"The risk is too great," he told his audience at Steinbach, a town about 30 miles south-east of here. He reminded farmers that it was his Conservative government that brought prosperity to the West after the "forgotten years" of Liberal rule.

"Are we going to vote for a government that cuts the price of wheat?" he asked.

'Does anyone know what price the Russians are paying for wheat? You're going to find out after the election."

It was one of the quietest audiences Mr. Diefenbaker has faced so far in the campaign. With the auditorium's capacity in doubt, organizers variously estimated the crowd at between 650 and 900.

Getting into the heart of Canada's agriculture area, Mr. Diefenbaker attacked the government's alleged neglect of the West, and he said wheat farmers had been placed in the hands of a millionaire and a Bay Street baron.

"Harry Hays says the trouble with farmers is they don't work." The agriculture minister's policy is for farmers to have six cows, two sons and a strong wife.

"These are the immortal words of Harry Hays."

Earlier in the day, Mr. Diefenbaker went main - streeting and speaking through a series of nearby towns.

"They lost farmers $130,000,000 by cutting the price of wheat," he told some 200 people in the Beausejour town hall. "And they say it's good for you."

'Vote Liberal and you'll be saying, 'thank you Mr. Pearson, thank you Mr. Sharp for cutting the price of wheat'."

He said at Steinbach the government should consider extending its credit terms for wheat sales to Communist China.

Silo Fall Kills 4

ELVERSON, Pa. (UPI) — A man and three children were killed Friday when a silo loaded with about 50 tons of corn collapsed on them at a farm near here.

QUEBEC WINGS ALL PROBLEMS

VANCOUVER (CP)—B.C. Attorney-General Robert Bonner predicted Friday that Quebec's Creditistes will rejoin Robert Thompson's Social Credit party shortly after the Nov. 8 election.

He told a joint Vancouver-Quadra and Vancouver-South nominating convention that every federal party in the country is having difficulty with its Quebec wing.

"The New Democratic Party doesn't have one, the Tories had one but can't find it, and the Liberals are trying to hide theirs," he said.

Liberal Group Held Fan Club For Dupuis

MONTREAL (CP)—A spokesman for the National Liberal Federation said Friday an organization which calls itself the provisional Liberal committee in St. Jean-Iberville-Napierville constituency is "of no consequence."

The president of the constituency organization, Robert Rainville, said Thursday the committee "has no intention of backing a candidate parachuted in on us by Prime Minister Pearson in an undemocratic manner."

He was commenting on an announcement Wednesday on behalf of Mr. Pearson that Jean Desmarais, a former mayor of St. Johns, Que., will be the official Liberal candidate in the constituency formerly represented in the Commons by Yvon Dupuis.

Mr. Dupuis, who resigned his post as a minister without portfolio in Mr. Pearson's cabinet in January at the prime minister's request, is awaiting trial on charges of influence-peddling in connection with an unsuccessful application for a provincial racetrack franchise.

The Liberal party spokesman said of the St. Jean-Iberville-Napierville provisional committee: "Our view of this organization is that it is nothing more than a fan club created by Yvon Dupuis himself. It is of no consequence."

The Liberal party spokesman said virtually all federal Liberal party constituency organizations are still provisional since the break-up of the Liberal party in Quebec into provincial and federal groups.

Mr. Dupuis said Thursday he will stand as a Liberal anyway. He described Mr. Desmarais as "a stranger in the party here."

Thompson Slams Charge of Bribe

VULCAN, Alta. (CP) — National Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson branded "ridiculous" Friday a statement that he had been bribed by Prime Minister Pearson.

He was commenting on a statement made by W. A. McLennan, president of the B.C. Progressive Conservative party, who said Mr. Thompson was sent to Ethiopia to ensure Mr. Pearson had Social Credit support in the Commons.

Mr. Pearson "bribed Bob Thompson by sending him to Ethiopia on a more or less six-week holiday to ensure he could count on the Socred votes in Parliament," Mr. McLennan said Thursday in Vancouver.

The prime minister "did not need my support," Mr. Thompson said in an interview, "because of the gross absenteeism of Progressive Conservatives in the last Parliament.'

MEMBER, THE ORDER OF THE GOLDEN RULE

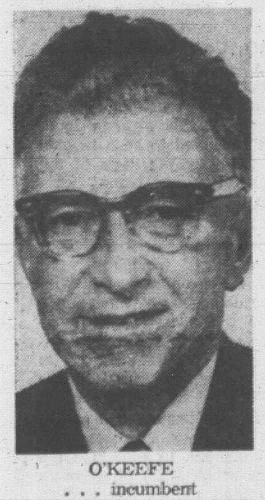
PRIME MINISTER PREDICTS:

Trouble Spot in Newfoundland

By DAVE BUTLER

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson said at a dinner here last month that St. John's East is the most difficult in Canada for the Liberals to win.

They won it in 1963—by 857 votes—after 10 years of Progressive Conservative representation in Ottawa, six of them consecutive. That year electors of the mixed urban and rural constituency sent Liberal Joseph O'Keefe to Ottawa. Defeated was the six-year Conservative veteran James McGrath, who got 13,911 votes to Mr. O'Keefe's 14,768 in a two-party contest.



O'KEEFE

BROWNE
. . . challenger

The Liberals' victory margin in St. John's East was the smallest in the party's sweep of Newfoundland's seven ridings. The prime minister termed Mr. O'Keefe a giant killer.

Mr. O'Keefe in his re-election bid Nov. 8 again faces formidable opposition. His Progressive Conservative opponent is W. J. Browne, 68, former solicitor - general in the Diefenbaker government and a member since 1962 of the rovincial legislature for St. John's East Extern. There's a third candidate this time, Social Crediter Norman King, but the main fight is expected to be between Mr. O'Keefe and Mr. Browne.

A lawyer, Mr. Brown was born in St. John's—as was Mr. O'Keefe — and was elected to Parliament for St. John's West in 1949 in the first general election after Newfoundland entered Confederation. He was defeated in 1953 but re-elected in 1956 and, in all, served 10 years at Ottawa before his defeat in 1962. He was a cabinet minister for five years.

HAD NO EXPERIENCE

Mr. O'Keefe, 56, had no experience in politics before the 1963 campaign. Until then, he was executive manager of the St. John's Tourist Bureau.

St. John's East is composed of four provincial ridings and parts of three others. The provincial districts of Harbor Main and Bell Island are wholly within the federal district of St. John's East and are held by Liberals.

The districts of St. John's East Extern and St. John's East are also completely within federal St. John's East and are held, respectively, by Mr. Browne and James Greene, provincial PC leader.

St. John's Centre, held by a Conservative, and St. John's North and St. John's West, both held by Liberals, are partly in the federal district.

Political observers, who forecast another close decision in the 1965 election feel that one thing that can hurt Mr. Browne's chances is the possibility of the electorate resenting his change of constituencies after being defeated in neighboring St. John's West in 1962.

The Conservatives counter with the fact that Mr. Browne was chosen at a nominating convention. Mr. O'Keefe simply was named as the Liberal candidate in an announcement by Liberal Premier Joseph Smallwood who has been premier since Newfoundland entered Confederation.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1965

When That Day Dawns

IN THIS PEACEFUL LAND OF plenty where only our own maladjustments mar the scene, Canadians, fortunate beyond most peoples in the world, can celebrate their personal thanksgiving with sincerity and wholeheartedness.

There are still pockets of poverty in this country, but even our poverty is rich in comparison with conditions in some areas of the earth where mere day-to-day survival is the limit of hope.

We can be thankful that we escape such tragedy; we should be thankful that out of our bounty we can help those who are less fortunate. We can be thankful that our country is at peace: we should be thankful that we can raise our voices in freedom to espouse peace elsewhere. We can be thankful that our prospects for the future are bright and promising; we should be thankful that it is largely within our power to shape our own fortunes and guide our destiny as a nation.

Yet despite our enviable situation, Canadians have shown hesitancy, apathy, uncertainty in Canadian affairs. We worry about a division of the nation, about economic control by foreigners, about the cost of maintaining our national entity, about the means of maintaining the maximum comfort with the minimum effort.

Our great national thanksgiving will be elicited when we have overcome these weaknesses, when we have demonstrated our faith in Canada and our willingness to do more than reap the rewards of Canadian citizenship, when we have not only seen the vision that spurred the founders of Canada but have striven to make it a reality.

Then to our individual thanksgiving we shall be able to add true national thanksgiving. For we shall truly have become a nation.

The Dropout Teacher

These are the people who go through training to be teachers and either leave the profession after a year or so, or, in some cases, don't teach at all.

The problem is familiar throughout Canada — and is being faced with qualified success in British Columbia.

In this province about 12 per cent of the teachers are lost each year, though many of them return to school posts later. Some leave to marry, some find work of a type more appealing to them, and some take a recess from teaching to become students again and improve their qualifications.

One suggestion to meet the problem has been advanced in the United States — a more careful screening of candidates for teacher training schools. In this respect, British Columbia has an advantage over many American states. Here we require university entrance graduation as a minimum requirement. Entry into some American teacher training schools is less exacting.

Moreover, in British Columbia potential teachers now must undertake three years of work in the faculty of education at a university as a minimum for a permanent certificate. For a degree, four or five years are required.

Hence, educators point out, when the student has invested at least three years in training, the likelihood of abandoning the investment by permanently leaving the teaching ranks is reduced.

At the same time the province shares a difficulty common throughout most of the continent. It lacks sufficient adequately qualified teachers to fill all teaching vacancies. The B.C. School Trustees' Association in Vancouver this week heard the claim that 2.9 per cent of teachers working in the province were granted letters of permission because they did not qualify for certificates. The percentage is challenged in some quarters, where it is considered too high.

At all events, British Columbia, having stepped up the academic requirements for teachers in the last decade, now finds that its gamble, made when there was a scarcity, is paying off. The gap between the number of teachers and the number of jobs is no wider than it was, and more of our teachers have higher certification than 10 years ago. The supply of teachers is stabilized and the products of their efforts have presumably improved.

The latter point is supported by the statement made in a lecture here this week by Dr. M. W. Steinberg, of the University of British Columbia. It is the consensus of interested professors there, he says, that the student coming from high school in the last five or six years is better prepared for university work than ever before.

The Great Divider

MR. DIEFENBAKER ON THE election campaign trail shows the same lack of awareness of the nation's real needs that he revealed when he had a short term in office.

He has chosen to make underworld crimes in the province of Quebec a major issue in the Canada-wide election contest. At this stage his stock in trade consists of rumor and innuendo, of scary references to the tentacles of the underworld creeping over Parliament Hill, and such colorful platform material.

But Mr. Diefenbaker has little else — and indeed needs little else, for he has only to keep such rumors going for another month without fact or proof and they will have served his purpose.

Meanwhile, what are Mr. Diefenbaker's policies on the country's economic position, on our national deficits, on our approach to education, welfare and international affairs? So far, Mr. Diefenbaker appears ready to solve all problems by promising large sums of money for any purposes required—the larger the better, for here again he needs only to keep the mill grinding for four weeks more.

The voters of Canada know what Mr. Diefenbaker did in office when he finally made it in 1957; they also remember the multitude of things he did not do, and the sorry state in which he left the country when he was defeated six years later.

Mr. Diefenbaker has accused Mr. Pearson of dividing the country. Such a charge comes from an expert. Mr. Diefenbaker, in the short period of power at his disposal, divided Canada from Britain, divided Canada from the United States, divided Canada itself, and ended up by dividing his own party.

Do we want a repeat run of that program?

May We Give Thanks for This?

THE CANADIAN HIGHWAY Safety Council has made the grim forecast that 57 deaths will occur in the nation's traffic over the long weekend starting today.

Paradoxically, the pessimism stems in part from the cheerful prediction that relatively warm weather throughout the country will draw more motorists to the highways.

By the law of averages, more drivers will increase the possibility of more accidents, some of them fatal. The outlook is made no less dismal through the knowledge that many of the mishaps need not occur—would not occur, in fact, if people in control of cars exercised the caution required in the relatively simple practice of driving.

It will be highly encouraging if results disclose a miscalculation on the part of the highway safety authorities because more people drive carefully and fewer are killed or hurt. This, surely, is not too much to hope for—an opportunity, if it is seized, to give thanks for travelling humanity's increased courtesy and thoughtfulness on the road.

'Pride Disrupts Brotherhood'

Lippmann

ON Monday when the Pope came to the United Nations we witnessed an event of which we shall be able to appreciate the significance only as time goes on. His journey and his address were a blinding illumination in which the immediate conequences will only gradually become visible. "We are the bearer," said the Pope, "of a message for all mankind," and, he went on to say, "like a messenger who, after a long journey, finally succeeds in delivering the letter which has been entrusted to him, so we appreciate the good fortune of this moment, however brief, which fulfills a desire nourished in the heart for nearly 20 centuries."

The letter which the Pope was at last able to deliver said that the church, now at peace with all mankind, was able to ratify the purposes of the United Nations, which is a human institution aspiring to be universal. That has never been possible before.

Never before has there existed an institution in which there is a place for all the nations of the world. The moral ratification of the United Nations, which the Pope declared on Monday, could be given by him only after the Roman church had reached a religious peace—only after the religious wars and persecutions of the past had been brought to an end.

Pope John Inspiration

This historic act of ratification marks the progress made under the inspiration of Pope John XXIII in the rejuvenation of the church. The modernizing church has brought itself into the main stream of human affairs. It has done this by committing itself to the religious reconciliation of mankind and also by making itself no longer the support of reaction and privilege but "the voice of the poor, the disinherited, the suffering, of those who hunger and thirst for justice, for the dignity of life, for freedom, for well being and progress."

This is the Johannine church, of which Pope Paul is a faithful and convincing apostle, and there is now new hope in the world because this enormous transformation has gone so far.

We must realize that the moral ratification of the United Nations by the Catholic Church does not mean and cannot mean the moral ratification of the policies and the behavior of all the member states, even of our own.

The Pope spoke with great gentleness. But what he said so gently cut to the quick. No one who heard him attentively, or will read him now, can fail to realize that he was speaking a different language from that which is current and conventional. In fact, the Pope, who is without pride and has nothing to fear, was thinking what is unthinkable for so many, and he was saying it out loud.

His conception of the secular world is quite different from the conception which underlies public discussion—be it in Peking or in Washington. The crucial difference is that in the Pope's address the paramount issue is not the cold war of hostile ideologists. Although religion in general and the Roman church in particular have been treated as the chief enemies of the Communists, the Pope said that the pursuit of peace transcends all other duties and that the paramount crusade of mankind is the crusade against war and for peace.

Different Values

This is a different set of values from that accepted as righteous in the public life of the warring nations. The Pope was, of course, intending to make this known, and he reached the climax of his message, so it seemed to me, when he declared that the root of evil in this angry, hostile and quarrelling world "is pride, no matter how legitimate it may seem to be, which provokes tension and struggles for prestige, for predominance, colonialism, egoism; that is, pride disrupts brotherhood."

We shall have heard the Pope's message when we have taken those words to heart.

Leger Plea

I am pleased to read that Cardinal Leger urges the Vatican to condemn all wars. I think it is about time the churches—all so-called Christian churches—began to see that wars are absolutely un-Christian. The first Christians did not go to war. Only after Christianity was adopted as state religion did Christians become warriors. Of course, only men went to war. But now, we have wars so "refined" everybody and everything alive is involved.

I was disappointed to read that the Pope in New York said defensive weapons are necessary. What are "defensive" weapons?

Native Son

It is noteworthy that Mr. James Gorst has been nominated to represent the Liberal party for Esquimalt-Saanich constituency.

Can it be that the little Liberals have found their place at last? Mr. Gorst was raised and educated in Saanich. He has been a hard worker for his party for many years and brings with him a wealth of political knowledge. It remains to be seen what support the people offer him. His loyalty, integrity and interest in his fellow man are well known. Many people of all parties will be watching the progress of Mr. Gorst. Maybe Esquimalt-Saanich voters may see fit to elect their own son as their representative.—R. B. Faulks, 1195 Trans-Canada Highway.

No Illicit Operations

As a taxi operator and one of the spokesmen for the companies requesting a rate increase, I wish to state that the Blue Bird Cabs and the C. & C. Taxi Co. have never considered any form of illicit or illegal type of operation in order to obtain more revenue. The facts are simple economics and we feel that the city will appreciate, without threats, our current problems.

It is obvious that in order to conduct a legitimate business one most operate on a basis of revenue and costs, and that every person involved in a legitimate service is entitled to a living wage.

It is common knowledge that taxi drivers have lower wages and poorer conditions than most other types of employment. In Victoria we have a high caliber of personnel who drive taxis not because it's all they are capable of but because they enjoy residing and working in Victoria rather than working in another area.

I have been in the taxi business in Victoria for 14 years and find my co-workers to be as generous, honest and trustworthy as any other business with which I have been associated. Most have families and the same responsibilities as employees of any other business.

As a taxi driver in Victoria I would ask our patrons to support us in this difficult situation.—R. A. McLean, 1001-A Douglas.

Re your article on Sir Arthur Currie of October 6. QUANTITY AND QUALITY

Crisis in the Universities

(Excerpts From the Bladen Report On Financing Higher Education In Canada)

WE believe that there is general recognition of the importance of developing to the full the intellectual resources of our people. . . If our future wealth depends on education so that expenditure on education is properly looked on as investment likely to yield a high economic return, our growing wealth makes it easier to accept the cost of education without reference to that economic return. We must not fall into the totalitarian way of thinking of people merely as instruments, to be developed as the community needs them; rather, we must think of the community as an instrument for developing the talents of individuals.

* * *

The new crisis involved quantity and quality. Would the universities be given adequate support so that they could accept the flood of anxious matriculants without sacrificing quality?. . . The crisis is still with us. The magnitude of the expenditures required has scarcely yet been understood. It is perhaps the most useful function of this report to develop recognition of the order of magnitude involved.

* * *

There have been strong influences reinforcing (Canadians') desire for further education: the excitement of the explosion of knowledge; the growing recognition of the high financial return which could be expected, on the average, from the investment in such education; the fears of unemployment in an age of automation, and the belief that the incidence of unemployment varies, and will continue to vary, in inverse proportion to the number of years of schooling; the recognition that social mobility is most effectively promoted by wider participation in education, so that the ambitious and socially mobile seek it. . . : All these factors have combined to double the chance of a Canadian child going to university. In 1950 about one in twelve primary school pupils reached the first year of university; by 1964 the proportion had risen to about one in six.

In 1957, 1959, 1961 and 1963 Dr. Sheffield revised his estimates (of university attendance) upwards, as year after year the actual enrolment exceeded his more recent projection. All the earlier estimates proved too low through an underestimation of the speed at which participation rates would increase. In fact, this speed has been increasing at a growing rate. His latest projection, that of 1963, covering the period up to 1976-77 indicates a total enrolment by 1970-71 of 340,000 and by 1975-76 of 460,000.

We state our belief that expansion on the scale of the Sheffield projection is a proper objective. The people demand it; our economic growth requires it; our governments must take the action necessary to implement it.

* * *

No subject produced a greater range of opinion than the roles of fees and student aid in university finance. All agreed that academic ability should be the sole factor in determining admission to universities. The financial resources of the student should not be a limiting factor. There was, however, wide variance on how to achieve this objective.

* * *

There was unanimity that no increase in fees should be made without simultaneously increasing student aid so that the higher fees do not exclude any qualified student. The general consensus was that no qualified student should be prevented by lack of means from embarking on and completing his education and that there must be a greater commitment from public funds to achieve this objective.

* * *

Our argument for the retention of fees is based on the belief that governments can be persuaded to provide adequate aid, and that they will accept our recommendation that no general increase in fees should be made without simultaneous increase in student aid.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

NOW that the beautiful fall colors are at their best a drive along the West Saanich Road to Land's End is well worth one's time. As the road bends and twists there is a new view at every turn.

The tinted Dogwoods mingle with the many yellow shades of the maples and stand out impressively. The conifers, with their change of needles, blend in with a pleasing effect.

As you get to Ardmore there are a number of white elms, some of which tower to a height of seventy feet. They show a different tint of yellow from our native trees. Growing with them are a number of Acacias, and as the tiny leaflets fall they look like a shower of pale gold.

The orderly farm fields, some with grain stubble and others with the green pastures or the orderly rows of the berry crops, all fit into a pleasing picture.

There are many gardens along the road, each with its bright colors making one want to stop and enjoy it.

By Hagan Creek the sleek black Angus cattle in the fields make one hope that this rural scene will never be destroyed.

There are several places where one can stop and look across the inlet and see the misty blue hills. In the far-off background, the mountains with their snowcaps make this a scenic drive to remember.

'Re-Doing' Australia

By TONY EMERY

WHETHER you find teen-agers amusing or exasperating probably depends on the closeness of your relationship to them, and the number you have to deal with. Few families these days are without a representative of this awkward age, and I must say that the ones I see most of are tolerable, when they are not driving their aged parents straight up the wall. They say things from time to time that are worth treasuring, against those moments when you wonder why they weren't put into a bucket at birth.

Emery

The other day, for instance, a teenager I know pointed out one of her schoolfellows. "There," she said scornfully, "is an excellent example of an elementary school child who has not adjusted to the junior secondary environment. Carrying her lunch to school in a lunchkit!"

Teen-Age Depth

I had a visit from a painter friend who lives in Vancouver. He has a teenage daughter who came home at the beginning of term in raptures over a new friend. "What is so special about this Lucy you're raving about?" he inquired. "Well, it's the things she talks about," he was told. "Her conversation is all about slingback shoes and patent-leather handbags and Beatle records. I mean it's all on a much higher level . . ."

In spite of the fact that teen-agers are supposed to be insecure, uncertain of their footing in the adult world they are on the eve of entering, I must say that the ones I know best can come out with fairly downright and absolute statements, revealing very little of this basic uncertainty. "We've done Australia," is one that I called to mind the other day when I picked up a book by Jock Marshall and Russell Drysdale. I "did" Australia, too, when I was their age at school: I drew maps featuring the strange rhinoceros horn of Cape York; I memorized lists of imports and exports, population figures, and the prevailing winds, with many (to me) unintelligible and totally uninteresting facts about the geology of the continent.

I am sure that my teachers in geography were excellent people, highly qualified and worthy in every way of the greatest respect. It is sad to record that of all the subjects I ever studied, geography stands out in my recollection as the most imperial bore of them all. And yet I love to travel, and am in the highest degree interested in the variety of people and climates and products that I come across in my wanderings.

Effective Presentation

It's all a matter of the way the information is presented, I suppose. I found this book by Marshall and Drysdale fascinating—it's called "Journey Among Men" incidentally—because at the end of it you have a very clear picture of what those great bare patches on the map of Australia are like. Marshall is a zoologist who has taught at Yale and Oxford since leaving his native Sydney, and Drysdale is one of Australia's best-known painters, who has evoked the strange beauty of the "outback" in a number of works now to be found in the Tate gallery and the Metropolitan Museum, as well as in his own country.

The book records the experiences of Drysdale and his son as they drive a Land-Rover from Sydney north-west through Queensland and across the Northern Territory to Hall's Creek and Broome in Western Australia. They drive south to Kalgoorlie to join up with Marshall's specimen-collecting expedition, which has described a big circle north from Perth to the Montebello Islands before swinging down again towards Kalgoorlie.

Drysdale's and Marshall's accounts are pieced together in alternate chapters, and the descriptive writing of both is of a high standard. Whether they are talking about the fauna and flora, the rugged landscape, or even the more rugged individuals they meet, they are never less than fascinating.

Art Work

In addition to the word-pictures, Drysdale contributes 50 pencil and pen-and-wash drawings which are a great enhancement to the text, and altogether the book is well worth the five dollars that Messrs. Hodder and Stoughton charge for it in England. You don't have to be an expert zoologist to savor the wonderfully evocative descriptions of the birds and beasts of this strange land, any more than you need to be a trained anthropologist to enjoy the saga of the lady known as "Nopants Nora," who spread what happiness she might among the crews of the pearl-fishing luggers in Broome.

The book is full of what reviewers feel compelled these days to call "insights" into the character of Australians in the remoter tracts of almost uninhabitable land, and into the rapidly-increasing aboriginal population and its problems. The authors' observations are as frank and pungent as we have come to expect from this sardonic and courageous people; the book crackles with vitality from beginning to end. And the names . . . It's worth a fin of anyone's money just to read names like Booloogoolooroo.

Two Controversial Remarks In Pope's Address to the UN

By PETER MURRAY
Times Wire News Editor

In the third of the tradition-breaking travels abroad, Pope Paul VI made a brief but historic journey to North America.

It was the first time a reigning pope has come to this continent.

The Pope's main purpose was to deliver an appeal for peace before the General Assembly of the United Nations, but during his 14-hour stay in New York an estimated 3,800,000 Americans saw him.

Millions more watched on television in Canada and the U.S.

His central message was warmly received by almost all nations except China, but two remarks in his address created controversy both outside and within the church.

"You must strive to multiply bread so that is suffices for the tables of mankind, and not rather favor an artificial control of birth, which would be irrational . . ." the Pope said.

He was simply restating Roman Catholic Church doctrine on the subject, but there have been signs the church was moving toward moderation of its firm moral viewpoint.

At the Ecumenical Council in the Vatican, Bishop Francis Simon of India, one of the countries most vitally concerned, said after the Pope's address that the population explosion "is an undeniable fact."

"Hence, there arises a grave obligation to arrest this growth," Bishop Simon said. The church's ban on artificial birth control is "open to doubt," he said.

Final decision on any doctrinal change will be made by the Pope, guided by a report now being prepared by an international commission which includes doctors, economists and psychologists.

Some interpreted the Pope's words at the UN as an indication he has not yet made up his mind and was limiting himself to a general exhortation.

●

In an eloquent plea against war he urged the nations to shed their weapons, but added:

"As long as man remains that weak, changeable and even wicked being that he often shows himself to be, defensive arms will, unfortunately, be necessary."

Since few nations will admit that their armed might is anything but defensive, this seemed to accept the present nuclear stalemate, the "balance of terror."

A number of cardinals, including Paul-Emile Leger of Montreal, urged the council to issue a condemnation of total war, with no distinction of means.

●

Talks in London between Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia and British government officials broke up without agreement on Smith's demand for immediate independence.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson held firm to his position that self-government must come slowly so as to ensure the rights of Rhodesia's Negro majority.

Smith scoffed at concern expressed by other Commonwealth members.

"Frankly we are not interested in what they say," he said.

President Jules Nyerere of neighboring Tanzania declared his country would quit the Commonwealth if Britain yielded to Smith's demands.

●

It was the first such rupture in the history of the Commonwealth. Pakistan hasn't even taken the same action against India, despite their continuing undeclared war.

COMMUNIST FRONTIERS CHALLENGED

By WILLIAM R. FRYE
Times UN Correspondent

UNITED NATIONS — The frontiers of world communism were being challenged, and quite possibly being rolled back, on two important fronts this past week.

After two decades of free-world effort in the opposite direction — attempting to contain the outward thrust of communism — this was welcome news.

The first such front is Indonesia. As of this writing, the outcome there is not visible. But one thing is clear: anti-Communists are at last wholly out in the open, free to act—and they are giving an excellent account of themselves.

In Cuba, too, though the picture similarly is murky, old-line Communists seem to be under challenge. Ernesto "Che" Guevara, Peking's man, is out of the country for good—and it would be difficult to believe he left wholly of his own accord.

Top Echelons

More significant, perhaps, Fidel Castro has reshuffled the top echelons of power in Havana and manoeuvred some of the principal Moscow-brand Communists into the background. He has followed by wiping away, or promising to wipe away, all barriers to emigration from the island.

Both convulsions, the one in Southeast Asia and the one in Latin America, contain many question marks and contradictions. It is too soon to draw final conclusions in either case

Peking was almost plaintive this past week as it publicly "hoped" President Sukarno would not alter Indonesia's leftist alignment. Every sign is that Indonesia will do exactly that.

Sukarno previously sought to use the Communists to counterbalance his right-wing opponents and thus help him retain his grip on power. Now, it appears he will be unable to exercise power unless the right wing lets him — and his policy much change accordingly.

Why the Communists attempted a coup in Indonesia when they were steadily gaining influence is the big mystery of the affair.

Some observers believe it was pure greed for power; but a more likely explanation, from all the known facts, is that they were uncertain of the future — uncertain of what would happen when President Sukarno died, fearful of a right-wing coup, uneasy about possible intervention by the CIA or its British equivalent.

Power Grab

For whatever reason, they did grab for total power and, as of now, have failed. They killed six top anti-Communist generals, but missed General Abdul Haris Nasution, the firmly anti-Communist defence minister, and Nasution rallied the army against them.

Cuba's future is more difficult to read. The elimination of old-line Communists from positions of major influence, if that is indeed what is happening, will not take Castro very far to the right.

Marxism is an integral part of his own mechanism of power. Some of the Fidelista Communists are more extreme than the Moscow ones Castro's utter economic dependence on the Soviet Union has not changed.

Nor is there any evidence of strain in Soviet-Cuban relations. On the contrary, Castro broke with Red China in November, 1964, and this break, symbolized by the apparent exile of Guevara, has warmed his ties with Moscow.

Nevertheless, there is an encouraging aura about the downgrading of Moscow's key man in Havana and the elimination of the man who, more than all others, preached and practised a Peking-type export of revolution.

Governments Not Beaten They Defeat Themselves

By PETER NEWMAN

WINNIPEG—The most remarkable fact about this curious election is that John Diefenbaker, not the prime minister of Canada is occupying the centre of the political stage. His vigorous campaigning has re-established the man from Prince Albert in the public mind as the man to beat, while Lester Pearson remains the substantial but grey alternative, rousing little interest and less passion.

Newman

Interestingly enough, this state of affairs seems to suit both the candidates. Their strategies are working out exactly as planned.

His study of past elections must have persuaded Lester Pearson that the lack of any clear-cut, major national issues tends to favor the party in power, so he deliberately started his campaign in a low-key mood, and has kept it there. The Liberal tactics are intended to institutionalize Pearson as "the Prime Minister," and it's important that he not make any moves or rash promises which might give people something to vote against.

Ignores Defence

John Diefenbaker, on the other hand, has grasped the initiative by acting as if he'd never lost it. He has chosen to ignore any defence of his own record in office, and instead is fighting this election on one issue, and one alone: the idea that the attitude which really separates the Conservatives from the Liberals is their standard of intergrity in politics.

This is a valid and vital issue, but in exploiting it Diefenbaker is being betrayed by the same capacity for immoderation that helped to defeat him in the 1963 campaign. At that time, when congressional testimony by Robert McNamara, the U.S. secretary of defence, hinted that Bomarcs were being maintained in Canada to draw the fire of Russian missiles, Diefenbaker accused the Liberals (who were supporting arming of the Bomarcs) of "planning to make a burnt sacrifice out of Canada."

A similar verbal escalation is now transforming the character of Diefenbaker's attacks on the political ethics of the Liberals. At his Winnipeg rally, the Conservative leader painted criminal activity as constituting the dominant philosophy of the Pearson government, "that galaxy of wrongdoers . . . those cobwebs of the Mafia . . corruption of public officials has become a way of life."

By pegging his hopes on this type of attack, Diefenbaker seems to be subscribing to a theory in Canadian elections, governments are defeated, not elected. This is a highly questionable assumption.

A government in office has never yet been unseated solely because it had engendered a cumulative disaffection in the country at large, even if its record included the shame of scandal: A party in power can be displaced only if the disillusionment of the voters is bolstered by a widespread conviction that the opposition can form a strong and desirable alternative administration.

The Liberals were able to retain office for 22 years before 1957, not because they were loved by the electoriate, but because until John Diefenbaker came along, the Conservative party appeared incapable of forming a competent ministry, with effective, enlightened policies.

It's in this area of articulating believeable, alternate policies that John Diefenbaker is having the most trouble in the current campaign. He sounds (and obviously is) sincere when, forehead corded with excitement, he castigates the Liberals for their sins.

But whenever he pauses to spell out his own policies, the performance sags and becomes unconvincing, as if he were pitting his will against his impulse by stooping to mention such mundane matters. The end result is that Conservative policies, no matter how well they've been thought out by Diefenbaker's advisers, sound like a vague bundle of unco-ordinated gropings, with no central purpose or clear system of priorities.

No political faith can shape the complex society of contemporary Canada, unless it reconciles itself to the tedious study of policy details. This is the one step that John Diefenbaker—despite his obvious dominion of the election campaign—has been unwilling or unable to take.

THE GALLUP POLL

Mike Rates Highest In Voter Approval

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

As the election campaign goes into high gear, more people are satisfied with the leadership of Prime Minister Lester Pearson than are dissatisfied. But a large proportion of the voters —nearly 3 in 10—are undecided on the subject.

About 4 in 10 (41%) of the people express satisfaction with Mr. Pearson as prime minister and just more than 3 in 10 (33%) say they are dissatisfied with his leadership.

In a comparable survey, made just prior to the 1963 election, the situation was reversed for the then prime minister, John Diefenbaker. Also with a minority government at that time, more people (42%) disapproved of Mr. Diefenbaker as prime minister than approved (34%).

Greatest approval for Mr. Pearson today comes from Ontario voters—47%. And greatest disapproval for Mr. Diefenbaker in 1963 also came from Ontario—47%.

The question: "Are you satisfied or dissatisfied with Mr. Pearson as prime minister?"

Satisfied	34%	41%
Dissatisfied	42	33
No opinion	24	26
	100%	100%

Regionally, least enamored with Mr. Pearson as prime minister of Canada are western voters. The Maritimes and Quebec see pretty much alike on this subject.

	Total East	Quebec	Ontario	West
Satisfied	40%	42%	47%	34%
Dissatisfied	25	22	33	43

Diefenbaker Has Avoided The National Unity Issue

By GERALD WARING

OTTAWA—Beyond saying that he stands for "single Canadianism," Conservative leader John Diefenbaker has pretty well avoided this election's important issue of national unity. Perhaps for his political purposes he doesn't have to be more explicit.

Waring

"Single Canadianism" is sufficiently woolly and imprecise to serve as a rallying cry for those Canadians who reject Quebec's postulate that French-Canadians from one of two nations within a common nation-state.

On the other hand, one cannot logically fault Mr. Diefenbaker for feeling strongly that regardless of racial origin—whether German, as he is; or English, as Prime Minister Pearson is, or French, as Premier Lesage is—the common denominator is primary and paramount Canadianism.

Looked at this way, his plea that all Canadians should pursue his goal of single Canadianism is very similar to the views that Prime Minister St. Laurent voiced a decade ago. Mr. St. Laurent also argued for a single Canadianism, only he called it "unhyphenated Canadianism."

* * *

Mr. St. Laurent was, however, addressing himself to a problem of a different political era. He considered a Canadianism qualified by prefix denoting racial origin to be the sign of second class citizenship. This point can still be argued, but it is no loger pertinent to the political problem of national unity posed by the new consensus of Quebec thought.

This consensus was well expressed by Premier Lesage in his recent western tour, when he pictured the nation-state of Canada comprising two nations horizontally structured in the same territory from sea to sea.

The federal Liberals and the New Democrats accept this goal of Quebec "moderates" as just, reasonable and desirable. They admit that all of Canada should be bilingual and bicultural. They have pledged themselves to work towards achievement of this goal. The Conservatives have not.

* * *

Mr. Diefenbaker is, of course, playing partisan politics with his "single Canadianism." He has written off Quebec as hopeless for his party in this election. He has produced an imprecise plank which in theory is unassailable, but which in fact denies French-Canadian nationhood. Under a Tory government French-Canadians would be Canadians like all others; Quebec would be a province like all others, and the status of the French and English languages as set forth in the constitution would continue unchanged.

Mr. Diefenbaker would be on sound legal ground. But the art of democratic government is more than administration of the law. It is the reflection of the aspirations, desires and will of the people governed, plus, as Mackenzie King used to say, "the art of the possible."

It is not possible to ignore the coalescence of opinion of a third of the population as to its proper place in Confederation without destroying all prospect for real national unity.

China Building Up Sinkiang

By G. S. WARREN

HONG KONG—China is putting on a show of telling the world about Sinkiang, its most remote and mysterious province.

Sinkiang, one-sixth the size of China itself, has a southwest border running along disputed Kashmir. The northwestern boundary marks a major share of China's frontier with the Soviet Union, where there have been border troubles. The population of Sinkiang is primarily Muslim, an important factor in Peking's dealings with the Afro-Asian countries which have Islamic people.

None of these points is being mentioned in the current Sinkiang publicity campaign. Peking's long descriptive articles concentrate only on saying that everything is better now in Sinkiang than ever before.

The Chinese have said this before, but at other, less guarded times, they have admitted rebellion by the various Muslim groups in Sinkiang.

One of the many points of friction with the Sinkiang Muslims, who comprise and estimated 85 per cent of the population of the area is the resettlement of Chinese in the region. Hundreds of thousands of Chinese, mostly youths just out of school, have been sent to Sinkiang from the Eastern Provinces to help in development work.

Not only are the racially different Muslims unhappy about this; many of the Chinese are as well. The few refugees who have managed to leave the migration groups tell of hardships and physical conflicts with the natives.

The hardships of the Chinese students can well be imagined. To be uprooted from their homes in the east to go to the wilds of the Gobi Desert must be quite a shock. At the same time, Peking's desire to make better use of its sparsely settled border lands can be easily understood. In addition to considerable mineral wealth, Sinkiang has vast tracts suitable for reclamation and farming.

Sinkiang's position in the Kashmir dispute is also of major concern to Peking. While both Pakistan and India claim all of Kashmir, the Communist Chinese claim that a part of Kashmir belongs to Sinkiang. Furthermore, the Communists in the fifties quietly moved into the area they claim and are still in possession of it, despite Indian efforts to get them out.

In supporting Pakistan in the quarrel with India, Peking also has played on the religious aspect of the conflict. But when a government which is athiest by policy uses religion as a weapon, there is always a danger that it might backfire.

Stott

This troubles me because in a disillusioning half century I have retained faith in education and the benefits it can confer on society. Not that I believe that education has the answers for all our problems, but it has seemed to me that the cultivated mind should be able to approach them with greater ability to assess the difficulties and map a more intelligent campaign toward their solution.

I still think that's a reasonable point of view and I still subscribe to it.

I also believe that the state should make it possible for the individual to acquire as much education as he can assimilate with profit to himself and his community or nation. That does not mean, of course, that I believe any education is "free." It isn't. Somebody pays for it—and for the most part that somebody is the taxpayer, wearing the hat of the municipal property owner, the provincial resident or the national income tax contributor.

In the last few years the heads of universities have made an excellent case for the benefits a country or a region gains from the accomplishments of those who have received higher education. If we want to be anything but a nation of hewers of wood and drawers of water, we have to educate our young population to a point where it can properly exploit our resources and develop them to a degree which enriches all the people. If we neglect the potentialities of the human resource, we're the foolish characters in the parable of the talents.

I agree with this argument also. I march right along with the crusaders in this cause.

But I begin to stumble when certain pragmatic considerations enter the issue and when the young begin to show the natural developments we must expect from the aquisitive and material society we have bequeathed to them.

We have been telling the young for some time to get as much education as they can because there isn't much call now for the untrained or unskilled workman and there will be less in future. The better jobs, we say, go to those with higher education.

It is a fact that a graduate, particularly if he has a Ph.D in science, can begin a professional career that gives him take-home pay in his first year equivalent to that earned by his father after a quarter or half century in the job the old man has held.

So, in effect, the time and money a university student puts into getting his degree is a direct investment in higher earning power when he has completed his studies. The question in my mind is this: Should he make a contribution in cash, through fees, to that investment? Or should he expect the taxpayer, who isn't going to increase his own earning power through higher education, to relieve him of that obligation?

Personally, few people can be in a more uncertain position to pursue that argument than I am. Of our three children, one advanced to extended graduate study very largely at the expense of the state, or public-minded organizations which sponsor students. Another has gone into the graduate field with minimal demands on our bank account and a third, after a year at college, received four years' training in nursing not only at no cost to us, but with the provision of pocket-money, indirectly from the taxpayers, while she was in training.

Any taxes I have to pay to help educate other parents' young people will be merely repayment of some of the money other people spent to educate and train my own. Few have been as well subsidized as I have been in the education of daughters and a son.

In other words, I'm a fine one to talk.

I happen to subscribe to the scholarship idea—the granting of rewards for good performance in a competitive field. I also happen to believe that no bright mind should be allowed to wither because financial nourishment is not available to sustain it through higher education.

At the same time, it seems to me that the bright mind should appreciate the very practical and material returns it may expect from an investment in higher education or training and, through an adequate system of equitable borrowing, be prepared to chip in its share to the investment. Just possibly, that very generous sponsor, the taxpayer whose kids may be among the 70-odd per cent not going to college, would appreciate the gesture.

70,000 Visit Giant B.C. Dam

More than 70,000 tourists have visited Portage Mountain Dam on the Peace River since the 1965 construction season began last April.

The giant dam, largest in the Western world, has become one of British Columbia's major tourist attractions. B.C. Hydro officials at the site report the record number of visitors is double that of 1964, and exceeds by 40 per cent the 50,000 visitors that had been expected.

Hydro's resident mantger at the project, William O. Findlay, reports licence plates from as far away as Nova Scotia, Florida and California, although most come from B.C.

ANCIENT CITY OF MACHU PICCHU

BY WHOM? WHY?

Built for Eternity

By ERIC G. WOODROW

LIMA, Peru (CP) — A few months ago newspapers here carried such headlines as "Machu Picchu may soon disappear," "Heavy rains may cause landslide" and "Millions needed to save Machu Picchu."

The alarmists underrated the men who built Machu Picchu, an ancient city set on an almost inaccessible peak in Peru's mountainous interior. The rainy season passed money was made available to preserve the ghost city and tourists still flock there.

The ruins of Machu Picchu have been a major tourist attraction since they were discovered half a century ago. No one knows who built the city, when or for what purpose. But the remains are preserved well enough to show that it was planned by superb architects and built by first-class masons.

Two major questions have never been answered. Why did these forgotten builders choose an almost inaccessible mountain peak surrounded on three sides by a 4,000-foot gorge, to establish their masterpiece? A second question intriguing the visitor is whether there are other ancient cities still undiscovered on top of neighboring peaks.

RUGGED TRIP PAYS OFF

The Spanish conquistadores never discoverd Machu Picchu. Centuries later, in 1911, when the American explorer-archeologist, Hiram Bingham, found the ruins of the city, he and his party had to endure great hardship and risks getting to it. But Bingham realized he had unearthed an archeological marvel. A year later he returned in charge of a fully-equipped expedition under the auspices of Yale University.

Although more than 50 years have elapsed since the modern discovery of Machu Picchu, every tourist who goes there today shares the thrill of finding something totally unexpected and mysterious.

You fly from Lima about 350 miles east to Cuzo, the ancient Inca capital. The flight starts at 6 a.m. and the small plane goes up to 25,000 feet for the two-hour flight. You suck an oxygen tube most of the way.

Next morning, also at 6 o'clock, you board an autocarril—a bus mounted on railcar wheels and operated by gasoline. The sturdy little vehicle follows a railway line up and down sheer precipices as it crosses several ranges of mountains into the interior. By noon it lands the traveller at the foot of Machu Picchu peak, which towers thousands of feet above.

SUPERB SETTING

"The city is up there," the guide says, pointing to a craglike peak half a mile above where the bus stopped.

A bus takes you up the new multi-million-dollar highway named after Hiram Bingham. It's a one-way route—up after the rail bus arrives; down before it leaves. You negotiate 20 or so hairpin bends and from the top the autocarril and station look like toys.

The first view of Machu Picchu is a thrill. Even without the ruins, the sublime natural beauty of the city's setting has few equals. At sunrise a ring of huge towering peaks is veiled in mist and glistening clouds. As the sun rises the clouds disappear and the roofless and lifeless buildings of the crumbled city become illuminated like a Hollywood set with the spotlights switched on.

There are hundreds of buildings and thousands of steps. The solar temple at the top is by far the most spectacular. It makes the visitor realize why the Incas were sun worshippers.

BUILT FOR ETERNITY

The buildings used by the nobles are much more elaborately built than the homes of the humble. The masonry work is admirable. The forgotten builders, who lived in a stone age civilization, built for eternity. They had no steel chisels to work with yet every stone is perfectly cut. The stones fit into place in such a way that the blade of a knife will not slip between them.

The whole area is terraced. Little plots of earth, one above the other like steps, were used to grow food for the inhabitants. Experts calculate that 5,000 people could live there indefinitely without food from outside. Water was piped down from the peaks. An invading army would have found it virtually impossible to capture Machu Picchu.

Archeologists have unearthed hundreds of human skeletons on the site, 80 per cent women. This has given rise to a theory that the chosen woman of the sun, a sacred Inca sisterhood of beautiful virgins, had been taken to Machu Picchu for safety when the Spaniards came.

But whatever the human story of Machu Picchu may be, the fact that it still exists after 400 years of oblivion is the greatest tribute that could be paid to the craftsmen who built it and lived in it.

Plan Now For Holiday In the Sun

SAN FRANCISCO — If you have been dreaming of a cruise to the South Seas or Hawaii this Christmas, now's the time to start making the dream come true.

The 21,000-ton liners Mariposa and Monterey will cruise to the South Seas, New Zealand and Australia, and the 26,000-ton Lurline will sail on a special 15-day "four-island" cruise to Hawaii during the Christmas-New Year period.

The Mariposa will sail from San Francisco Dec. 2 and from Los Angeles Dec. 3 to start her annual 42-day Christmas cruise. The Monterey will sail from San Francisco Dec. 22 and from Los Angeles Dec. 23 for the same route—to Bora Bora, Tahiti, Rarotonga, New Zealand, Australia, New Caledonia, Fiji, Niuafo'ou (Tin Can Island), Samoa and Hawaii.

The Lurline will sail from San Francisco Dec. 20 and from Los Angeles Dec. 21 for Honolulu, Nawiliwili, Lahaina and Hilo. The Lurline carries 760 passengers, all in first class.

Passengers on the Lurline will celebrate Christmas at sea the day before the ship arrives in Honolulu; as will passengers on the Monterey, which will be en route to Bora Bora. The Mariposa will be in Sydney, Australia, on Christmas Day.

LOOKING AROUND AT ART

By ROBIN SKELTON

Quality, Variety in Current Print Show

There are no less than four exhibitions currently on show in the Victoria Art Gallery and all are, in quite different ways, fascinating.

Skelton

From the point of view of artistic quality, however, it is the show of prints from the permanent collection that most deserves your attention. The works on show have all been acquired during the last 12 months and their quality and variety testify to the catholicity and vitality of the gallery's purchasing policy.

It is, of course, difficult for a small and underfinanced gallery such as ours to purchase important large paintings by great painters. The most it can hope to do is to represent them by minor works of real excellence.

* * *

This has been achieved in the case of Picasso by the acquisition of an etching, Smiling Youth, which admirably reveals the master's superb draughtsmanship and extraordinary rhythmic vitality.

* * *

At first glance, as so often the case with Picasso's line or wash drawings, the composition appears to be casual, and the product of an idle moment.

Another look, however, reveals that while easily flowing lines and the almost whimsical treatment suggest spontaneity, the forms are related to each other with absolute sureness.

It is interesting to compare this work with the several Durers also on show.

His work appears less spontaneous, being dramatic rather than lyrical, but the figures are always beautifully balanced upon the knife-edge between philosophical stylization and naturalistic reportage, so that his moralities are never abstract, nor his human observation without intellectual depth.

If we turn from Durer to the small Rembrandts in the show, we turn to an entirely different mode of perception.

Here there are calculated approximations, deftly organized blurrings of form and outline, which give his scenes an air of trembling upon the edge of change. The shadows seem always ready to slide back or steal forward; the faces are always upon the point of altering their expression.

It seems to me, always that Rembrandt was excited by the infinite possibilities of man, and by the shifting nature of existence. Durer, on the other hand, was enthralled by the spectacle of mankind as a vehicle of universal moral truths.

Rembrandt should have painted Hamlet; Durer did paint a Dance of Death.

It is the Goya, however, that stands out among the older of the prints on show here.

Sombre, grotesque, pitiful, it portrays humanity as a heap of all-too mortal creatures, huddled under a threatening sky.

* * *

It was Goya's achievement in his etchings and aquatints to combine savage grotesquerie with poignant realism to create a commentary upon the condition of man that raises indignation to the heights of tragic vision.

The backgrounds of the series of Caprichos and of the Disasters of War series are almost always dark, and without detail. The concentration is always upon the human predicament, and this concentration is intense.

Like Swift and like Gogol, Goya was a satirist who mocked because he dared not begin to weep.

His Caprichos are among the most challenging artistic works of all time, and his Disasters of War form one of the most striking indictments of the murderous folly of man that we have ever been given.

The work on show in the gallery belongs to this Disasters of War series and is one of the most haunted and haunting of those works.

* * *

With Goya, Rembrandt, Durer, and Picasso beside them, not to mention Aldegraver who is also well represented, it might be thought that the young printmakers on show would appear somewhat feeble.

This is far from being the case. Herbert Siebner's Riders has both wit and authority. Bruno Bobak's Porcupine is a superb piece of draughtsmanship, and Marianna Schmidt's Spring Minuet has a fantastic vitality Goya himself would have appreciated.

But I have not left myself room to mention the Chagall, the Zadkine, or the two brilliant prints by Sarah Gersovitz. They are all deserving of close attention.

Do go and see for yourselves.

A Political Leader Argues His Credo

COMMONSENSE FOR CANADIANS: A selection of speeches by Robert N. Thompson, edited by Patrick Nicholson. McClelland and Stewart, Toronto, 1965. 162 pp. $3.95.

Reviewed by Anne E. Olsen.

We are hearing much about, and from, Robert N. Thompson during our current federal election campaign. Although a comparative newcomer to the national political scene, his stature as a leader is constantly growing.

"Bob" Thompson, as national leader of the Social Credit Party, has earned the admiration and respect of friends and political enemies alike for the sincerity and frankness of his views and for his patriotism in putting the cause of his country before his partisan interests.

COINED PHRASE

We are all aware of the weak Parliaments returned to Ottawa after the last two federal elections.

Bob Thompson coined the "House of Minorities" for these two legislatures whose political divisions made it difficult to get the nation's business done without too much wasteful and shameful debate.

In each of these recent parliaments, Bob Thompson's Social Credit Party votes have been sufficient to effect a balance of power, and thus to sustain the minority government.

He proclaimed his policy to be to use his position not for his own narrow partisan advantage but to bring the nation a stable government, so long as the Prime Minister would work for the national interest.

SPOTLIGHT

This position having brought the Social Credit Party into the bright spotlight of national politics, Canadians now, understandably, are seeking more information about this party and its dedicated leader.

Although there is a wealth of material available, the newly published volume of selected speeches entitled "Commonsense for Canadians" will provide an excellent overall statement of views—political, social and economic—by the eloquent and competent Bob Thompson himself.

A prolific writer and speaker, he brings to his work a rich background of first-hand experience in international problems of world-wide scope—in Africa, Europe, Latin America and the Far East. He is a recognized authority in the fields of education and church organizations.

In this volume of his speeches recently delivered to many separate groups in widely separate places, there is a sampling of many of the facets of his philosophy.

We may not agree with some of his ideas; but we must admire the strength and conviction with which they are expressed.

He defines his party thus: "A Social Creditor is a small 'c' conservative at heart, with the best of small 'l' liberalism in his make-up; the sanctity of the individual demands a guarantee of security and freedom; that the state was devised to assist man, not that man was created to serve the state; a fundamental monetary reform could permit the provision to all Canadians of what is physically possible and desirable; the credit of Canada is based upon natural and human resources of this rich country, and should therefore be used for the commonwealth rather than for private profit . . ."

It is this distinctive economic theory that gives name and substance to the Social Credit Party. Bob Thompson is certainly a sincere and profound disciple of Major C. H. Douglas and his original economic concepts.

But it is interesting to investigate and speculate upon the political purposes of the Social Credit Party members in power at this time.

OPEN SHELF

By John Mika

Would you like to have a fairly comprehensive library of your own on natural history? One written just for you about the birds, flowers, fish and animals of your environment?

Well it's yours for just $8—plus the usual 5 per cent tax, of course—and a short jaunt down to the Parliament Buildings.

For that price you can pick up all 17 publications, and some of them are quite thick, at the Provincial Museum.

There's a lot of useful information in many of them as well as interesting descriptions and sidelights on the wild life that abounds even at the city's edge.

For instance, there's the Guide to Common Mushrooms of B.C. by Prof. Bandoni and Dr. A. F. Szczawinski. Packed with illustrations and descriptions of the many mushrooms that occur here, it also tells which are edible (including quantitative judgments on their tastiness), which are harmful and which are doubtfuls—the kind that produce an allergic reaction in some persons while being enjoyed by others.

There's a pretty good run on that book just now as one of the most interesting mushroom seasons has arrived with the dry summer producing many varieties that are seldom seen on the Island.

* * *

This book follows through, too, with recipes and hints on cooking various types of mushrooms. All this for only 50 cents.

Also practical is a Guide to Common Edible Plants of B.C. by Dr. Szczawinski and G. A. Hardy but it likely would be most useful to campers or boy scouts who wanted to find out just what they could exist on in the bush if lost and without ordinary resources.

Plant lovers should enjoy The Ferns and Fern-allies of B.C. by T. M. C. Taylor; The Orchids of B.C. or The Heather Family of B.C., both by Dr. Szczawinski. A more general treatise is available in a supplement to Flora of Southern British Columbia by J. W. Eastham.

Fishermen, both salty and fresh, and all persons who love strolling the beaches of this area can find several publications on the fish and marine life they are likely to encounter.

Bird watchers have several titles to choose from dealing with the various sea, shore and land birds to be spotted at all times of the year.

* * *

For those just interested in natural history itself, there are several publications of interest; things like the Breeding Ecology of the Glaucous-winged Gull by Kees Vermeer which provides a good example of the methods scientists use to trace the natural history of our world.

Most of these publications cost 50 cents. Some are available for 25 cents and the higher-priced ones reach 75 cents, so all these volumes are easily obtainable.

And if you decide to go whole hog and buy up the catalogue, why it will only cost you slightly more than the average price of a hard-bound novel these days.

NORTH BREEZES

One of our IMPERIAL dining room regulars says if anyone has an idea for brighter election meetings—now is the time to come to the aid of the party.

He says he's tired of cold church halls, hard kitchen chairs and rattling sardine can ashtrays.

He says you can tell you're at a political meeting if the audience all has grey hair, white hair or no hair.

Even if you come in late, you haven't missed much that you didn't hear in 1963, he says.

He admits he's a cynic. But he says he's going to political meetings anyhow. He says in countries where people don't care, they soon don't have a choice of meetings.

And IMPERIAL congratulations this week to R. B. H. Ralfs, new president of Prospect Lake Community Association; to Dave Lyttle, new President B.C. Government Employees' Association and to Ralph Futcher, new vice-president, Public Works Association of Canada.

Your host,
Nick North

THE SOUNDING BOARD

Discrimination Is the Key

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON

I suppose people who like to summarize various aspects of society in terms of extreme simplification, would say that the history of progress was a long series of advantages versus disadvantages; the disadvantaged constantly being over-run and absorbed by the advantaged.

Progress has been like a tide that creeps inexorably up a beach, enveloping and drowning the millions of minute unimportant creatures in its path.

Progress has also meant that more and more people can share more and more of the finer aspects of living. But every new thing that came along has not been good for us nor are all aspects of even the best of the new, our incontestable allies.

Of course the failure, for the most part, is in ourselves. We accept an advanced technique in toto, immediately concluding that it can function in every phase more efficiently than anything that preceded it.

Take recorded music, for instance. Since the first cylinders were pressed back in the 19th century, what was a novelty has become a way of life.

Progress in electronics and sound recording has meant that the peoples of the earth have become music-minded as never before in history.

There's no fault to be found with that situation. It is all to the good. And so is the fact that shut-ins, old folk, mothers tied down to family affairs, can enjoy the music of their choice in their own homes.

Students of music, to a more limited extent, have been benefitted by microgroove and stereo.

But this is where one begins to draw the line, All students and certainly all critics — true or false — must realize that too slavish an addiction to recordings can lead to serious misconceptions and even some distorted values.

There is a real danger of voice damage, for instance, in the case of the inadequately supervised vocal student who tries to imitate certain techniques of a recorded opera star.

And there is no less danger of real damage being perpetrated by the critic who, without discrimination, bases his verdicts on live concerts on the artificially perfected performances he hears on his stereophonic hi-fi.

I am not suggesting that the vast library of recorded music now available or the electronic marvels of modern reproductions are not of immense value to those who are learning, either to "do" or to listen.

I am merely saying that no matter how valuable or thrilling, nothing can be accepted without reserve; nothing may be used to real advantage without intelligent discrimination.

★ ★ ★

One of the best pieces of news I can pass on this week is that one of the busiest places in town is the Victoria School of Music.

OTTO MUELLER
. . . preparing

In major demand was Otto-Werner Mueller's Saturday afternoon class dealing with conducting and score analysis, which already has an enrolment of 20.

If you drop into a symphony rehearsal these nights, by the way, you may notice a young Japanese man sitting on the sidelines but paying close attention to the conductor.

He is Yotaka Shinoda, an exchange student at University of Victoria. But no, he is not striving to emulate his distinguished countryman on the Toronto Symphony's podium.

He is listening to the vocabulary Mr. Mueller uses in instructing his musicians and later in the evening he will translate it for the conductor's benefit into Japanese.

The hours they are spending over Japanese musical terminology will add to Mr. Mueller's rich stock of languages and sharpen the communication between him and his Hiroshima orchestra when he guest conducts in Japan early in 1966.

★ ★ ★

Lunchtime concerts will be back this winter in the McPherson Playhouse but there will be a different format and a different direction.

Harry Hill, English Department lecturer at Uvic, and noted in the city for his fine gifts as actor, singer and raconteur, will present the concerts in collaboration with the McPherson management.

Concerts will concentrate on variety, will be held only on Fridays. Unchanged is time, duration and admission — 35 cents.

Theatre Setting For Musical Art

First concert of the new Musical Art Season, to be held at McPherson Playhouse, takes place Sunday, Oct. 24 at 3 p.m.

Recitalists to be heard on this occasion are Elfreda Sewell, violinist and Robert Rodgers, pianist.

Mrs. Sewell is well known in this area as a CBC recitalist and former leader of the second violin section of Victoria Symphony Orchestra.

She is now a resident of Vancouver. A scholarship student at Trinity College in London, she holds the FTCL and LRAM diplomas and has coached with Jean de Rimanoczy, Harry Adaskin and Esther Glazer.

Mr. Rodgers is a noted Vancouver pianist and accompanist who performs extensively on the concert stage and for CBC. He holds a Master of Arts degree (piano major) from University of Washington.

NEW CARGO LINER, Canadian Pacific's Beaveroak arrived in Montreal recently on her maiden voyage from Antwerp and London. Beaveroak was built at Newcastle-upon-Tyne, England, by Vickers Armstrong (Shipbuilders) Ltd., at a cost of more than $3 million, and was launched last March. She is more than 408 feet long, weighs 6,750 tons dead weight, and has a service speed of 16 knots. Designed to take advantage of such modern cargo-handling developments, she has icebreaker bow and strengthened hull, extensive engine-room automation and cargo gear to permit faster in-port turn-rounds. She is designed for service between British and European ports to Montreal and the Great Lakes during the summer and the Maritimes and St. Lawrence River ports during the winter.

NEW MODEL ROLLS-ROYCE UNVEILED

LONDON (AP)—Rolls-Royce has unveiled its first new model in a decade. Mechanical advances long regarded as standard on some cheaper cars have been adopted for the car widely regarded as the world standard in luxury.

"This is the most radical new car we have made since the Silver Ghost at the 1906 motor show," said chief engineer Harry Grylls.

The new car is called the Silver Shadow. It has disc brakes, a monocoque body, hydraulic suspension and is smaller outside but roomier inside.

From the outside, the car has a more rounded design that makes it look more like medium-priced British cars. The classic Rolls-Royce grille, modified on the Parthenon, still is the dominating feature, but it is slightly smaller.

Prices in the United States start at $20,000, compared to $16,500 for the Silver Cloud.

WINDFALL SCANDAL

'It Can't Happen Here' Says Bonner

The royal commission report on the Windfall mines stock scandal will be studied here but Attorney-General Robert Bonner Friday expressed confidence it couldn't happen in B.C.

Mr. Bonner, who oversees the work of the provincial securities commission, said the government office was in almost daily contact with the Vancouver Stock Exchange.

He said this automatic system of co-operation enables the exchange to keep on top of any erratic movement of a particular stock so that it can be investigated early.

He said such watchfulness cannot prevent efforts at stock manipulation any more than crime can be prevented by legislation but it holds frauds to a "brief run."

WEEK ON MARKETS

Only Brief Flurries In Canadian Stocks

Canadian stock markets wandered through the week with investors unable to decide whether to be buyers or sellers.

As a result the market saw brief flurries in stocks affected by news in their particular field.

There was, however, a good deal of activity at the administrative level of the Toronto Stock Exchange. New rules were announced for some small mining companies and the royal commission report on Windfall Oils and Mines Lt. was made public.

Tuesday, the Exchange issued its new delisting policy under which shares of small, inactive mining companies will be suspended from trading for one year. If at the end of that time the companies remain without money the shares will be delisted.

WARN 10 FIRMS

Ten companies were told they will be suspended Oct. 20 unless they can satisfy the Exchange that they do not come within the policy.

Princes in all the issues were slashed at the opening Wednesday, with many cut by more than half.

Canadian Breweries fell ⅛ to 7⅞ and sold as low as 7¾, its lowest price since the stock was split in 1961. The company recently announced lower third-quarter earnings and said there is not much hope of any improvement in the near future.

Greater Winnipeg Gas dipped 1¾ to 22½, and Northern Ontario Natural Gas lost ¾ to 29¼.

Newsprint stocks moved lower after Abitibi announced it has cut its basic price for newsprint by $5 a ton.

Abitibi fell to a two-year low of 10¾ while losses were also taken by Consolidated Paper, B.C. Forest Products—a west coast producer which cut its price almost a year ago—Domtar and Bathurst.

Great Lakes took the heftiest setback, off 2⅜ at 21 3-8.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Automation Mostly Myth?

By JIM HUME
Times Business Editor

Hume

It wasn't surprising that Donald C. Duvall, executive vice-president of Pittsburgh Steel Company, turned out to be the best speaker during the two-day Pacific Northwest Personnel Management conference here.

For the past 14 months Mr. Duvall, along with other U.S. steel executives, has been locked in deadly battle with steel workers' trade unions.

Readers may recall that it took the president of the United States to settle the issue and order a new contract drawn up.

The steel companies, to say the least, were not exactly jumping with joy at the settlement. Neither were they (are they) shouting loud hosannahs for LBJ.

As Mr. Duvall put it Friday, "we didn't think we were close to a settlement, but LBJ showed up how wrong we were."

The professional union debater, possibly with the Washington defeat still stinging a little, told his audience that "we have now arrived at the point where the single backdrop for (union) negotiations is automation."

And on that topic Mr. Duval comes through loud and clear.

There are, he claimed, six myths associated with automation, myths he feels society should explode as soon as possible.

Myth number one: Automation is something new.

Nonsense, snorts Mr. Duval. Automation is as old as the wheel. All that is happening today is that the process of change has been speeded up.

Myth two: The sole purpose of automation is to replace human beings at work thus forcing up unemployment.

"In 1964 there were 68 million people working in the United States," growled Mr. Duvall. "This year there are 71 million at work. We have more automation than at any time in the nation's history and more people working."

And he adds: "If telephone companies went back to 1940 equipment and the old systems they would need every woman and girl in the United States to man the switchboards."

Mr. Duval admitted that more study of the effects of automation on the labor market was required, but so far, he insists new methods are creating work.

Myth three: Industry has a choice as to whether it automates or not.

True, said Mr. Duval, but it isn't really much of a choice. The industry or business that fails to keep in step with modern technology will stagnate and die. "It does have a choice. It stays in business with modern production methods or it goes out of business because it refuses to keep pace."

Number four: Automation is opposed by all workers.

Not true, said Mr. Duvall. Many trade unions have already recognized and accepted the trend and are studying ways of living with it.

Number five: Only management understands automation.

"It is time management openly admitted it has a problem to which it does not yet have the answers. But we must find those answers.

And myth six: There is no good, sound or practical way to develop and understand automation.

"We must never forget that automation is undertaken on behalf of human beings. We must find a way to understand it properly for the benefit of all. Good communication between management and worker is essential, and it is up to per personnel people to establish those lines of communication and educate people."

To all of which we say a loud "amen."

Cash Supply Rein Eased During Week

OTTAWA (CP)—The Bank of Canada slackened its rein on the money supply slightly this week, apparently in an effort to hold it generally at its present level after the summer's upsurge.

Central bank statistics reported Thursday night that by tightening the rein last week, chartered bank cash reserves were allowed to grow this week back to the $1,441,000,000 level they were at two weeks ago.

Under banking legislation the chartered banks are required to hold 8 per cent of their Canadian dollar deposit liabilities by 12½ times their cash reserves by advancing loans.

At the end of September, the Bank of Canada had reduced chartered bank cash reserves — mainly by selling them securities—to the point that their reserves represented only 8.01 per cent of reserves.

But the average for the first four banking days of this month rose to 8.05 per cent. In banking terms this is still fairly tight control but represents some slackening.

The total money supply rose gradually during April and May to just over $18,700,000,000 from about $18,400,000,000. Then in June and July it jumped to a record $19,600,000,000.

Stock Exchange Answers Critic

TORONTO (CP) — Lt.-Gen. Howard Graham, president of the Toronto Stock Exchange, said Friday he takes "the strongest possible exception" to criticism levelled against the exchange by Mr. Justice Kelly in his royal commission report on Windfall Oils and Mines.

Mr. Justice Kelly said in his report to the Ontario government, released Thursday, that the TSE was fully responsible for the continued trading in shares of Windfall while they rose spectacularly in July 1964.

The exchange's argument that the Ontario Securities Commission had assumed control of trading in the stock was rejected by the commissioner.

"The exchange's responsibility cannot be lessened by anything that was done by the securities commission or in its name," he said in his report.

Gen. Graham said in Friday's statement: "It is difficult to understand how the commissioner is justified in placing responsibility for continued trading subsequent to July 6 upon the exchange."

At a press conference Thursday, the TSE president said he thought the matter should be treated lightly. "It's water over the dam," he said.

GM Prices Take Drop For 1966

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — The suggested retail prices of all 1966 General Motors North American-type passenger cars will be lower than those of similarly-equipped 1965 models, General Motors of Canada announced.

On Canadian-produced cars, the suggested retail price reductions range from $57 to $113 from the 1965 prices adjusted for comparable equipment.

A 1966 model Chevrolet six-cylinder Impala will sell for $3,169. A similar optional sold for $3,245—a reduction of $76.

F. H. Walker, president and general manager of GM of Canada, said all 1966 models include, as standard equipment, six safety items which have been available as extra-cost options on most 1965 models. They are: Rear seat belts, padded instrument panel, backup lights, outside left hand rear view mirror, dual windshield wiper and washer and padded sun visors.

GLASS STANDARD

Furthermore, he said, improved penetration resistance windshield glass will be standard on all 1966 GM North American-type cars.

The average Canadian-produced car, GM said, sold for $3,261 in 1965. With optional equipment it sold for $3,330.

The average 1966 model with previous optional equipment now standard will sell for $3,257—a reduction of $73.

Mr. Walker said: "The price reductions give consideration to the duty adjustments resulting from the Canada-United States automotive trade agreement."

Boycott Urged On Oil Firms

EDMONTON (CP)—Members of the Alberta Federation of Labor have been asked to return credit cards issued by British American Oil Company and Royalite Oil Company, a spokesman said Friday.

Frank Bodie, AFL executive secretary, said the action would support the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' Union in its strike against the two companies.

"We are asking union members to return the cards to the companies because of their refusal to put guarantees in the union agreement to protect union members' jobs against automation," Mr. Bodie said.

Inland Gas Willing To Cut Rates

KELOWNA (CP) — Inland Natural Gas Co. Ltd. has agreed to reduce its rates for high consumers, in accordance with a suggestion by the city of Prince George.

J. D. Taggart, lawyer for the company, applied at the start of a Public Utilities Commission hearing to amend the rates schedule about which the PUC is holding hearings.

The amendments would mean consumers using more than 16,000 cubic feet of gas a month would pay 80 cents per thousand cubic feet, instead of 85, and consumers using between 10,000 and 16,000 cubic feet a month would pay 85 cents per thousand instead of 90.

Mr. Taggart said the company's original plan to leave rates for consumption of more than 10,000 cubic feet per month as an "oversight."

A brief from Prince George had said the schedule of rates for which Inland is seeking approval would penalize high consumers in the north, who need gas for heating during most of the year.

"We feel there is merit in the submission by the city of Prince George," Mr. Taggart told the hearing.

J. W. Tomlinson, Toronto, a consulting engineer who drew up the rates schedule the PUC is being asked to approve, said northern natural gas users would save almost 22 per cent over three years if the new schedule were approved.

Addict Cleared Of Possession

Magistrate William Ostler ruled Friday drug addict Frank Cross was lawfully in possession of narcotics when arrested by police Sept. 17.

He said Cross discharged the burden placed upon him by the Crown to be lawfully in possession of the drugs by raising a reasonable doubt.

Cross was followed to his home, 3304 Tennyson, by RCMP constable Walter Semenoff and city detective Lester Clarke Sept. 17.

There they took from him a phial containing five tablets, later identified as dilaudit.

Crown counsel Kenneth Cox argued the tablets would still be effective four days later and therefore he would still be under the care of his former physician.

He accepted Dr. Spicer's evidence Cross was no longer under his care.

And he noted Cross first went to the Narcotics Foundation to seek help before obtaining the drugs from Dr. Sutherland.

"And there was no evidence the accused tried to obtain drugs from another source before turning to the foundation," he said.

The magistrate added that to his knowledge, it was the first time there had been a judicial interpretation of that section of the Narcotics Act.

COMPULSORY TESTS URGED

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. Medical Association was told Friday no driver should be allowed to refuse a breathalyzer test, or drive if his blood-alcohol level is .05 per cent or higher.

During a panel debate at the association's annual convention, Dr. Jack Lederman of Vancouver said it should be made a crime to refuse to take the test.

"Our present laws are ineffective and tend to shield the offending driver," Dr. Lederman said.

Cross-Country Rally Set

Third annual hunter horse trials of Vancouver Island Polo Club will include a three-mile cross-country rally Monday.

The two-day, three-way event starting at 1:30 p.m. Sunday with junior trials, is expected to draw entries from Vancouver Island and the mainland.

At 9 a.m. Monday competitors will take part in dressage tests, and at noon the open hunter trials commence.

The three-mile course over natural obstacles will utilize the 40-acre grounds and adjoining private property. This will be the final event of the meet.

Recital Features Pianist, Violinist

Fall tour of the 1965 Young Artist Series will bring a Manitoba-born violinist and a British Columbia pianist to Victoria next Wednesday.

The recital by Donald Whyte, 22, violinist, and 20-year-old Ruth Callander will take place in Victoria School of Music Auditorium, 613 Pandora Avenue, commencing at 8:15 p.m.

Locally the event is sponsored by the Registered Music Teachers' Association on behalf of Canadian Federation of Music Teachers' Associations which inaugurated the series 23 years ago.

From the time that he won, at the age of 11, a silver medal and scholarship from the Royal Conservatory of Music in a Grade 8 examination, Mr. Whyte has gone steadily on toward the goal of a professional musical career.

A string of diplomas and scholarships behind him, he has for the last five years acted as deputy concert master of the Regina Symphony Orchestra and has appeared as soloist with it on several occasions.

He was also three times deputy concert master with the National Youth Orchestra and was concert master at Lansing, Mich., during the Congress of Strings summer session of 1962. In the 1963-64 season, he played with Kansas City Philharmonic Orchestra.

A pupil of Boris Roubtkine, in her final year's Bechelor of Music program at University of British Columbia, Ruth Callander was only last month, awarded a Ford Foundation Performing Arts Scholarship to enable her to continue at UBC in the performance field.

Miss Callander has been a consistent winner of medals, cups and trophies since an early age. She made her debut with Vancouver Symphony Orchestra at 11 and appeared again as soloist in 1962, doing 12 concerts for B.C. schools.

In 1961 she received the Vancouver Symphony award for original composition.

She appeared on CBC Talent Festival under Sir Robert MacMillan last season and has recently been awarded the Women's Musical Club Scholarship for the most promising Vancouver pianist.

On next Wednesday's program, Miss Callander will play Beethoven, Sonata Op. 31 in E flat major; Ravel, Jeux d'eau and Tzigane and the Chopin Ballade in F minor.

Mr. Whyte will be accompanied by Miss Callander in the Vivaldi-Respighi Sonata in D major, and Brahms Sonata in D minor.

122 Students Enrolled For Classes

Third season of Bastion Theatre School has drawn an enrolment of 122 students. Junior, senior and adult classes are in full swing throughout the week at 1318 Broad Street.

There is a Thursday evening adult class for those who do not wish to act but are interested in play-reading and theatre appreciation.

For those adults specifically interested in acting, there are workshops on Wednesday evenings.

Instructors are Stuart Baker, Peter Mannering and Anthony Burton.

Speech training classes begin Tuesday under Mrs. Helen Green. There will be 15 sessions of one hour each, on Tuesday and Thursday evenings at Bastion's studio. For anyone interested, the telephone number is 382-4112.

Not In City, Accused Tells Court

Magistrate William Ostler will rule Oct. 18 whether Dale Floyd Ashton, 955 Goldstream Avenue, was in town overnight March 4.

Ashton claims he was employed in Port Alberni the evening he is alleged to have broken into Frank L. Bott, 1812 Cook.

Police produced fingerprint evidence earlier in his trial from a print said to be Ashton's found on the bottom of a petty cash box in the store.

But then, he said, he was looking for a typewriter for his wife.

He said he also touched the cash box in the process of clearing the counter to test the machine.

9 out of 10 ballplayers wear Stanfield's long sleeve undershirts

Except for shortstop Miss Laverne (who categorically refuses to wear any long sleeve undershirt), ballplayers in any league prefer Stanfield's. This is because only Stanfield's has the know-how and experience to properly make wool and part-wool undergarments. Which is why these major leaguers had to go all the way to Truro, Nova Scotia to get undershirts that were comfortable enough to wear around the diamond. (And frankly, if you were a keyed-up, high-strung American super star who had to spend the whole day chasing balls around a stadium, you'd be pretty fussy about your comfort, too).

Fortunately though, you don't have to be a Mantle, a Mays, or a Maury Wills to enjoy the superb and unique comfort of Stanfield's underwear. Whatever your job or favourite sport, you can always find a Stanfield's garment in just the right style, weight and fabric. Want proof? Just look at the ballplayers in this year's world series. Chances are most of them are wearing Stanfield's.

The Canada Pension Plan and its benefits

Here is what the Canada Pension Plan will do for people like Mike Thomas, a 25-year-old production worker who earns $92.31 a week ($4,800 a year).

Mike works in a plant where the normal retirement age is 62. If he continues to work until age 62 at the above salary, at age 65 he will receive a Canada Pension Plan retirement pension of $100 a month plus $75 a month Old Age Security. The retirement pension is the same as he would receive if he worked until age 65 because under the Plan a certain number of years of low or no earnings do not affect the amount of the pension.

Should Mike die anytime after 1967, having contributed until his death, his wife will receive a widow's pension of $62.50 a month providing she has young children to support. She will also be entitled to $25 a month for each child, which means that if she has three dependent children, her monthly income from the Plan will be $137.50. At the time of Mike's death, Mrs. Thomas will also receive a lump sum payment of $500.

Benefits for children cease when they reach 18, or 25 if they continue full-time education. If Mrs. Thomas is over 45 when her youngest child reaches age 18, she will continue to receive a widow's pension of $62.50 a month until she is 65. From then on she will get $75 a month from Old Age Security, plus a widow's pension of $60 a month—a total of $135 a month.

All benefits under the Plan will maintain their value. The actual benefits payable will probably be higher than those given here since benefits will be adjusted to meet changes in living costs and in wage levels before they are paid and changes in living costs after they become payable.

What will the Plan cost you?

If you, like Mike, are employed and have earnings of $4,800 spread evenly over the year, you will pay at the rate of $1.45 a week. Your employer will pay the same amount.

The Honourable Judy LaMarsh.

Religious Panel Takes Modern Look At Saints, Sinners

Challenge takes a new look at Saints and Sinners Sunday at 6 p.m. over Channel 4.

Three clergymen define saints in a positive light, instead of in the usual negative way. That is, they explain that a saint is not a "non-doer," a person who neither smokes, drinks, swears, etc., but rather a person who, aside from or including his weaknesses, exerts himself for a cause or for others.

Citing some of the great saints of past centuries, the panel points out how these men and women overcame their faults when they turned their energy toward helping others.

Approaching the subject matter in this way, then, a sinner is really the non-doer, the person, for instance, who fails to utilize his talents to the fullest, who refuses to "take a stand" on important modern day issues.

TONIGHT

6:00: Channel 2: Countrytime. An interview with horse breeder Rudy Freitag of Alameda, Sask., owner of prize-winning Belgian horses.

6:30: Channel 4: Viewpoint. Air pollution is discussed as it affects the Pacific Northwest.

9:30: Channel 4: Hollywood Palace. Hostess Joan Crawford makes a rare TV appearance. Guests include Jack Jones, Godfrey Cambridge and Allen and Rossi.

10:30: Channel 4: ABC Scope. There are 50,000,000 privately owned guns on the North American continent. Should this be?

SUNDAY

8:30: Channel 7: Look Up And Live. First of a three-part report on the problems faced by clergymen to make Christianity a working force in urban society.

9:00: Channel 12: Look Up And Live. The Evolution of Eve. Last of a series. Today: A woman plans her future.

THAT CERTAIN FEELING tends to overcome even the most dedicated espionage agent, such as Maxwell Smart, Agent 86, who flips for Agent 99 (Barbara Feldon), Saturday at 8:30 p.m. on Channel 5.

Coleman Host On TV Sports

Jim Coleman, widely-read newspaper columnist and veteran broadcaster, has been named host of CBC-TV's Sports Unlimited.

This year Sports Unlimited again will be seen following the Juliette Show on the Saturday nights when Maple Leaf home games are telecast.

Coleman was born in Winnipeg and educated at University School, Victoria, B.C., and at McGill University in Montreal. His lifelong interest in sports was fostered by his father, the late D'Alton Corry Coleman, chairman and president of CPR. Mr. Coleman Sr., owned a stable of thoroughbred horses and was vice-chairman of the Montreal Canadiens for a number of years.

Coleman began his newspaper career with his hometown paper, the Winnipeg Tribune and subsequently worked for other western Canadian papers as well as The Canadian Press.

The east beckoned and Coleman went to work for the Globe and Mail as a sports columnist. After 10 years he left the Globe in 1950 to enter race track management. For 10 of his 12 years in racing he was director of public relations for The Jockey Club.

Farmer's Girl To Be Married

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Can a television couple be sexy and married, too?

This provocative question is being tested this season by The Farmer's Daughter. It may be an uphill struggle for the ABC comedy. After all, television audiences have grown accustomed to the pace of domestic life in which no more affection is shown than a quick kiss before hubby leaves for the office.

The average TV couple comprises a churlish chucklehead and his patient, aproned wife. They have been married since heaven knows when, and their only concerns are children, bills and how to entertain the boss for dinner.

But in The Farmer's Daughter, Inger Stevens is a sagacious Swede and William Windom plays a Minnesota congressman. After two years as his housekeeper, she becomes his wife Nov. 1.

"I hope we will be able to show that a married couple can be sophisticated—yes, and even sexy," said Inger. "After all, he found her attractive and appealing enough to marry her. Why should we try to hide their love just because they're married?"

She admitted the hazards involved. One of them is network censorship. A script portrayed the honeymooning congressman escorting his bride to a hotel room with twin beds. His comment: "But I asked for a double bed!"

"The use of the word 'bed' was absolutely forbidden," Inger reported. "It looked as if the show would have to be abandoned, but it wasn't."

OLD WEST ALWAYS YOUNG

Western Star Brands Series With Success

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"In a good western, you'll find the last vestige of the symbol of male virility," said actor Chuck Connors. "It's the lone man overcoming obstacles and it's always got a lot of people identifying with the hero."

Connors was talking at the opening of television's new season and as the start of a very healthy western series called Branded. But less than 10 months before, the western as a popular television form had been pronounced dying if not already dead.

True, there were Gunsmoke and Rawhide on CBS, Bonanza and The Virginian on NBC and Wagon Train on ABC. But the diagnosticians were attributing their health to attractive stars, good scripts, happy locations on the evening schedules—everything except that circa—1870 old west locale, the horses, gun-play and saloon brawls that have become traditional ingredients since William S. Hart.

In January, NBC replaced—with considerable daring in view of this widely-held diagnosis—a faltering comedy show in its Sunday night lineup with a rip-roaring horse opera in the old tradition. It was Branded, a 30-minute adventure saga with Connors playig a roaming ex-cavalry officer cashiered—wrongly of course—for cowardice.

To the delight and surprise of many, it immediately caught the public fancy and jumped the list of the top 20 shows.

Thus, this season the western is back, full of good health, strong and all over the three networks. There are, in fact, 13 shows occupying 11 hours a week of prime evening time.

DANNY KAYE

DANNY KAYE

Baseball, TV, Piloting . . . He Loves All

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Danny Kaye was glowering in his penthouse apartment at CBS' Television City.

In his lap was a portable radio pouring forth news of another disaster for Kaye's beloved Los Angeles Dodgers.

"Well, see you later," I said.

"Don't leave," he said, shutting off the radio. Chicago Cubs were whipping the Dodgers 7-3.

Kaye has two other major interests: Flying and television.

While his fellow TV stars were out mining mints at state fairs and in summer theatres and night clubs, Kaye said he never worked harder in his life.

At what? Taking examinations for more advanced pilot ratings. He spoke glowingly of piloting a private jet to Portland, Ore., in one hour and 40 minutes, "the same time it takes me to fly to San Francisco in my own plane."

REJECTS CLAIMS

"People said I was a nut, a perfectionist who would last six weeks in television and then go quietly mad because of the way you have to work in TV. But I'm not a perfectionist. I never have been. Anyone who says that he is a perfectionist is claiming that what he tries to do is perfect work. Perfect in whose eyes? His own? The public's?

"All I try to do is the best I can. When you put together a complete show in five days—the equivalent of two-thirds of a movie—you can't expect everything to be polished. I knew that when I went into TV.

"Things can go wrong, but you can capitalize on them in TV, and that gives an added quality. Like last week when Harry Belafonte had a punch line that he couldn't get out. His difficulty was much funnier than the line would have been.

"We've had some . . . poor shows, too.

"That was my biggest adjustment to TV: How to accept the poor shows. How did I do it? Merely by moving on to the next show and trying to profit by the bad one."

Actor Robert Lansing, who was General Savage on 12 O'Clock High last season, will answer to the same name in pilot film of his projected new series, The Long Hunt of April Savage, a Western.

Cars to Double by 1984

What Cars Do for Us What We Do to Them Examined on Tuesday

The Great Love Affair, a light-hearted pictorial essay on the automobile in contemporary America, will be broadcast Tuesday at 10 p.m. on Channel 7.

CBC News Correspondent Harry Reasoner will narrate "The Great Love Affair."

Timed to the introduction of Detroit's new 1966 models and America's first anticipated 9-million car production year, "The Great Love Affair" is an examination of the unique relationship between the average American and his automobile. The broadcast roams the U.S. to explore the pervasiveness of the auto in American life. CBS News cameras have filmed a half-dozen striking examples of various drive-in businesses and institutions, as well as other offbeat automobile phenomena including custom auto shops, drag-strip racing and the newest fad of "slot-car" racing parlors.

In chronicling the love affair, the broadcast examines Detroit's hard sell, the auto-showroom dickering over new and used car prices, the business of servicing autos and the boom in accessories.

It also looks at the less romantic aspects of breakdowns, repossessions and dumping of autos. It examines the automobile as an art form, a collector's item, a status symbol and, as one intellectual puts it, "The Great American Equalizer."

Public Polls

How will the vote go in November? No one can say for sure, but between now and the close of the polls, a lot of predictions will be made. Over the next few weeks, political scientists, journalists and party strategists will be sounding out the opinions of the electorate in various surveys.

For its second program, on Tuesday at 10:30 p.m., channels 2 and 6's new public affairs series, The Public Eye, takes a look at some of the new techniques of public-opinion polling — who makes the survey, how the results are analyzed, and what the statistics mean.

With host Philip Deane in the studio will be political scientist and author Peter Regenstreif. They will discuss such questions as whether parties lead or follow public opinion, how the techniques of polling are applied to electioneering by the parties, and the methods that Regenstreif himself uses in his samplings.

Regenstreif has recently published The Diefenbaker Interlude: Parties and Voting in Canada, a study of recent trends in Canadian voting. A Canadian citizen, he is assistant professor of political science at the University of Rochester, New York, and has attracted considerable national attention for his analyses of recent Canadian federal elections.

Ron Turcotte had just won the $25,000-added Jim Dandy Stakes and was headed back through the crowd to the jockey's room at historic Saratoga race track.

Between races most jockeys like to relax by playing cards or shooting a game of pool—not Turcotte. "I don't play cards like the other jockeys, and I'm not so good at pool, but I do like to sit around or lie under the trees, especially at Saratoga."

"It wasn't too many years ago that Ron Turcotte was chopping down trees instead of using them for a shady spot to think about the $2,500 jockey fee he can earn for one minute and 35 seconds of work.

On Thursday at 9:30 p.m., Channel 2 and 6's Telescope will focus on the 24-year-old native of Grand Falls, N.B. The program, entitled To Win a Million, follows Turcotte back to his hometown for Ron Turcotte Day; shows him at Woodbine in Toronto and Saratoga in New York State where he boots home winners for some of the richest horse owners in the world; and finally returns to Grand Falls for his wedding.

When Turcotte left Grand Falls in 1960 and arrived in Toronto looking for "something for the future," he had no idea that "something" would turn out to be horses. The only other horses he knew were the big heavyweights used to haul pulpwood. But everywhere he went looking for work he heard the same reply—too small. That was until someone suggested he try race tracks. After several tries at getting into the track, Ron gained a job exercising horses.

'About a year later trainer Gordon Huntley offered him a contract to ride for $75 a week. In June, 1961, he rode his first mount, a horse called Whispering Wind. "I rode him 10 or 11 times that year," he recalls. "The first time I was in front and then he bolted and we finished fifth, two lengths back. Well, Mr. Huntley was in the stands pulling his hair because be never thought the horse would be that close."

MY NAME IS BARBRA, the Emmy-winning musical hour starring Barbra Streisand, will be telecast Friday at 7:30 p.m. on Channel 8.

Wins First Race

Turcotte eventually won his first race on a horse named Pheasant Lane. "I was so happy winning my first race," he explains, "especially on that horse. I really liked that horse. Well, he'd do anything I wanted and he'd run so fast for me. That's a horse I really wanted to win my first race on, and I did."

As Turcotte improved and began getting personal tips from some of the older jockeys such as Pat Remillard, he had more mounts and more wins.

Barbra Streisand

My Name Is Barbra, the Barbra Streisand special program which has been given six Emmy awards, will be shown on Channel 8 Friday at 7:30 p.m.

The program, which was the brilliant young Broadway star's first hour-long television show, was aired for the first time last April 23. It was greeted by Canadian viewers as an outstanding program, an acclaim repeated by American viewers when it appeared later on the CBC network.

The Emmy awards are given by the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences for outstanding achievement.

Other week night viewing highlights are listed in order of appearance as follows:

ASTIGMATISM

Nearly nine out of ten people have astigmatism, many without knowing it. Astigmatism causes an uneven focusing of the light rays that enter the eye. The rays of light in one section of a beam are focused at one point, but the rays of a section at right angles to this are focused at a different point. Thus a blurred picture or image results. In many cases, the image can be made quite clear by a constant focusing of the lens in the eye. This, however, usually causes a great deal of strain, fatigue, soreness of the eyes and frequent headaches. To have comfortable vision and to protect the only pair of eyes you will ever have, be sure they are free from this common defect, or that they are properly corrected for it. It is advisable to have your eyes examined at least once every two years.

ASK RITHET'S

You are invited to submit questions on insurance and similar matters for inclusion in this column. The origin of such queries is kept entirely secret.

Q. We have quite a large mirror attached to a bedroom door. Would this be insured against breakage under a Homeowners' Policy?

A. Yes. A Homeowners' Policy covers loss to all glass constituting a part of a building insured. However, not every package policy is a Homeowners' policy. A glass rider under a Composite package policy only insures glass in windows and doors. This excludes mirrors.

Civil Service Eyes 'Big Brother' Role

Indications are that federal civil servants will obtain collective bargaining rights within the next few years.

And if they do they will lay the groundwork for labor to achieve a long denied objective—organization of the white collar worker, John J. Carson, head of the Civil Service Commission of Canada, said Friday.

Addressing the 27th annual meeting of the Pacific Northwest Personnel Management Association at the Empress, Mr. Carson said "the winds of change have been blowing across public service in Canada" since the Glassco report on government services.

"It is strange that there had been a static situation for so long prior to that," he said. "But now, not in any sensational way but quietly, many changes are taking place."

Mr. Carson said that if civil service associations achieve their objectives they will have the largest group of organized white collar workers—some 200,000 members—in Canada.

He warned that if their civil servants are successful similar organiation could spread "to the outside world as well."

BARGAINING PATTERNS

"The impact of arbitration awards covering 200,000 employees could set bargaining patterns and precedents that will affect many sectors of private industry," Mr. Carson added.

He also warned industry leaders that the general upgrading of civil service salaries would soon put the government in a position of competing with industry for skilled administration labor.

"We are re-organinzing the treasury board and re-orienting the staff as recommended by the Glassco report," he said: "In future promotions will be through merit rather than the traditional length of service method and the merit will be determined by local management rather than the civil service commission," he said.

"One of the strongest recommendations of the Glassco report was that managers must be permitted and required to manage."

Mr. Carson said the commission he heads will eventually relinquish the field of salary administration to the treasury board.

"Red tape and delays will no longer be accepted as inevitable," he said. "And after all the treasury board is the department that administers the spending of the money."

He urged private industry to look to its own house in the light of forthcoming changes in the civil service.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett announced the first break in the province-wide brewery workers strike Friday.

He said the two sides had finally agreed to repeated urging by Labor Minister Leslie Peterson to meet for fresh talks.

First meeting will be held Wednesday in government offices in Vancouver.

Mr. Peterson said the two sides still had to appoint their representatives for the meeting. He has appointed the labor department's chief conciliation officer, Reginald Clements, to represent the government.

"I'm always available, too, at any time if needed," he added.

The mediation attempt comes almost eight weeks after the strike began, shutting up beer parlors across the province for the past month.

CPR Not Fair To Que. Labor, Union Charges

MONTREAL (CP)—A union leader Friday accused N. R. Crump, chairman of Canadian Pacific Railways, of discrimination against Quebec workers.

Louis Laberge, president of the Quebec Federation of Labor, attacked Mr. Crump for not having made a "more generous" offer to the striking employees, of the CPR - operated Cateau Frontenac Hotel in Quebec City.

The 500 employees of the hotel have been on strike for more than a month in support of their demand for a 15-per-cent hourly raise on a one-year contract.

The striking employees are members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, affiliated with the QFL.

Mr. Laberge said in his statement: "After months of negotiations, the uncompromising employer could offer nothing better than a basic increase of 11 cents per hour spread over a three-year contract.

"Moreover, while the room rates at the Chateau Frontenac are appreciably higher than those at the Royal York in Toronto, our people at the Chateau receive an average of 15 to 20 cents per hour less than those at the Royal York."

The Royal York is also CPR operated.

EXACTO PAYOFF HITS $721.20

HIGHEST RETURN IN TRACK HISTORY

Friday's Fortunates Agree Diamond Had Gem of Idea

By HAL MALONE

Four years ago Jack Diamond pondered a new betting proposition at Vancouver's Exhibition Park.

"We had the daily double and the quinella," Diamond was saying Friday at Sandown, "but I was trying to think of something else."

"There isn't much you can do with the daily double except introduce the twin double, which is murder. Mulling over the quinella, Diamond came up with a nugget of an idea.

"Why not," he asked himself, "have a quinella with a twist? Bettors will have to pick the first two horses in a race in the exact order of finish. We'll call it the Exacto."

For a few days, the Exacto drew moderate attention. Then one day two long-shots dropped down and the payoff was $4,800 plus.

"From that day," Diamond says, "the Exacto hit its stride."

Diamond liked the idea so much he had the name copyrighted. No other track can use it.

Holders of nine $2 tickets had reason Friday to utter squeals of delight over Diamond's foresight.

Buttons popping from expansive vests, they presented Exacto tickets bearing the numbers 7-2 Friday, and were forced to accept $721.20 each. All of them reportedly bore up well under the strain of the biggest return in the history of the Sidney strip.

For their largesse, the fortunate few can also thank Lady Flag and Star Pal. The former, 30-1 on the board (she was 8-1 on the morning line), wheeled around the pack under Jimmy Broomfield to win going way.

JACK DIAMOND

Their task was made slightly easier when jockey Wesley Jones, aboard the favored Totem Miss, lost his pedals (stirrups) out of the gate and fell heavily.

MUTUEL MURMURS . . . The numbers players had a bonanza, especially those who backed lucky seven. . . Four sevens hit the winner's circle. . . Al (Banana) Ventrella was the only rider to score twice (Border Spy and His Jimmy). . . There was some tongue-wagging among punters about Border Spy's eligibility in the third race. . . Conditions of the race called for horses that have never won three races. . . The gelding was eligible for those conditions at Exhibition Park since one of his three wins was at Sandown and would not count on the mainland. . . .

The stewards are studying the situation. . . . Even if the order of finish is changed and the purse monies redistributed the betting public wasn't affected. . . . Border Spy's form was available for all to see. . . . Little Boy Fly, winner of three at Sandown, was claimed by the Hannibal Stable for $1,000. . . M. C. Lambert who bred Star Pal and lost him for $1,500 in his first start, haltered him back for $800. . . . Visitor to the track was Jim Coleman, Toronto sports columnist and former publicist for the Ontario Jockey Club. . . . Said Coleman of the west coast's pride George Royal, second in his two starts at Woodbine: "He didn't look like a tight horse to me. After his last race he was blowing hard."

COLEMAN ON RAMPAGE

Chasing Calgary fullback Lovell Coleman was hopeless task for Dave Still (62) and other Argos in second half of Canadian Football League game Friday night at Toronto. Held in check during first two periods, Coleman broke loose for two touchdowns in second half as Stampeders won 27-26.

Argos Didn't Die Quietly; Stamps Deal Fatal Blow

TORONTO (CP) — Calgary Stampeders have grabbed a four-point lead atop the Western Football Conference by wiping out the last chance Toronto's hapless Argonauts had of making the Eastern Conference playoffs.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Ottawa Rough Riders, meanwhile, are both hoping to stay on top in the EFC when they clash in a key game Monday afternoon in Hamilton.

The Stamps rolled to their ninth victory of the season but discovered the Argos weren't in a mood to give up easily. Calgary downed Toronto 27-26, needing a pair of second-half touchdowns by Lovell Coleman and three goal-line stands by their defence.

The Stamps, who meet Montreal Alouettes Monday afternoon in Montreal, did their Thanksgiving Day opponents a favor since the loss to Toronto assured Montreal of a playoff berth.

It was only a matter of time before the Argos bowed out of the playoff picture officially, but 16,711 fans turned out to see the Stamps inflict the fatal blow Friday night.

The Stamps now have 18 points in 12 games while the loss was Toronto's 10th in 11 starts. Calgary gained a four-point lead over Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

But the victory was costly for Calgary, who lost quarterback Eagle Day early in the second quarter. Day aggravated a knee injury that sidelined him for several games earlier this season and he's a doubtful starter against Montreal.

Substitute quarterback Jerry Keeling suffered a bruised thigh on the last play of the first half but is expected to be fit to play Monday.

PASS FROM KEELING

Coleman scored on an 11-yard pass from Keeling early in the third quarter and ran 54 yards for another touchdown late in the fourth quarter. Keeling got the Stamps remaining touchdown on a 15-yard end run while Larry Robinson kicked three converts and a field goal.

Toronto quarterback Pete Liske passed nine yards to Pat Brosnan for one touchdown, plunged three yards himself for another and handed off to fullback Dave Thelen who cracked over from the Calgary two for the third. Jackie Parker converted all three and kicked a field goal, Toronto's first of the season. The Argos added a two-point safety touch when Coleman was nailed in his own end zone.

The Stamps, who trailed 9-3 after the first quarter but led 13-9 at the half and 20-16 after three quarters, lost Day when he was hit hard by guard Ron Brewer on the Toronto 28. Anderson was carted off moments later after Pete Warren belted him.

ARGOS FLUB CHANCES

The Argos held a slight statistical margin, picking up 22 first downs on 220 yards rushing and 194 passing as Liske completed 12 of 24. The Stamps had 20 first downs on 206 yards rushing and 173 passing, Day and Keeling connecting on 13 of 23 aerials. Toronto intercepted two passes and lost its only fumble.

A fired-up Toronto defence held Coleman in check until the second half, throwing him for losses on six occasions.

The Argos missed several chances to pull out a victory in the fourth quarter when they moved to the Calgary three-yard line three times but came away with only a field goal.

DELIBERATE, SAYS DAY

Eagle Screams Over Sore Knee

TORONTO (CP) — Eagle Day, quarterback of Calgary Stampeders, has accused tackle Billy Shipp of Toronto Argonauts of deliberately trying to injure him in the Canadian Football League interlocking game Friday night.

Day blamed Shipp for a knee injury he suffered after five minutes of the second quarter. Day didn't return to action and is a doubtful starter for Monday afternoon's game in Montreal against the third-place Alouettes.

"Why would an old pro do a thing like that?" asked Day after rebuffing Shipp when the Toronto player tried to shake hands after the game. "The play was finished, the whistle had sounded and then Shipp, who had me by the foot, twisted it."

EAGLE DAY

Shipp admitted he had twisted Day's foot earlier, but challenged the Calgary quarterback's explanation of the incident.

"There was this big pileup and I had hold of him by the foot while I was lying on my back. Feet were thrashing all around and I turned over. I wasn't for letting go because if I do and he gets away I'm sure going to hear about it from my coach."

"Don't make anything out of this," he asked reporters.

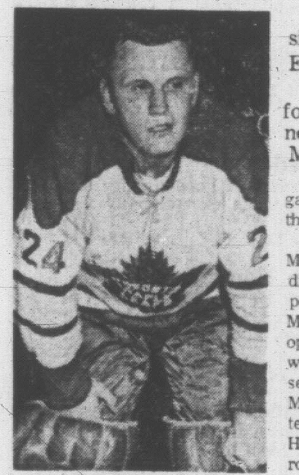
Struggle With Totems Test for Ed and Gary

Seattle Totems come to town tonight and the occasion could be an important one for Gary Holland and Ed Ehrenverth.

Totems and Victoria Maple Leafs, both preparing for the opening of the Western Hockey League season next weekend, tangle in an exhibition game at 8:30 on Memorial Arena ice.



MIKE BERRIDGE
. . . to Nelson

For Holland, it will be his first game as a regular member of the Leafs.

Holland and another rookie, Mike Berridge, were both bidding for the reserve goaltending position behind veteran Al Millar when coach Frank Mario opened training camp. This week Mario made his choice, sending Berridge to the Nelson Maple Leafs of the Western International League and adding Holland's name to the Victoria roster.

Although Mario intends to work Millar for at least half of tonight's game, he also expects to use Holland for a period or more.

DEBUT AS CENTRE

Ehrenverth, who performed as a winger after joining the Leafs late last season, was shifted to the pivot spot this week while Mario was trying to form a solid third forward line.

Working between Steve Witiuk and Dick Lamoureux, Ehrenverth has been a capable performer in the middle during workouts and could earn a regular berth at his new position.

HOTTEST TRIO

Bob Barlow, Mike Labadie and Milan Marcetta, the hottest trio in the Victoria camp, will form another forward line and John Sleaver will centre Lou Jankowski and Gordie Redahl on the other Leaf attacking unit.

Husky Aut Erickson is due back today from crop-gathering chores on his Alberta farm and will line up on defence with Bill Shvetz and the Hucul brothers, Fred and Sandy.

Leafs, who expect to receive a player or two from Toronto Maple Leafs next week, play another exhibition game Sunday at Spokane against the Jets and will play another Monday at Trail.

ARMSTRONG'S ADVICE: TAKE ESKS SERIOUSLY

EDMONTON—If you're wondering about the progress of Edmonton Eskimos' rebuilding chores, pay attention to what coach Neill Armstrong has to say:

"We can give anybody in Canada a battle right now."

The list includes B.C. Lions, who tonight face the Eskimos in a crucial Western Football Conference contest. The Esks, five points out of third place, have to win to keep their playoff hopes glimmering. And the Lions, tied with Saskatchewan for the last playoff berth, aren't "out of the woods" either.

The game will be telecast by CBC-TV, starting at 8 p.m.

SCORES THREE GOALS

Howe Isn't Performing Like Elder Statesman

By The Canadian Press

In a couple of weeks, Gordie Howe begins his 20th season as a National Hockey League player. But if opposing left wingers were expecting him to behave like an elder statesman, they can forget it.

The 37-year-old right winger put on quite a show Friday night as Detroit Red Wings edged Boston Bruins 4-3 in a pre-season exhibition game at London, Ont., scoring the first three Detroit goals and setting up the winner by Andy Bathgate.

And he did it in the absence of his usual sidekick, Alex Delvecchio. The smooth-skating Red Wing captain spent the day in hospital undergoing allergy tests.

Howe, who is five goals short of the 600 mark in regular-season play, has scored five times in Detroit's last two outings, finding the mark twice when the Wings tied Chicago Black Hawks 3-3 Tuesday night.

Johnny Bucyk scored twice in less than half a minute Friday as the Bruins rallied early in the third period. Murray Oliver was the other Boston marksman.

GET EASY WINS

Meanwhile, Montreal Canadiens and New York Rangers coasted to comfortable victories over minor-league opponents.

Two goals by Yvon Cournoyer sparked the Canadiens to a 7-3 decision over Houston Apollos, their Central Professional League farm club.

The Rangers visited Rochester Americans and drubbed the American League champions 8-3, humiliating their opponents by scoring on the only two occasions they had to play shorthanded.

Crucial Weekend For Juvenile Clubs

Sunday is the day of the "big collision" in the Vancouver Island Juvenile Football League.

Four teams are tied for first with 5-2, won-lost records. As the luck of the schedule-makers would have it, the four teams are engaged in crucial clashes on Victoria fields.

Nanaimo's tough Redmen will play Victoria Hornets at Macdonald Park while across town, at Carnarvon Park, JBAA Mustangs will tackle Oak Bay's Farmer Construction team.

In Sunday's other game, Cowichan Timbermen will visit the Raiders at Campbell River. Both teams are out of contention for playoff berths.

MAURY GETS DANCING DATE

STATELINE, Nev. (AP) — Maury Wills, Los Angeles Dodgers' base-stealing shortstop, won't be giving his legs a rest after the World Series ends.

He's been signed by a Lake Tahoe night club for a two-week, song-and-dance appearance.

Wills and other Dodgers made a night-club tour after the National League champions won the series in 1963.

SERIOUS DISCUSSION

Situation was serious today for Los Angeles Dodgers as manager Walt Alston (right) talks things over with southpaw Claude Osteen before third game of World Series. Osteen was Alston's choice to pitch against Minnesota Twins, who won first two games of best-of-seven series. (AP Wirephoto.)

MINOR INJURIES . . . . . . DON'T WORRY TWINS

Drysdale, Grant Go Sunday

(Times News Services)

LOS ANGELES — Minnesota's Jim (Mudcat) Grant and Don Drysdale of Los Angeles are scheduled to tangle again in Sunday's fourth game of the World Series.

That was the word from the respective baseball camps as the Twins and Dodgers headed into today's third game.

Grant was the winner and Drysdale the loser as the Twins opened the series with an 8-2 victory.

Minnesota manager Sam Mele refused to speculate on whom he would call if a fifth game is necessary. However, indications are it could be southpaw Jim Kaat.

Dodger manager Walt Alston said Sandy Koufax would "definitely" be the starter Monday if a fifth game is needed.

★ ★ ★

The Twins had two minor injuries and neither of them, Mele said, "are of any concern."

Tony Oliva, the American League batting champion for the second year in a row, had a slight pulled muscle in his right thigh. Bob Allison, whose fielding heroics helped the Twins make it two straight on Thursday, had a bruised right leg, suffered when he caught a sinking line drive by Dodger rookie second baseman Jim Lefebvre. But Allison insisted he could play.

For the manager of a club with its back to the wall, Alston did not seem too concerned.

"We've been coming back after we have been down all season," he pointed out. "And we've also come back after being down in the World Series, so there isn't any reason we can't do it again, especially now that we are back in our own park."

The first two games in the Twin Cities were won by the Twins, over Drysdale, 8-2, and Koufax, 5-1.

Edna Hay Tops Colwood Event

Edna Hay scored a net 76 to claim silver division honors in a ladies' medal round at Colwood Golf Club this week.

Thelma Cooper and Marg Lemery tied for bronze honors with 83s while Mrs. M. Cooksford, Janet Marshall and Bea Hagen tied for "C" honors with 88s.

LONDON (AP) — Sheffield United kept their one-point lead in English League soccer's First Division standings with 17 points today after a tough 1-0 away win over Northampton.

Liverpool, second in the standings last week, slumped to sixth place after losing 2-0 to Manchester United.

The result was a bad omen for Liverpool, which plays Juventus of Turin in a European Cup of Cup Winners' match at Liverpool Wednesday.

ARSENAL SECOND

Arsenal moved into second place with 16 points in the First Division standings, after a 2-1 defeat of Fulham.

The rest of the table leaders are Leeds, West Bromwich Albion and Stoke with 15 points each and Liverpool, 14 points.

George Best and Scottish ace Denis Law scored for Manchester United in its best home game of the season.

FANS FIGHT POLICE

An ugly incident also marred the match between Huddersfield Town and Manchester City at Huddersfield, where soccer fans stormed onto the field and fought with police after defensive play by both sides. The match ended in a goalless tie.

In London's big match of the day, Fulham, which started brightly against Arsenal, lost left back Barry Mealand with a fractured right ankle after 20 minutes.

John Samuels opened the scoring for Arsenal after 33 minutes with a powerful 30-yard shot. Dyson equalized for Fulham and the half-time score was 1-1.

POLICE ON FIELD

At Burnley, fireworks and a bottle were thrown on the field and a dozen policemen moved behind the goalmouths during a tense game in which Blackburn defeated Burnley 4-1.

Huddersfield still held its lead in the Second Division with 17 points from 12 games, followed by Southampton and Coventry, each with 15 points from 12 games.

FIGHT RESULTS

Vikings Beaten By Late Goals

Jim Middleton and Doug Couch scored goals late in the third period to spark All-Stars to a come-from-behind 6-5 victory over University Vikings in the Esquimalt Hockey League's annual all-star game at the Sports Centre Friday night.

After a scoreless first period, Vikings led, 3-2 after the second and were ahead, 5-4, with less than seven minutes to play.

Goalie Hurt As Canucks Thump Bucks

COQUITLAM — The Vancouver Canucks trampled the defending Western Hockey League champion Portland Buckaroos, 9-3, in an exhibition game here Friday night.

Howie Hughes and Ron Hutchison scored two goals each for the winners and singles went to Bryan Hextall, Ray Brunel, Dave Duke, Jack Evans and Phil Maloney. Con Madigan, Gerry Goyer and Doug Messier were Portland scorers.

Portland second goalie Rick Charron suffered a suspected broken ankle in a third-period pileup.

Owners Expect To Reduce List

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Major league baseball club owners will meet again Oct. 19 in Chicago in their efforts to select a successor to Commissioner Ford Frick.

The owners are not expected to come up with a new commissioner at the Chicago meeting, but plan to cut down the list of candidates.

SOCCER FINAL . . . . . . ON TAP MONDAY

'Pipeline' Paying Off

You'll have a hard time finding anybody in the Victoria and District Soccer League who appreciates the value of Victoria High School's soccer program than do George Cox and John Pickburn.

The manager and coach of first division Canadian Scottish Club are more than pleased with the production capabilities of their "pipeline" into Vic High.

The Scots go looking for possession of the McGavin Cup on the Royal Athletic Park turf Monday afternoon, and there's more than a suspicion that the "young legs" from Vic High have played a major role in getting Cox' crew into the final of the knockout competition.

When the Scots tackle Carl Pedersen's Luckies, at 2 p.m., Cox will have five Vic High grads in his lineup. All regulars, they are Ron Stubbings, Jack Magee, Marty Taylor, Oscar Valdal and Kees Roodbal.

Two first division clashes and three second division matches on Sunday round out the schedule.

Hourigans Kickers play Victoria West at Heywood Park while Brodies and Navy meet in Athletic Park in the first-division encounters. In the second division, Sidney faces Gorge at Beacon Hill, Wanderers and Vic West tangle at Windsor Park, and Esquimalt entertains University Vikings at Bullen Park.

VIEWS FINALLY BOW

Bays, Tyees Tied For School Lead

Oak Bay, the favorite and defending champion, is finding it difficult to pull away from rivals in the Inter-High Senior Soccer League.

The Bays won their fourth game in five starts Friday, blanking Claremont 3-0, but three rivals remain in striking range.

Arch-rival Victoria High Tyees remained tied with the Bays by defeating Mount View 5-2. Mount Douglas, which defeated Esquimalt 5-0, stands one point behind the co-leaders and the Views are fourth, two points behind the front-runners.

TWO FOR PETE

Tyees' conquest of Mount View sent the league's last unbeaten team tumbling to defeat. Victoria built up a 4-0 lead on a pair of goals by Rick Couch and singles by Palle Poulsen and John Pennington before Mount View got on the scoresheet.

American Team Keeps Ryder Cup

SOUTHPORT, England (AP)—Pro golfers from the United States retained the Ryder Cup today by swamping their British rivals in the day's singles.

The triumph that decided the matches was posted by Arnold Palmer who defeated Peter Butler 2 up. That gave the United States 16½ points. A total of 32 points can be scored under the present format.

It was the 13th victory for the Americans in this event, which started back in 1927 as a means of making match play popular with professionals. Britain has won three times, the last in 1957.

The Americans started the day ahead by two points, 9-7, as the result of foursome play Thursday and Friday over the Royal Birkdale course with its 7,037 yards wandering along the Irish Sea shoreline.

Friday's results:

Morning:

Bernard Hunt and Neil Coles defeated Julius Boros, Southern Pines, N.C., and Tony Lema, San Leandro, Calif., 1 up.

Don January, Dallas, Tex., and Tommy Jacobs, Denver, Colo., defeated Dave Thomas and George Will, 1 up.

Afternoon:

Alliss and O'Connor defeated Palmer and Marr, 2 up.

January and Jacobs defeated Thomas and Will, 1 up.

Canadian-Bred Armbro Flight Wins Futurity

PHOTO FINISH

O'Brien brought Armbro Flight from behind in the first heat to win in a photo finish and set most of the pace in the second mile dash, winning by one length.

Noble Victory finished second in both heats and Egyptian Candor was third both times, but earned the show spot in the second heat when Spud Coaltown broke stride at the finish.

Armbro Flight, a member of Canada's sports Hall of Fame, was held in third position in the grand circuit classic at the Lexington trots until the drive for home. The three-year-old filly took the lead with less than 40 yards to go.

LED EARLY

In the second heat, O'Brien sent Armbro Flight to the lead immediately, lost it briefly to Be Sweet in the first turn but took over for good as the field of eight swept into the backstretch.

Armbro Flight was timed in 1:59 3-5 Friday for the first heat and was one-fifth second slower the second time around.

She paid $4.20, $2.20 and $2.20 in the first heat and $3 and $2.20, with win-placing betting only, in the second dash.

The batting entry of Noble Victory, Egyptitn Candor and Marengo Hanover returned $2.20 and $2.20 in the opening heat and $2.20 in the second.

TV TASTE 'ROTTEN'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Television is breeding contempt for law and order at a time when crime is increasing, city prosecutor Stewart McMorran said Thursday.

In a speech to a service club he singled out the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. for its "rotten taste" concerning a skit about the Pope.

He also mentioned television programs in which bad man Jesse James appears to be a "good guy" and crime czar Al Capone becomes a man who "wasn't so bad at heart."

"If adults don't show respect for institutions and positions of leadership, children can't be expected to respect them either."

Autonomy In Quebec Opposed

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Robarts of Ontario acknowledged Quebec's special status within Confederation Friday but at the same time made it clear Ontario will oppose any movement by Quebec towards economic autonomy.

In a major speech to a seminar of Ontario - Quebec newspaper editors, Mr. Robarts provided a point-by-point breakdown of his government's present thinking on the problems confronting the Canadian nation.

He intertwined the vagaries of biculturalism with the hard realities of economics, saying a two - language country beset with unco-ordinated provincial economic policies could hardly expect to survive.

"I firmly believe that the people of this province are prepared to go a long way in the recognition of the rights and privieges of our French-Canadian compatriots in terms of their language and culture," Mr. Robarts said.

"But I doubt very much whether Ontario can accept a federal system which is not based on the principle of a single national economy, and, furthermore, a single national government which has control over that economy."

DISPUTES CONTENTION

He also disputed any contention that the Quebec government is responsible for the cultural welfare of French-speaking persons who leave Quebec.

Premier Lesage said in Quebec City he is "happy" that Premier Robarts recognizes the existence of Canada's two main cultural groups.

The Quebec premier took no issue with Mr. Robarts' statements, not even with the assertion that Ontario does not believe the government of Quebec in any way represents the interests of French-speaking residents of other provinces.

"It shouldn't be thought that Quebec wants to consider the French minorities of the other provinces as colonies," Mr. Lesage said.

Despite his affirmation of federal economic supremacy, Mr. Robarts let it be known his government will press for a greater share of tax revenue. He maintained the provinces need more money to pay for services they must provide under the existing division of federal-provincial responsibilities.

ARTIST AT ODDS WITH LOCAL ESTABLISHMENT

Round-About-Road to Success, Money

By DESMOND BILL

Robert Wood worked at a lot of things before he found out he should have stayed with what he started.

When he finally did go back to painting his friends thought he was mad.

"You'll end up starving in a little garret," they predicted when he gave up a $1,000-a-month job in radio.

He has ended up with two garrets: one is an 80-foot by 20-foot studio and the other studio measures 40 by 60. And he is not starving.

After only eight years as a professional painter he is one of the best established artists in this area. But he doesn't look or act the part.

Miner, Soldier

He could pass for a radio station manager, an army officer or a miner, all of which he has been. The only thing one might not mistake him for is a Baptist preacher which he also once was.

His paintings now sell well back east and he has many students here in Victoria. But he is decidedly at odds with the local artistic establishment.

ROBERT WOOD PAINTS WHAT HE WANTS

Partly it is due to his success: the fact he makes money and doesn't lean on Canada Council grants. But also it is because his art is representational at a time when abstract art is in vogue.

The "arrogant pretence" of the abstract painters and the ready acceptance of their work by the public is a source of wonder to Wood. And this is not because he is unable to execute abstract paintings.

Mocks Abstracts

For a short time he "played around" with abstract art and sold several paintings under the name of R. Du Bois.

"I painted the abstracts to show my students the mockery of it all. But then I sold what I had done to people who had more money than taste," he explains.

This is typical of the matter-of-fact approach that Wood has to art. He is businesslike about it and he is good enough that he does not have to affect the mannerisms and poses that some painters think is necessary.

But although practical he is uncompromising in his work and is not affected by what may be currently fashionable. He does not paint to please his audience. He finds calendar art—"pretty little ducks in a little pond"—to be as "distasteful" as abstract.

He sums up his attitude, "I don't paint what I think people will like. I paint what I want and I let the public pick up what I'm doing."

Staunch Baptist

Wood started painting as a child in Toronto. He won a scholarship to an art school but his parents were staunch Baptists and it was unthinkable for him to take up an art career.

Instead, he studied for three years in a Baptist seminary, leaving to join the army at the outbreak of the Second World War. He transferred to the British forces, became a commando and served in Europe, North Africa and the Far East.

He lost his vocation to the ministry in the army, got married and returned to Canada to do odd jobs until he got into radio as an announcer. He was a boomer, moving from station to station across the country, until finally he became station manager in Dauphin, Man. From there he came to Victoria where he worked one year at CKDA.

He quit one day when "I got hell from the station manager, from some listeners and an advertiser. I went home and told my wife I was fed up. She said, 'Why don't you quit and open a studio'?"

He had resumed his painting when he got out of the army. Says he, "I was not a dabbler, a weekend artist. I was always serious about it. I painted or I literally got sick. And eventually it became an obsession with me.

I agonized a long time about trying to make it in painting. And all the time I kept making bigger money in radio which made it harder to give up that life. But finally I cut the knot that night."

Wife Worker

His friends wondered what had happened to him and for a while it looked as if their worst predictions might come true. He and his wife lived for two years on a 38-foot boat moored at the old Oak Bay boathouse. His wife worked but he had no students, no reputation and no sales. He helped support himself by taking students for 50 cents a lesson.

In two years he managed to open his own studio and then he became an instructor for the Greater Victoria School Board. Now he has two studios at 1121 Vancouver Street and gives only private lessons.

His paintings sell steadily but he works erratically. He is always on the lookout for subjects and admits that in addition to making sketches on the spot he sometimes photographs scenes on a color slide for later reference.

"Why shouldn't artists make use of such a technical aid?"

In the Mood

He sometimes takes a long time to paint a subject. He does his best work when he is in the mood to paint, he says, and he never knows when that will occur.

One night recently he had five students. When they left around 10 p.m. a friend called and they sat talking over a couple of drinks until 1 a.m. Wood was about to leave with the friend, then decided to start work on a painting he had been brooding and worrying about.

He worked through the night on it and it was completed by dawn. Then he went home.

He claims that he isn't a frustrated man any more and has no need now of such distractions as diving and piloting that he used when he was in the radio business.

Arthur Mayse

To a preacher's kid in a little town (lost on the prairie, the tallest building the grain elevator down by the tracks) Thanksgiving meant more than just a hymn called 'Bringing in the Sheaves.'

Those Manitoba farmers didn't merely sing about the harvest. They brought the wheat-sheaves, saved golden after the threshers, binders and separaters had done their work, to the church with its steeple and one precious stained glass window.

They came on the Friday night before Thanksgiving Sunday, by wagon, with their wives and pigtailed daughters and gopher-snaring sons. With them in the wagons were the sheaves, and pumpkins orange as a harvest moon, and corn in the withered husks, and apples with names like Northern Spy, and Russet and Snow.

With these, and with parsnips and Swede turnips, potatoes by the bushel and carrots in bunches tied with a twist of binder twine, they decorated the church.

In one of the wagons was a grain-fed turkey for the minister—who took half his salary in kind—and that noble bird was part of Thanksgiving, too.

★ ★ ★

It still is, at our place, although the turkeys we buy are smaller and pre-plucked, with two or three times the meat of those rangy prairie fowl.

We believe in keeping holidays as they should be kept; and of all such, Thanksgiving is the year's mellowest.

Christmas and New Year's are gayer, noisier and more exciting. Easter has its own quality and sense of earth in ressurrection. But Thanksgiving is a pleasant, calm sort of festival, the sort that rarely wearies the cook or, if shared with friends, demands of the host much more than an eye to the glasses and a well-sharpened carving knife.

When the first fireplace fire of the season is burning comfortably against the back-log, there is even time to give thanks, in one's own thoughts, for the good that has come our way, and the troubles that have been spared us.

Like most couples who try as best they can to make and keep a home, Win and I have had our share of both. But we have learned to distinguish authentic trouble from the synthetic sort; and we agree that any tallying-up of blessings would show us substantially in the black.

★ ★ ★

Not, of course, that we indulge in any such cool and detailed bookkeeping. I think to do so would be to cast a dare in fortune's teeth.

To be alive and together, to watch our son and daughter choosing their paths with intelligence and purpose, to be where we wish to be . . . those would be gifts enough, even if no others had been given us.

Enough? Those, by themselves, are so wonderful that even to mention them carries an inevitable suggestion of smugness.

As for security, an intangible that has no existence in fact, we tend to leave it out of our thinking. Our generation was born under a sword, and has learned to take matters as they come.

It is the young who have never seen the sword fall, and the professional worriers, who make security their prime goal.

However, no preachments. They don't belong to a holiday weekend, and to this one least of all, and I'd be better occupied in hunting a few armloads of fireplace wood.

We have a few sticks of Sooke alder left from last winter. If that's not enough, there are chunks in the woods, and fir bark on the beach, gifts of a land so good and so generous that we who live at peace in it are earth's luckiest.

And that too is a thought for Thanksgiving.

Guided Tours Set For Francis Park

The nature house in Francis Park will be open 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. over the long weekend.

Guided tours along the park's trails to see fungi growth will be led by Victoria naturalist Freeman King.

Wound Up Or Plugged In?

Go-It-Alone Move Claimed Clouding View Royal Issue

By JACQUES ROUSSEAUX

An Esquimalt councillor today termed "futile" a late move by a group of View Royal residents to incorporate as a township rather than amalgamate with the municipality.

"It's a shame any disturbance should be created now just prior to the release of the amalgamation study."

Coun. Argyle said the group's move will only confuse the issue.

"Only the facts from the report will give a clear picture as to whether we should amalgamate or not," he said.

The amalgamation study was sponsored jointly by Esquimalt and View Royal. Retired deputy minister of municipal affairs B. C. Bracewell will release his report about the middle of next week.

A group of View Royal residents said earlier residents had not been fully informed of the advantages of incorporation.

Spokesman Dr. R. W. Morgan, 2946 Tillicum, said that although the group has no official status "it speaks for many people."

Dr. Morgan said the group "objects to amalgamation."

"There is an even larger group that wants to remain as presently organized, but of course that is not possible," he said. "We must organize ourselves and tell people the other side of the picture."

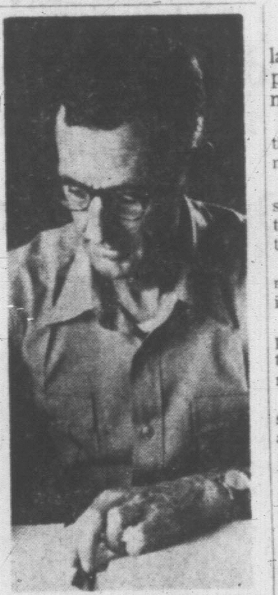
He said a pamphlet will be issued to show it would pay us not to amalgamate.

Dr. Morgan says the group has analyzed the area's budgets for the past 10 years and "we have projected the figures for the future and can prove we can support ourselves as a town."

"We like our residential setup. We don't want to become an industrial area and we don't need to," he said.

The group points out that North Saanich has incorporated on its own.

"So why shouldn't View Royal do it."



SAVE THE CHILDREN FUND administrator from Korea, Ray Dawson, will speak Wednesday at 2:30 p.m. at Centennial United Church Hall. Mr. Dawson's address will be titled "A Far Cry."

BRITAIN TOO, SAYS PAULING

'United States Pressuring Canada To Ensure Support in Viet War'

By BOB DONAHUE

Economic pressure from the United States is being brought to bear on Canada to ensure her support of the war in Viet Nam, Dr. Linus Pauling said here today.

Dr. Pauling, twice a Nobel Prize winner (peace and chemistry), said in an interview although he did not have details, the pressure would involve support of the Canadian dollar.

"It is most certainly coming from Washington," he said, "and the same thing is true of Britain in terms of support for the pound."

Dr. Pauling is a strong critic of United State's actions in Viet Nam.

"There are things going on in Viet Nam which make me deeply ashamed of the United States," the American chemist said.

★

He said one of these things is the U.S. government has refused to negotiate a settlement with the National Liberation Front, the political arm of the Communist Viet Cong in South Viet Nam.

"On the other hand the NLF's refusal to negotiate unless American troops are withdrawn is equally unrealistic.

"The first step toward effecting at least a cease-fire would be for all the governments and interested parties to begin a negotiated settlement."

Dr. Pauling said a world without war is a certainty in the future but first all nations must realize disputes must be settled by negotiation and political settlement rather than military might.

"We are suffering a set-back this year with the war in Viet Nam and the dispute between India and Pakistan," he said, "but there has been over the years a steady move toward abolition of war and development of world law to settle disputes.

★

"One recent favorable development was Pope Paul's speech to the United Nations which supported the abolition of war.

"We are making slow progress year after year in the direction of world peace."

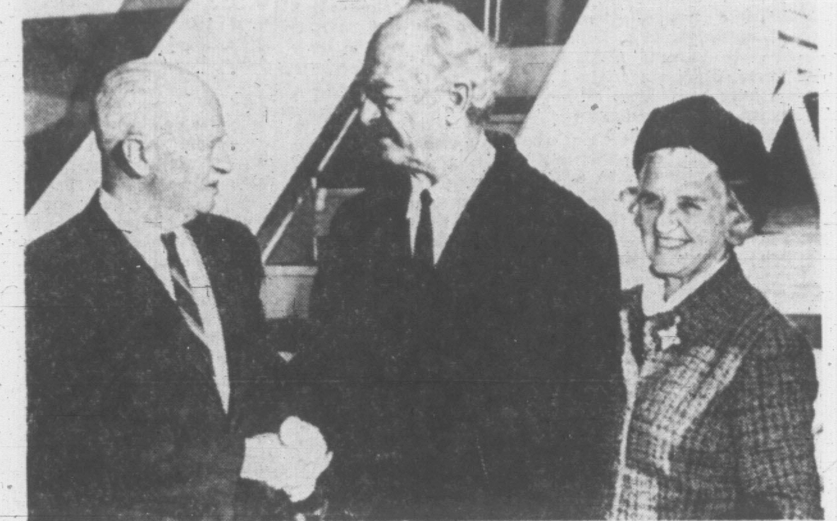
He said he believed the United States had reached a peak in its trend toward a militaristic attitude throughout the world.

"I wouldn't be so much of a pessimist to say it will get worse before it gets better. Perhaps President Johnson will change and the situation will be different tomorrow."

Dr. Pauling supported the idea of demonstrations and civil disobedience by peace groups and ban the bombers.

"This is an effective and desirable way for the public to express an opinion," he said.

Dr. Pauling will speak on the world quest for peace at 8 tonight in the Gordon Head gymnasium of the University of Victoria.



NOBEL PRIZE WINNER Dr. Linus Pauling and his wife were greeted on their arrival at Victoria International Airport this morning by Brock Chisholm, former director of the World Health Organization, and a delegation of University of Victoria students. Five Drivers Pay $1,500 For Drinking

Each was fined $300 or a total of $1,500 and prohibited from driving anywhere in Canada for four months by Magistrate J. A. Byers.

HIT CURB

He admitted to police he hit a curb on the Four-Mile Hill on the Old Island Highway.

Ernie Norris, 1375 Craigflower, was also nabbed by Esquimalt police. He was chased a mile and a half at speeds up to 65 m.p.h.

Police said he was driving on the wrong side of the road as he crossed Point Ellice Bridge.

.23 READING

When stopped he told police he hadn't had anything to drink, but a breath test produced a .23 reading.

Edward Brown, 1229 Oscar, hit the rear of a car stopped for a light at Shelbourne and Bay Streets, causing $75 damage and sending Gale Wilkin, 19, of 1560 Trans-Canada Highway, to hospital with back injuries.

Jack King, 3885 Cedar Hill Cross Road, was also involved in a rear-end collision.

Court was told he clipped the rear of a car at Government and Yates, and continued into the intersection narrowly missing another auto southbound on Government.

Cornelius S. Dyck, HMCS Jonquiere, was seen by police weaving as he drove on Blanshard, Yates and Douglas Streets Friday evening.

Ask The Times

Q. What amount is one allowed to have untaxable in a savings account?—A. G. B.

A. You aren't taxed on your total savings—just the interest, says a local bank. And any interest accumulated is taxable.

If a person earns more than $100 in interest, the bank is compelled by law to advise the federal government and the depositor.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

Probe Figure Charged

He was remanded without plea to Tuesday by Magistrate J. A. Byers.

The charge alleges Billett early today did "unlawfully and wilfully obstruct Douglas Wilson, a peace officer, while he was in the lawful execution of his duty."

Bail was set at $250.

Speaking to bail, Prosecutor Peter Birkett said the Crown does not allege any physical harm caused by the accused.

No details were given.

• • •

Billett this month initiated an investigation into alleged corruption at HMC Dockyard through a series of letters to associate defence minister Leo Cadieux.

He also charged inefficiency, attempted bribery and hinted at theft of materials.

Thursday he reported to city police his home at 404 Sherk Street had been broken into, ransacked and documents and a camera containing exposed film stolen.

The items, he said, were "concrete evidence" of his allegations of corruption at the naval base.

Trigger-Happy Person Sought by Police

Constable Ralph Warren said he believed the shot may have been fired from as much as a mile away.

The bullet punched a three-inch hole in the plate glass and ricocheted on to the window sill.

No one realized the building had been fired on until the bullet was found by school teacher John Boel, 37, this morning.

Son-in-law of apartment block owner, Mrs. Freda Lyal, who lives on the premises, said he had gone over from his home at 1280 Queensbury to clean up the shattered glass.

SALUTE to International Co-operation Year will be presented in McPherson Playhouse Thursday at 8:15 p.m. Four of the 100 costumed performers are introduced here by Prof. Harry Hill of the University of Victoria who will MC the production. From left, they are Mrs. Lee Forbes, representing Mexico; Rolf Gilstein (Norway), Kathryn Rhodes (Scotland), and Mrs. A. Gilstein (Norway). (Jim Ryan Photo.)

Young Visitor With Roots Here Compares Victoria With England

By DINA STEWART

"The architecture, even the people have so much more individuality, more scope, than the 'Olde England'. The only thing similar is the rain—but there sure isn't as much of it as there is back home!"

The petite blonde visitor from London, England, can almost call Victoria home. She practically has a ready-made family here. After all, the city has a mountain named after her great-great-grandfather, and her great-great-uncle just happened to be a premier of British Columbia.

"I spent the first three weeks of my stay here at the provincial archives, trying to find out what relation I am to 'em!" says Liz. (The gentlemen in question were the late Sir William Tolmie and the late Hon. Simon Fraser Tolmie.)

She's also managed to see a lot of the city in those weeks.

But Liz knew practically all about Victoria before she even set eyes on it.

"Back home," she says, "my mother keeps a sort of "open house" for Victoria boys who are travelling in Europe. It started when the son of Mr. and Mrs. Humphries went on a European tour when he was in university.

"He and a friend dropped by to see Mom—Mrs. Humphries is a sort of cousin "once-removed" of mine. Mom asked if they'd like to stay with us—and ever since then it's been quite a tradition. There is always someone from Victoria staying in the guest room."

Liz has always wanted to come to Canada, but she took a rather round-about route getting here. First stop was Paris where she studied French for six months.

Then she left to hitch-hike over the continent. "Hitch-hiking appears to be the only way to see Europe these days." She landed in Rome—and ended up staying for three years.

When in Rome, do as the Romans do. Liz learned Italian. "To keep from starving, I taught English privately to three students. You can live pretty well on £2 per hour—at least I did."

She also did a lot of social work in the slum district of Rome. "Most of the time I was sent to baby-sit for mothers who had to work. Many of the people in the tenements were from the south of Italy who migrated north so they wouldn't have to work—just live off the welfare department of the city.

"Whenever one of the social workers arrived, they'd hide their television sets, radios and appliances. They used the money given to them for food to pay the instalments on their cars.

"Many people say there is terrific discrimination between tourists and residents when buying products in Roman shops — that they charge double. Sure they do, but it's only for the sake of argument. They love haggling and fighting to get the price down!"

In Austria, Liz learned to ski—"not very well but I learned. I'm just waiting for winter to try the slopes on Green Mountain up-Island. I understand I can't ski on my great-great-grandfather's mountain—snow is a bit foreign around these parts!"

She also likes sailing—"I can't do that too well, either, but I don't get seasick!"

Liz is a Beatle fan, too. "They seem to be a lot more popular over here than back home," she says about the mop-tops. "In England, there are a lot of smaller groups that are popular—not just one big one.

"I think the best view I had of them was riding on top of a double-decker bus.

"They were on their way to a Christmas show and the view from upstairs was just perfect—all hair. I almost saw them in a show, too, but there were only two tickets and I lost drawing straws with my sisters."

Miss Liz Tolmie has decided to extend her visit in Victoria—to a year or so. The 22-year-old visitor is pictured on the stairs in the Norfolk Road home of Mr. and Mrs. D. G. J. Humphries, where she is now making her home.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Fabulous Qualities In Synthetic Fibres

By Penny Saver

One of the most important parts of a house's furnishings is the draperies . . . they can either make or break a room. Badly-hung drapes make the whole room look askew, but tasteful, well-tailored drapes lend a room that "finished" look.

Of course, if you find the right material for your drapes, you've half the battle won already.

There's a wonderful type of Scandinavian fabric selling in a local store which may be just the answer to many people's drapery problems.

It looks and feels like very sheer wool, but is a synthetic fibre, developed recently in Europe. The beauty of it is partly that it needs no lining, since the loveliest effect is obtained when light filters softly through the fabric.

The colors themselves I found breathtaking—blues, greens, reds and browns—some muted and some quite gay. They are striped, but indistinctly, so the all-over effect is one of beautiful hues softly fading into one another.

Coming in a 59-inch width (a foot wider than most drapery materials), it sells for $4.95 a yard. A slightly heavier type of the fabric, 47 inches wide, is $5.75 a yard.

A second lovely fabric I found is a very practical mixture of fibres—85 per cent cotton, 15 per cent rayon. Its chief virtues are that it is very strong and absolutely colorfast. Although lining isn't necessary with this fabric either, it can be used, as lining usually makes drapes hang better and lends them extra protection.

Colors again are marvellous—and blended in a wonderful array of stripes, checks, plaids and floral designs. Not just for drapes, this material could be used for bedspreads and curtains.

I even started getting ideas about dresses (at-home skirts and hostess gowns) from it. Width is 53 inches, and it sells for $4.95 and $5.50 a yard.

If you are human, they just might Ruin your posture and figure, too,
And make you look like you are through.

Round shoulders and drooping posture not only cause fatigue, but damage the silhouette. The head protrudes and the bust sinks into the rib cage, shortening the distance between the ribs and the waistline. If you have round shoulders or the tendency to slump, why not take preventive or corrective exercises? Lie on your back on a table with your head hanging over the edge of the table. Roll up a towel and place it under your shoulders. Raise your arms upward and backward, letting them hang over the edge of the table and stretch back and down with them. Raise the arms and head, lower them and stretch backward, and continue, slowly.

This Afternoon's Ceremony

WHITE AND GOLD FLOWERS

"The Twenty-Third Psalm" was sung by the best man, Bill Shand during this afternoon's ceremony in St. Matthias Church, which united Donna May White and his brother, Douglas J. L. Shand, in marriage.

White chrysanthemums were at the altar and similar flowers in white and gold tones decorated the church when Rev. Angus Cameron, assisted by Canon A. H. Cummings, Vancouver, heard marriage vows exchanged between the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack W. White and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan F. Shand of Vancouver. Mr. White gave his daughter in marriage.

A lace overlay topped the fitted bodice of the peau de soie gown worn by the bride. The bodice had a jewel neckline and bracelet-length sleeves. Similar lace extended in a panel down the front of the floor-length skirt. Her jewelry was a gold wrist watch, gift of the groom. Her two-tier shoulder-length veil, styled with a scalloped edge starred with pearl insets, misted from a lace wedding-ring headpiece. Red Talisman roses and ivy were in her bouquet.

The Misses Mary and Margaret White were bridesmaids for their sister in A-line gowns of peacock blue peau de soie, complemented with matching headpieces edged with toning veils, and bouquets of gold chrysanthemums.

J. F. Drennan proposed the toast to his niece.

A chocolate brown wool suit with leather accessories en tone, beige hat and corsage of yellow roses, was the choice of the new Mrs. Shand for travelling on honeymoon to California.

November Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Buan of Wakaw, Sask., announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Helen Yvonne, to Mr. Alexander James Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Anderson, 3145 Doncaster Avenue, Victoria. The wedding will take place on Saturday, Nov. 13, at 6:30 p.m., in St. Joseph's Church on Burnside Road.

BE SMART—

Long ago we prayed for a lovely, frilly blouse that was fastened, someway, to its own slip so that the twain would never be separated, at least as long as were out on the town. Well, it's here . . . in black lace over nude, with button front for decollete or not.

DENOON-ORMOND VOWS

Garden Forms Setting For Wedding Service

The garden of "La Broquerie," the Seaview Road home of Mr. and Mrs. James Ormond, was the setting for the recent wedding of their daughter, Miss Penny Ormond, and Scott Denoon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Denoon of Calgary, Alta.

The bride walked down a red carpet bordered by late summer flowers, which led to an altar, placed under oak trees and flanked by baskets of red and white gladioli. Mr. Ormond gave his daughter in marriage.

Rev. A. J. Mowatt, RCN, chaplain of the Pacific Coast Command, officiated at the afternoon ceremony. "The Wedding Prayer" and "The Lord's Prayer" were sung by Mrs. Donald Kyle to organ accompaniment.

The bride's full-skirted, floor-length gown of white peau de soie was highlighted by lace appliques on the bodice. Her bouffant veil misted from a small white pill box headpiece, accented with an emerald droplet, a gift of the groom. Red and white carnations were in her cascade bouquet.

Matron of honor Mrs. Neal Henderson, sister of the bride, and bridesmaid Miss Jenny Dark chose bell-skirted gowns of embossed taffeta in emerald green. Toning rose headpieces held their small wisp veils, and they carried bouquets of red and white carnations.

Best man was Don Menzies.

At the reception, held in the garden and home of the bride's parents, a three-tier wedding cake decorated with yellow roses and tulle centred the bridal table. A buffet supper was served, and accordion music was provided by Douglas Goldsmith.

Allan Peters proposed the toast in both French and English to his niece.

For travelling the new Mrs. Denoon donned beige wool dress and taupe coat with fox collar. With them she wore matching accessories and a green orchid corsage.

Waste not tears that made a desert bloom or the dream no prison could contain.

Buy Dutch bulbs this fall.

A young Persian, Ferhad, fell in love with the lovely maiden, Shirin. But Shirin spurned the young man. Broken-hearted, Ferhad wandered into the desert and wept bitter tears. The gods took pity on him and wherever each tear fell—a lovely tulip sprang up. The first ever seen. Remember Ferhad this fall.

All Cornelius van Baerle wanted was to grow a black tulip.* But, accused of friendship with traitors, he was clapped into prison. There, he entrusted his precious bulb to Rosa, the jailer's lovely daughter. Enter it, he told her, in Holland's first black tulip contest. Cornelius won the contest and the girl. Justice also triumphed. Turned out he was innocent. The absent-minded tulip-lover had wrapped his bulb in a letter which vindicated him. Remember Cornelius and Rosa this fall.

Remember, too—these three words: "Imported from Holland." Flower bulbs from Holland are the best. They're easy to plant. All you do is dig a hole; drop in a bulb, right side up; add a few handfuls of earth; water and walk away whistling. When spring comes, pick a tulip, daffodil or hyacinth for your beloved. He (or she) will love the brilliance of tulips; the beauty of the daffodil; the fragrance of the hyacinth. We Thank Thee, Lord

Inspired by the message of Thanksgiving, so eloquently expressed in Chardin's "Saying Grace," photographer Bill Halkett offers his own modern-day interpretation of the old master. Seeming to portray the prayers that are in all our hearts this Thanksgiving Weekend are Mrs. J. W. Andresen and her two small daughters, 19-month-old Danni and six-year-old Jamie. The setting may be modern but the thoughts and belief are ageless.

For parents who walked in the paths that You taught them
And, doing so, brought us to know Thee well;
For friends who failed not whenever we sought them,
But helped us our misgivings to expel:
For husband true, and children strong but tender,
Whose loving smiles can wrap one's world in splendor—
We thank Thee, Lord.

For all the beauty which you've laid before us,
From tiny flower to mighty ocean's roar:
To rise and hear the birds' joy-throbbing chorus
And smell the fragrant blossoms at one's door;
To know, of these, there's no restrictive measure,
That Thou hast given us a boundless treasure—
We thank Thee, Lord.

To have the chance to play a part in shaping
The world to which our children will be heirs;
To know, some day, the future that we're making
Will come to man in free and equal shares:
To make mistakes and thereby learn compassion,
Enabling us some other's dreams to fashion—
We thank Thee, Lord. P.D.

Visitors to the Louvre in Paris never fail to stop and admire Chardin's "Saying Grace," painted in the latter part of the 18th century. It strikes a responsive cord in all who have known the joy of family life.

Skin-soothing and softening oils and revitalizing fragrance of moss, herbs and flowers in a few drops of Abano bath oil quickly turns a bath into a beauty treatment.

IN STEP WITH STYLE — By NONA DAMASKE

Nothing Can Beat a Daily Tub As a Boost to a Woman's Morale

Some people think that the women of North America are bathing away their beauty. There are still a few diehards who feel that daily immersion in hot water will create a wrinkled little old lady years ahead of schedule.

Damaske

"Just an old wives tale" . . . is the answer from a local survey—doctors, cosmeticians and women with beautiful complexions all recommend daily bathing.

Women rate a tub bath over a shower . . . and even the few shower devotees agree that their twice-a-week complete grooming sessions include a good tubbing.

The principal stumbling block to a leisurely bathing session is shortage of time. There just doesn't seem to be enough hours in the day of a busy woman for all the extra things the advice-givers seem to feel are necessary to the image of today's successful woman.

However, a daily bath is something every woman, who is interested in good grooming, will find time for.

The hour of the daily bath must be decided by each individual . . . to reap the utmost benefit from your daily bath it should be a relaxing and pleasant interlude.

Women in business seem to prefer a morning tub on work days but switch to a later part of the day on weekends. Women with small children try for their quiet tubbing during afternoon nap time. A few highly-strung types said they bathe before retiring to relieve a tendency to insomnia.

Believe it or not, there are many things that can be included in this refreshing respite, which will save time in other areas of the day.

It is an excellent time to lubricate the face and neck with a good cream . . . apply lavishly before stepping into the tub and remove and rinse just before you step out.

A scalp massage is more beneficial when you are in a relaxed, warm, steamy atmosphere . . . just massage the scalp with your fingertips. Clean your nails and push back cuticles, remove polish if it is time. Filing should be done before tubbing as you cannot file nails successfully if they are damp and soft.

Leg and under-arm hair may be removed comfortably while in the tub. A little reading can be included during the quiet soaking period. A small, easy-to-handle book, which will not cause a panic if it takes a dunking is a good choice. Personal experience has proven that a book read in the tub inevitably takes a plunge. I find that week-old TV guides have articles which are about the correct reading length, the book handles easily and it is no great loss if it gets soaked beyond reading.

The dress you are about to wear may be hung in the bathroom and will, in the steamy atmosphere shed any light wrinkles . . . easier and quicker than pressing.

What you put in your tub water or use on your body following the bath is entirely a matter of what most pleases YOU. Try bubbles, oil or crystals in the water . . . use oil, body lotion or powder on your skin. You will find the preparation which is most suitable for you and have fun experimenting at the same time.

Attractive, colorful surroundings are an important part of this feeling of relaxed well-being . . . visit the BATH SHOP at your favorite store and purchase an attractive bathtub head-rest, a gay accessory tray, a colorful friction mitt or set of gorgeous towels.

The once-a-week trek to the tub on Saturday night is long past, it is now a daily dunk for daintiness.

SHIRLEY OF COLONY

FOR THOSE WHO THINK YOUNG

Many ladies I talk to often think that their usefulness to society ends when their children leave home. Having run little businesses (and a HOME is definitely a business where Mother is purchasing agent, chancellor of the exchequer, psychologist and just plain taxi-driver), they tend to feel, when these active years are over that they do not have the qualifications to enter the business world, say after forty years of age. But HOME-SELLING is a different matter. Everything a woman has accomplished in the early years only makes her understanding of the home-selling field "second nature to her now." Having coped with the hundreds of household problems, budgeted the entire income, selected suitable areas for schooling and family activities, she has acquired an education that is invaluable in HOME SALES. She has the understanding that comes from actual experience. This is not to say that younger women haven't these qualifications in abundance, but they don't seem to doubt their abilities as do some ladies who are over forty. Our sales ladies at COLONY HOME SALES, whether they are twenty-six or sixty, bring these natural qualifications to the home-buying and home-selling public. Call COLONY HOME SALES LTD., the firm that sells "from the woman's point of view."

Apro-Edge Wedding Today

Garden City United Church was the setting for a quiet wedding this afternoon, when Rev. H. R. Whitmore heard marriage vows exchanged between Patricia Diane Edge and Paul Anthony Apro.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Edge, 4121 Carey Road, and the groom is the son of Paul Apro of Zurich, Switzerland.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a gown of white organza over taffeta, styled with a bodice of Chantilly lace, which featured sleeves ending in lily points. Her veil of scalloped lace misted from a headpiece of three nylon roses and she carried a white Bible, topped with an orchid.

Pete Issalson was best man.

WELSH RAREBIT

One tablespoon butter, 2 tablespoons ale or milk, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 1 teaspoon cold water, 1⅓ cups grated, old Cheddar cheese (about 4 ounces), dash salt, pepper and cayenne, 4 slices toast.

Heat butter and ale or milk until butter is melted. Mix mustard to a smooth paste with water and add to ale. Stir in cheese over a very low heat, until it softens to a creamy mixture. Mixture should be hot but not bubbling. Season with salt, pepper and cayenne.

Spread mixture on toast and broil 3-inches from heat for a few seconds until very lightly browned. Serve immediately. Makes four servings.

Genn-Murton Vows Are Exchanged In St. Luke's Anglican Church

A floor-length gown of white rose brocade, which she made herself, was worn by Nancy Constance Murton when she exchanged vows with Denis Michael Genn in St. Luke's Anglican Church this afternoon.

The gown featured a short jacket with a high round neckline and elbow-length sleeves. A detachable chapel train was fastened at the waistline with a tie bow. Her four-tier butterfly veil misted from a headpiece of two organza roses. She carried a cascade of white chrysanthemums with feathered red carnations and tulle en tone. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls and a gold bracelet watch, gifts of the groom.

The church was decorated with chrysanthemums and carnations in red and white tones when Archdeacon C. E. F. Wolff heard vows uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest F. Murton, 316 Uganda Avenue, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Genn, 3915 Persimmon Drive. Mr. Murton gave his daughter in marriage.

In floor-length gowns of red peau de soie, made by the bridesmaid, Miss Colleen Datty, were the bride's attendants, Mrs. W. G. Empey, matron of honor, and Miss Datty. Their gowns were topped with jackets of white lace over red peau de soie, with high necklines and elbow-length sleeves. They wore floral headpieces and carried bouquets of white chrysanthemums. Jewelry was crystal droplets, gifts of the bride.

John MacConnachie was best man and guests were ushered to their pews by Robin Griffiths and Colin Quail. Mr. R. B. Edwards proposed the toast to the bride at the reception following in the Colonial Inn, where the bride and groom cut a three-tier wedding cake made by the groom's mother.

Leaving on a honeymoon motoring trip to California, the bride wore a turquoise and green wool suit with black and white accessories, and a corsage of white carnations.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. J. Phillips, great-uncle of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. R. Seymour of Vancouver, and Mr. and Mrs. John Rigear of Lillooet, B.C.

All Work And No Play—

EDMONTON (CP)—A teacher's social life may have a direct influence on how well Johnny does at school, says a University of Alberta researcher, who suggests that better schools result when teachers have fun together socially.

"Schools that produce high examination results tend to be characterized by strong social relationships among the teachers," said Dr. J. H. M. Andrews, in the Alberta Teachers' Association's Council of School Administration Bulletin.

"If this is the case it becomes important for principals to encourage strong friendships among staff members."

His finding, based on a study of 165 Alberta schools, is that the relationship of teachers to each other has about the strangest influence on pupil achievement of all the factors that affect a teacher's performance.

Principals who try to push their teachers, either by industrious example or "straw bossing," are not effective in increasing pupil learning, Dr. Andrews said.

Dr. Andrews found teachers in elementary schools have the least to do with each other socially.

He says they are typically women who centre their social lives outside the school rather than with their fellow teachers.

Rented Room to Lord Snowdon

IN ON ROYAL ROMANCE

WASHINGTON—Those Americans who are lucky enough to meet Princess Margaret and Lord Snowdon when they visit the United States in November are in for some surprises.

In the first place, they are both much shorter than their photos would indicate—5' 2" and 5' 3", respectively.

This is the opinion of a good-looking, reticent Englishman who, through one of those flukes of fate that real life alone dares to attempt, came to know them extremely well and saw them frequently for several years.

The instrument Providence used to bring them all together was a basement room that Tony Armstrong-Jones, then a smart young photographer, rented from Bill Glenton in the latter's 300-year-old house on the edge of the London docks.

Glenton, a sailor turned reporter, tells the complete story of the odd event, his friendship with Tony Armstrong-Jones and the courtship of Princess Margaret, in "A Room on the London Docks," in the October McCall's. The first of two articles is condensed from "Tony's Room," being published by Bernard Geis Associates on Oct. 25.

If the room in Bill Glenton's house were still there, he'd probably never have written his book. However, his house, along with three others of the same period, was torn down by the London County Council, despite his determined protests, to make way for a concrete walk.

And Glenton felt finally free to break his five-year silence.

"After all, I've been a reporter for 20 years and I knew I had to write it. But at first, it was just something I was doing for myself, in my spare time."

The more he wrote, the more convinced he became that this was a story that should be made public. The traditional barrier between the British Royal Family and its subjects—which has rested on the assumption that their private life was their own affair—is crumbling slowly but surely.

To Glenton, this was one way of showing the pert, petite princess and her attractive young husband in a completely new light—free from the embroidery with which speculative writing inevitably disguises its lack of facts.

He became good friends with Tony, who had rented the room at first just because he wanted a place to relax from the frantic atmosphere of his studio in Pimlico.

"I had read a lot about him. My first impressions were that he was terribly short and very quiet and shy. I soon discovered that he had a terrific vitality and a strong mind of his own. I came to accept his being there. I ignored him."

When Tony became increasingly distant, started to dress in something more formal than blue jeans and began to decorate their common bathroom with some distinctly feminine touches, Glenton's first reaction was one of annoyance.

"I just thought, 'Tony is getting very stuck up about things,'" he said. "I was really annoyed with him."

That was until the day that Glenton caught a glimpse of the unmistakable silhouette of the queen's only sister in a doorway.

After their wedding, to which he was invited, he found with some surprise that the couple was determined to maintain the room—not only for its memories of their courtship, but because it was to become their one oasis of privacy; their chance to relax and live in a normal way.

It was also the host's opportunity to get to know Princess Margaret well. He decided that her somewhat formal manner was her own way of dealing with difficult situations. As she got to know him better, she relaxed and they all became good friends.

Glenton, who considers himself "a bit of a rebel," was able to explain to her that there was a middle ground between being either pro or anti-royalist; and that this was the way a good many people in England felt.

"Tony helped her a lot in that he introduced her to a completely new way of life; a generally much more free-wheeling, free-speaking one," Glenton says.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Up in Smoke!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter, who is in her early teens, smokes against our wishes. She never smokes in front of us, but we know she smokes, even though she says she doesn't. How do we treat this situation? Do we make an issue of it and "punish" her in some way? Or do we ignore it, hoping she will realize she is too young for such behavior?

WORRIED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: For parents to lay down rules, learn they are being violated, and then to ignore it, is foolish. But even more serious than your daughter's smoking is her lying about it. If you let her get away with this, don't expect her to listen to you in other matters of behavior. Restrict her activities, and let her know that she is being punished more for lying than for smoking.

DEAR ABBY: I met Phil six years ago. He was divorced and so was I. I was 47 at the time and had two married children and one still living at home going to high school. First I let Phil eat at my place as he had only a sleeping room and took all his meals in a restaurant. He always brought steaks and good food, which I prepared. Gradually Phil seemed to move into my place, which I was in favor of as I was lonely. Finally he was there so much I told my children that we were married. (They would disown me if they knew the truth.) I grew to love Phil and so did the children. When I bring up marriage, he says if we applied for a marriage licence now it would be in all the papers and everyone would know we had never been married. I've been working under his name for four years and I don't suppose it's applying against my social security for it's not my legal name. How can we make it legal without any publicity?

LIVING IN SIN

DEAR LIVING: You're lucky you live in Ontario. Confide this problem to your clergyman. He is authorized to perform a marriage ceremony, file the document in his church records and you will be legally and quietly wed with no publicity whatsoever. Those with this problem in other provinces should consult a local lawyer or clergyman and inquire about their chances to do the same.

DEAR ABBY: The longer most girls go with a guy, the harder it is to hold him off. My problem is just the opposite. I am 17 and George is 18 and we have been going together for almost a year now. When we first started datng, he used to kiss me goodnight, and we even did a little light making out. (Nothing serious.) Now George hardly even kisses me goodnight. I asked him if he was losing interest in me and he said no, he just didn't want to get "involved." What do you think he means by that?

"LOVE-STARVED AT 17"

DEAR "LOVE-STARVED": George means to look out for your best interests as well as his own. Better to be "love-starved" at 17, than worrying about the consequences of forbidden fruit.

DEAR ABBY: Our church rummage sale is over again for another year, thank heavens. And as usual there have been hurt feelings by the stupidity and thoughtlessness of otherwise kind and gentle ladies. In our church we have some very well-to-do women who buy expensive clothes one year and give them to the rummage sale the next. We also have others, like myself, who are not "poor" but we can't afford to buy such expensive clothing and what we buy we wear for a long time. The problem is women who wouldn't for the world hurt your feelings intentionally, but while sorting and pricing rummage they make remarks like, "Ish . . . I wonder who brought this rag!"

Naturally they are not aware that the person to whom they are making this remark could be the one who brought the article. This happened to me, Abby. I am sure it must have happened to others, so if you'd print this letter it might remind other thoughtless ladies to be more careful of what they say and to whom.

'Civilization Owes Progress To Bible'

Western civilization owes much of its quality and progress to the Bible, Rev. Dr. W. A. Ferguson, examining chaplain to Archbishop Harold Sexton of British Columbia, said here this week.

"Its bases among the barbarian invaders of Europe were laid by the church with the Bible in its hand. Christian missionaries founded the monasteries, the schools and the hospitals.

"They taught stories from the Bible to all they could reach—first, no doubt, those from the gospels, but soon also the lives of Old Testament heroes and Israel's history."

Dr. Ferguson was giving the first of a series of five lectures on The Living Book in St. Andrew's Kirk Hall arranged by the Greater Victoria Council of Churches under the direction of Canon Hilary Butler.

He said modern science had attempted to discredit the Bible by showing that its view of creation is incompatible with the accepted theory of evolution; that Joshua could not cause the sun to stand still by his prayer, and that Jonah could not have lived three days in the belly of a whale.

"Science has shown that the Old Testament is full of fallacies and superstitions, such as portents in the heavens; angels, witches and devils.

"But so are the writings of Shakespeare; yet we delight in the wisdom and insight of this great and understanding mind."

Emmanuel Baptist

The mixed choir at Emmanuel Baptist Church, 1900 Fernwood, will take a leading part in the church's 75th anniversary services Sunday. Under their conductor, Mrs. Otto Niedermann, with Henry Pluym at the organ, they will sing Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem, and the Men's Chorus at the morning worship, and Rejoice Today With One Accord in the evening. There have been choirs at Emmanuel Baptist ever since the church came into being in 1890. Mrs. Isabelle Goodwin conducted the choir for seven years before Mrs. Niedermann took over last April.

Church to Celebrate 75th Anniversary

Emmanuel Baptist Church is celebrating its 75th anniversary this weekend.

There will be an anniversary banquet tonight and on Sunday Rev. J. Frank Patch, general secretary of the Baptist Union of Western Canada, will speak at both services.

On Wednesday at 7:30 p.m., there will be a church and community service to which Victoria and Vancouver Island churches have been invited. Rev. Murray Henderson, minister of Belmont United, will be main speaker.

Emmanuel Baptist first came into being through the efforts of a few ardent workers from Calvary Baptist Church, then the only Baptist church in Victoria.

A Sunday school was opened on Nov. 29, 1885, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Wilson on what is now called Bay Street. The first superintendent was John L. Beckwith, a former mayor of Victoria.

Later, property was purchased at the corner of Gladstone Avenue and Fernwood Road and a chapel known as Spring Ridge was built and dedicated in 1887. This chapel forms part of the old Emmanuel Sunday school hall and now provides classroom accommodation.

Under the leadership of Rev. C. W. Townsend, a new church was organized in 1889 and duly named Emmanuel Baptist. The church became a reality Aug. 8, 1890, and was recognized on Sept. 4, 1890, when the Northwest Baptist convention was held in Victoria.

The present building was erected under the leadership of the late Rev. P. H. McEwen and dedicated in 1892. During the ministry of Rev. William Stevenson, Emmanuel opened a mission Sunday school on Shelbourne Street in 1913.

Many years later this mission became Stevenson Memorial Baptist Church, now standing on Townley Street.

Mr. Stevenson was pastor from 1908 to 1924 and was followed by Rev. Henry Knox (1924-1930), Rev. M. S. Richardson (1930-1933), Dr. Andrew S. Imrie (1933-1940), Rev. Wilfrid L. McKay (1941-1950) and Rev. James E. Smith (1950-1957).

Individuals Must Learn Christianity

VANCOUVER (CP) — The modern ministry must teach people to practise Christianity as individuals rather than as members of a congregation, says a University of Toronto theology professor.

"Few families today stay in one place long enough to put down roots," says Trinity College's Dr. Charles R. Feilding, "and being preached to doesn't help them.

"What they need are opportunities to find out for themselves how to achieve a satisfying religious life."

Dr. Feilding addressed Union College of the University of British Columbia as a guest lecturer on modern problems of the ministry.

The method to tackle these problems is dialogue, he said.

"All great methods of teaching have involved dialogue. The aim of the teacher and the same—to open up new ideas and enable students to pursue them rationally.

"The church and her clergy must find up-to-date means to minister to today's transient and unstable congregation."

NEWS FROM CITY CHURCHES

Special Services On Thanksgiving

The festival of Thanksgiving will be observed with prayer and song by churches throughout Victoria and Vancouver Island this Sunday.

There will be a special harvest evensong in Christ Church Cathedral at 7:30 p.m.

The invitatory, Thou Visitest the Earth (Greene), will be presented by contralto Eleanor Ashford and the full choir directed by Richard Proudman.

The canticles will be sung to the evensong setting of Stanford in B flat, and the anthem will be Haydn's The Heavens Are Telling, with a trio comprising Bill Dyson, treble; Tom Rafter, tenor, and William Broadhead, baritone.

The sermon will be given by Rev. E. S. Gilbert, a former RCAF padre who is now assistant minister at the cathedral.

Rev. Roy A. Hoult will pleach at the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services.

The Church of Our Lord will be decorated with white and bronze chrysanthemums, fall flowers, fruits and the traditional wheat sheaves and thanksgiving loaves for its festival services.

"They will then be distributed among institutions and needy families," says Bishop Denys Rankilor.

REV. WATSON SAYS:

Vigilant Church Guards Its Music

What is the purpose of church music?

To entertain?

To fill the awkward pause?

No.

It is to assist us in our supreme purpose: "The chief end of man is to glorify God and enjoy Him forever."

Our worship is none other than fellowship with God.

The praises, prayers, gifts and oblation of our lives go to God and are accepted by Him. But this is but a response to God who comes to worshippers, addresses them in scripture and preaching, and gives Himself in word and sacrament.

Since worship is the most important thing that we do, we ought to do it as well as we can. Music has been the handmaid of worship from time immemorial. Music played a large part in the life of the people of Israel, and we have Paul advising the early Christian church to "speak one to another in psalms, hymns and spiritual songs, singing and making melody with your heart to the Lord."

How does this ministry of music help us to worship? Not only does it prepare us for the attitude of worship, but it gives us an opportunity to express our own feelings and attitudes in joyful praise, songs of adoration, thanksgiving, penitence, intercession and dedication.

To all of these the best sacred music gives eloquent voice. The primary purpose therefore of Christian music, congregational or solo, is worship. When it fails of this purpose, there is no justification for it.

We note that nowhere more than in its singing has Christianity been more truly catholic; for here are Jewish songs, early hymns of the Greek and Latin church, songs of Reformation days, stately ordered reflections of the solemn ordered mood of the Church of England, at times expressions of pietistic devotion.

★ ★ ★

Here are Romans and Anglicans, Greek and Moravian, Unitarians and Independents, Baptists, Lutherans and Calvinists. Here is a compiling of the folk material from many a land; here are the names of the most famous composers coupled with those of carpenters, statesmen and civil engineers. The awareness of unity of faith grows rapidly as we learn to sing in faith together.

The purpose of the choir is to lead and support the congregational singing of praise, never to perform for the congregation's passive enjoyment. To sing worthy texts to worthy music and to sing them well is the aim and objective of music in the church.

This presents a challenge to consider seriously being part of this ministry. Our churches have capable directors and musicians; participating with them can only deepen and enrich worship.

A vigilant church will stand critical guard over its music. It will lay more stress on the ministry of music and not be deluded by the ideal of musical perfection. Certainly we will offer our best unto God, but Christian song is directed, not to the critics, but in our hearts to the Lord.

Rev. John A. Watson has been minister of First Baptist Church since 1962. A native of Calgary, he attended Crescent Heights Church there before entering the ministry and later served as minister of Christian education at First Baptist Church, Edmonton.

Churches Plan Mental Centre

WARREN, Pa. (AP)—A group of pioneering Protestants, Roman Catholics and Jews are working to raise $600,000 to build a mission centre in a strange and dark country—the shadowland of the mentally ill.

What they have in mind is an inter-faith chapel at Warren State Hospital in nearby North Warren, the first of its kind in the United States.

Its function will be to serve the 2,500 mental patients of the hospital, who come from 13 western Pennsylvania counties. It will provide facilities for worship, religious education and counselling for all three faiths.

It also will bring closer together two philosophies — religion and psychiatry.

Besides a large central chapel, the centre will include offices and living quarters for resident chaplains, conference rooms, small chapels for each faith, cooking facilities and a large fellowship and recreational hall.

The hospital's patients range in age from six to over 90. Some 1,200 patients are admitted each year and the rate of cure among new cases under 60 years of age is 93 per cent.

The inter-faith centre, its backers feel, will help establish a solid central point of departure for the mental patient in his first days and throughout his treatment.

One psychiatrist remarked: "A patient may feel he has been forsaken by family and friends because of his illness, but he need not also feel abandoned by God."

Big Blue Bear Bound for Zoo

YAKUTAT, Alaska (AP) — A big glacier bear captured here early Thursday as a sort of community project by residents of this airport service community is destined for a trip to Portland, Ore., and membership — at least on a temporary basis — in that city's zoo.

The bear, one of the rare species of blue bears, has a temporary home now in a big cage made from a culvert. He was enticed into the cage after a three-day effort by employees of the federal aviation agency station here.

A spokesman for the Alaska department of fish and game said there are only about 100 glacier bears in the United States, most of them in the Glacier Bay area just off the Gulf of Alaska.

With approval of the state game experts and the office of Governor William A. Egan, this bruin will be transferred to the Portland zoo on a loan basis, and kept there until a new zoo is ready at Anchorage.

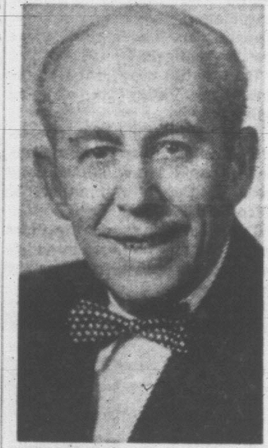
COMING HOME

At that time he will be returned to the state.

The bear is described as a three-year-old weighing about 300 to 350 pounds—big by glacier bear standards.

It was first discovered rummaging in a garbage hut near residences Monday night, and was chased away. Later, residents realized the bear might be valuable and enticed it back into the garbage shack with some fish as bait.

Then it was coaxed into the home-made cage, and is enjoying a domesticated diet of salmon and frozen moose legs while awaiting transfer to Portland.



SPEAKING in the Apostolic Church, Blanshard and Queens, Sunday at 11 a.m., Rev. R. E. S. Toms will take as his subject, That the Church Might Be Edified. At the evening worship he will answer the question, Why Did Jesus Stoop Twice?

Violence, Vandalism In Trucking Strike

TORONTO (CP) — Violence and vandalism broke out Friday in the six-day-old wildcat strike that has paralyzed Ontario's truck industry.

Renewed negotiations between the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Ind.) and representatives of 88 provincial trucking firms, were scheduled for Tuesday.

A non-striking trucker was seriously injured and property was damaged in three centres in the outbreaks of violence.

A union spokesman said the agreement to re-open talks was reached Friday at a meeting of representatives of the union and the companies.

A spokesman for the trucking firms said the talks will resume only if striking truckers are ordered back to work no later than Tuesday.

Negotiations broke down Thursday when company representatives walked out of a meeting.

The injured trucker is Patrick Hennessey of London, a driver for Inter - City Trucklines. He was admitted to hospital in serious condition after a cement block, dropped from an overpass on the Macdonald-Cartier Highway, crashed through his windshield and struck him in the face.

In London police said tires on five cars owned by employees of Husband Transport were slashed soon after the announcement that union-management talks had broken down.

In Kitchener police said 40 men damaged property belonging to Kingsway Transport and Woods Transport Ltd. Union officials there attributed the damage to a "roving goon squad" from Toronto.

In the Toronto suburb of Etobicoke trucks in the yard of the Maislin Transport Co. yard were damaged. Police said vandals scaled fences around the yard and left five tractors and 31 trucks immobile with cut brake air lines.

Ken McDougall, president of Teamster Local 938 in Toronto, offered a $500 reward for the arrest and conviction of the men who dropped the block on Hennessey.

Isolation Breeds Suicide

LONDON (AP)—Old people in West Berlin, Hong Kong and the depressed textile towns of northern England commit suicide at double their national averages because the young people have left to get jobs elsewhere. So says an English professor of psychiatry.

The suicide rate of old people, already increasing, will continue to grow if they are left in a state of "social isolation" without their young around them, he warned.

Prof. Erin Stengel of the University of Sheffield, author of Attempted Suicide: Its Social Significance and Effects, reported his findings at a World Psychiatric Association symposium on psychiatric disorders in the aged and their treatment.

He urged that the effects on elderly people should be considered when governments encourage industrial mobility.

"The isolation of old people from their families leads to greatly increased mental illness. Little thought is given to the working capacity and skills of the old."

Newspaperboys Learn What Schools Can't Teach

A young man who delivers a newspaper route learns a lot that many other youths miss. And these lessons of experience "sink in" faster and better than any classroom lecture.

A newspaperboy learns to become independent because he's running his own business. Route management also offers him a range of practical experience in handling people, learning the value of money, keeping records and developing efficiency and self-assurance.

All these things books can't teach . . . but a newspaper route does. That's why many school officials endorse route training as a valuable adjunct to formal education.

CUSTOMERS NEARLY DIED

And customers nearly died of fright.

But $800 damage was done to the building.

Why Sunday? or Now? And Buck Is Passed

LADYSMITH—Only two aldermen turned up for the Friday meeting of city council.

Ald. Bernard Churchill supported the local air cadets' plea for permission to stage public roller skating on a Sunday.

Ald. John Cochrane wants to retain the quiet of Sundays. He said: "There are six other days, why Sunday?"

When Mayor Kathleen Grouhel declined to take sides in the argument a decision was deferred to the next meeting.

★ ★ ★

In just as many words the local RCMP detachment has told Mayor Grouhel it is too busy to make preventive patrols of the city.

Council will have 30 m.p.h. speed limit signs erected on the road which lies on the edge of the city.

VLA REGULATIONS AMENDED

Loan Increase to Double Business

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Frederick S. Berg, VLA regional construction supervisor, said today amendments to the VLA boost maximum loans for small holdings from $10,200 to $15,400.

A $500 winter works grant is also available to veterans who complete their homes during the winter months.

"We expect business to double within the next year as the result of amendments to the act," said Mr. Berg.

He expects many applicants for the loans will be veterans from eastern Canada who are settling in British Columbia in larger numbers every year.

He will actually repay to the government $14,000 as he will receive a conditional grant of $1,400 at the end of 10 years.

The loan is payable over a 25-year period at $77.73 per month, plus taxes.

To qualify for the loan an ex-serviceman must have served in Canada for at least a year during the Second World War; overseas or in the Korean War. It is also eligible to recipients of a disability pension.

Minimum property to settle under Veterans Land Act is half an acre of 21,780 square feet.

1. Planning assistance for his project from VLA officials.

2. He does not have to pay the 5 per cent sales tax on materials that go into the construction of his home.

3. He can attend a build-your-own home school to learn construction techniques.

Mr. Berg said since the start of the year the government has expended about $2,000,000 on loans and the purchase of property on Vancouver Island.

"Since the start of the year the number of VLA properties purchased for this region is 173," he said, "and 67 of these have new homes on them.

"The 67 homes have nearly all been constructed by veterans themselves," he added. "When required, they have arranged for outside help.

CORNEY

Home Delivery Of Mail

DUNCAN — Postmaster Bob Corney today said it will take six months to a year to implement home mail delivery in the city.

He was commenting on Prime Minister Pearson's announcement Friday.

The prime minister said the necessary population figure was being reduced from 2,500 to 2,000.

Mr. Corney said the news was a surprise although the post office had been battling for the change for years.

He said Courtenay, which will also qualify under the change, has just ordered installation of 600 new mail pickup boxes in the post office building.

Head-On Crash Injures Driver

Fred Astinall, Cobble Hill, was treated for leg bruises and cuts following a head-on collision Friday night on the Trans-Canada Highway.

Beer Given To Young Girl

James A. Giesbrecht, 788 Hillside, was fined $100 in Sooke RCMP court Thursday after he pleaded guilty to contributing to juvenile delinquency.

Court was told he drove up to a 15-year-old girl Aug. 14 as she was walking along the road and gave her a bottle of beer.

Sooke Hunters Seek Cougar

SOOKE—Local hunters were out in force today in search of a cougar.

The cougar was spotted Friday night by employees of Sooke Forest Products on a beach at Cooper's Cove.

Sooke RCMP began a search for the cat but hopes of finding it were abandoned at dusk.

$117,033 Loan

LADYSMITH—A federal loan of $117,033 has been granted Ladysmith for construction of a collector sewer, sewage treatment plant and outfall sewer.

Work on the projects will begin in the near future.

Island College Nears Reality

Dr. Leonard Marsh, research director in UBC school of social work, the man appointed to study all aspects of the proposed college, issued the first part of his report.

Although he has not yet named a site, he indicated the college should be built in the south central portion of the Island.

He also urged the college be in operation for the 1967-68 term.

Second phase of the report, expected in January, will recommend courses to be offered, staffing and financing.

EVENING COURSES

Of evening courses, Dr. Marsh says part-time and evening students should be an integral, rather than extra or emergency part of the college's plans.

Courses should be planned in the expectation of evening enrolment at least equal to the minimum daytime capacity.

The college will serve the area from the Cowichan Valley in the south to Alert Bay in the north.

Dr. Marsh adds that it cannot be a reality in less than two years.

'BITTER PILL'

Said board chairman Brian Walker: "I know what we would like and this may be a bitter pill to swallow. But I don't think there is any alternative."

However, he still holds out hopes that a branch college may be built in the area.

Lew Davies, president of Nanaimo and District Teachers' Association, says he believes Nanaimo is the logical place for the college.

It is within easy reach of the Cowichan Valley as well as points north.

Meanwhile, the college principal, librarian and chief counsellor could be appointed next year if the Marsh report is accepted.

Dr. Marsh suggests the three men should be appointed to work together a year before the college opens.

Adult Classes May Expand

COURTENAY—With 47 adult education classes already under way here, officials are considering opening a further eight next week.

Before doing so, however, they require three or four more enrolments.

The courses in question are: new math for parents, geology, log scaling, creative writing, small boat operation, public speaking, shoe covering and records for small businesses.

5-Year Plan Vote Likely In New Year

NORTH COWICHAN — A five-year capital improvement plan will probably be put to a vote here in the new year.

Reeve Donald Morton indicated this Friday when discussing the municipality's centennial project.

He said the referendum may contain much more than just the centennial arena at Fuller's Lake, adding:

"There are many fields of development in the district, including a swimming pool, which could be included in the one referendum."

Although he did not indicate the full amount of the referendum, he said it would be covered by a one-mill tax increase.

The arena alone—work on which should begin next March—will cost at least $300,000, of which $30,000 will be paid by the centennial grant.

Thirty-two thousand square feet in size, the arena may possibly incorporate space heating for the comfort of spectators.

THANKSGIVING DAY

A great day to discover how little long distance costs

How much is a voice worth?

That depends on who is speaking, and from where. On this special day, the voices of loved ones, perhaps from hundreds of miles away, have a special place in our hearts. Memories are sharpened; experiences recaptured. It is a time when togetherness can mean so much and, as always, at such little cost.

Long distance rates are among the very few items of personal expenditure that have actually been reduced, over the years. And after 6 p.m. each evening (and all day Sunday), they are cheaper by about one-fifth.

Check the rates for yourself in your telephone directory or dial "O" and ask the operator. You'll be surprised how little it costs to enjoy "the next best thing to being there." For instance you can call from Vancouver to Prince George in the evening for $1.35; or from New Westminster to Calgary for $1.50; or from Victoria to Toronto for $2.35.*

It costs so little to discover how much these experiences mean—to you, and to those with whom you talk. Today, there's more reason than ever to use Long Distance for all its worth.

Mislaid Tools Will Glare at You In This Shop

Try See-It-Yourself Kit For Handy Workbench

By PAULINE GRAVES

The universal complaint, when repairs are to be made around the house, is that the right tool is never available.

Here is a work bench that could be copied to advantage by almost any household.

So well planned is the tool storage, that when a tool is not properly replaced, the omission is glaringly evident.

Space under the windows, for example, holds twice as many tools as one would expect and there are holders and brackets for each one.

Instead of using the wall for mounting tools, the space was made into a shallow cupboard between the studs.

Flat equipment, such as various types of saws, hang on the back, and small tools, drills, chisels, hammers and screwdrivers occupy the insides of the doors where they are instantly available.

The nail drawer, for example, has two sections, the top a sliding tray, easily removed, and both sections are divided into small two and three inch compartments.

An extra expense, but well worth the investment, are the steel drawer glides with nylon rollers on which the drawers are mounted.

Because of the weight in each drawer, it is a struggle to open them evenly without the help of the glides.

JACK BEASTALL ADVISES:

Tender Plant Not So Soft

For many years the clematis was considered a difficult plant that would succeed only in the hands of the most advanced gardeners.

The plants were not easy to obtain and more failures than successes were recorded.

Jack

Much of the trouble could have been caused by the older practice of grafting named varieties to roots of strong-growing species such as Traveller's-joy (Clematis viatalba), a native of Britain.

Anyone who has tried to join two pieces of stem less than one-eighth-inch wide can appreciate that the chances of success are slim, and will have the greatest admiration for that generation of plantsmen who produced clematis plants in this way.

Today, with the great advances in methods of propagation, most of these plants are grown from cuttings and the weak point between root-stock and top growth has been eliminated.

The result is that the clematis is no longer a plant to be enjoyed by a few, in fact, its popularity is rapidly overtaking the rose as a cover for walls, fences, trellises, rocks, and the bare trunks of tall trees.

To the average gardener the clematis is a plant with huge flowers six to eight inches across ranging in color from white to deep reds and purples.

These form the group known as the large-flowered hybrids.

Quite distinct are the species with their many flower shapes, strong growth, masses of bloom, and ease of culture. Some species are herbaceous perennials of bushy habit with no inclination to shinny up trees or clamber over roofs.

★ ★ ★

Their well developed root system makes them less susceptible to the clematis wilt than one-year-olds, but if the growing tips start to wilt and the plants have a drooping appearance they can usually be saved by prompt and drastic action.

Since the roots are not affected by the wilt, a strong root system will put up new growths and be none the worse for the attack.

The most common reasons for failure are not planting firmly and allowing the roots to dry out during their first season.

Frail as it may appear, the clematis is a hardy, strong growing plant that should be planted with the same firmness as any other climber or herbaceous perennial.

Although gardeners expect a lot of long growths tied to a bamboo cane when they purchase a clematis, all these growths should be cut back to about six inches before planting, not only for the good of the plant but also for ease of handling.

It is always safe to set the plant some two inches deeper in the soil than it was in the container when purchased.

Bonemeal and lime rubble should be well mixed into the planting hole together with compost or rotted manure, and care taken that drainage is not faulty.

Grafted plants should always have the point of graft below soil level to encourage rooting from the top portion, or scion.

The clematis like a cool, moist root-run, and this can be provided by protecting the root area with concrete blocks, stone slabs, rocks or a low growing shrub, and watering freely especially during the first season.

Most of the species will grow on a north facing wall, as will the hybrid C. jackmanni; and often the popular "Nellie Moser" is better on the north unless in filtered shade, since its blooms fade in full sun.

The other large flowered hybrids do best facing east, south or west, with roots well sheltered in the last two positions.

The evergreen varieties of C. armandi are limited to south walls, while other species will grow in some shade under trees.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Cut the fading blooms from the chrysanthemums to keep the plants looking fresh. The midseason varieties will continue blooming well into December if they have been staked well and had blooms cut periodically.

Plant the crocus, narcissus and hyacinth bulbs.

Much herbaceous perennial material may be cut back this weekend, but the perennial asters (Michaelmas-daisies), rudbeckias (Cone-flowers) and many other fall perennials will continue their brilliant display for a few more weeks.

Plant rhodos, azaleas and other broad-leaved shrubs such as laurel, pieris, photinia and skimmia.

Cuttings may still be taken of the yellow alyssum and the herbaceous penstemons.

The cool greenhouse should be well ventilated even on the cool days. Never have the air stagnant and damp.

As you always were before.

SIMPSON—In memory of our dear son-in-law, William C. Simpson, who passed away October 11, 1964.
There's an open gate
At the end of the road
Through which each must go alone,

Finds happiness and rest.
And there is comfort in the thought
That a loving God knows best.
—Ever remembered, Mom and Pop Burnett.

ROBBIE—In loving memory of our dear sister, Mrs. Winnifred Robbie, who passed away October 9, 1964.

—The family.

WILSON—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Walter J. W. Wilson, who passed beyond sight on October 9, 1956.

Opening lead—♦ 3

His bid wasn't exactly a psychic bid, but rather a nuisance bid, since he did have three spades for his spade call. It did not take the Italians long to find their spade fit.

East doubled. South went to two diamonds, West called two spades and East raised him to game.

South might have saved at five diamonds because he was not vulnerable but it was possible that his partner held enough spades to embarrass his opponents. In any event he knew that he would be set at five diamonds and no one gets rich taking sure losses.

Strangely enough there was no need for the American team to lose on this board. At the other table the bidding was very spirited and Italy saved at six diamonds after we had gone to five spades.

If West had been looking at all the cards he could have opened a club. The defence would have cashed two clubs right off the bat and would collect two hearts and a diamond later on for a 700-point penalty.

Unfortunately for us he wasn't looking at all the cards and opened a spade. This gave South a chance for an immediate club discard on the ace of spades. He still had to lose the same two hearts and one diamond but he only lost one club so that the penalty was 500 points only.

65 MOTORCYCLE

HERE ARE THE FACTS
Three Important Points everyone should check before buying any motorcycle

1. SAFETY
Check accident record through motor vehicle office. Check your tires. Top traction is maintained by using tires similar to those at western motorcycle road meet.

2. REPAIRS and PARTS
On some machines it might cost up to $22 to replace a head gasket. On others they are so machined as to eliminate this needless expense. Check and compare the cost of replacing and repairing other parts of your motorcycle. For example, rings and valve grind on our bike cost approx. $12. On others it often runs about $60 to $70.

3. RESALE VALUE
Check this column any weekend and you will see. Ask yourself, why are all these people trying to sell this certain make of bike, and some after having owned it for as little as a week.

ROCKLAND OVERLOOKING GOVERNMENT HOUSE

Seldom do we get such listings as this one where we can combine location with such fantastic value. This is a 5 suite apartment block set in approximately 1½ ACRES OF THE CHOICEST PRESTIGE LOCATION IN TOWN overlooking the beautiful gardens and residence of the LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR. It is a stately three-gabled Tudor property and most of the suites are in the 1400-1500 square feet class. Money has been no object on the maintenance side and in EXCESS OF $90,000 has been lavished on the property. The lot is subdivided into 3 distinct parcels, but all combine to make one huge country garden with seclusion, yet WITHIN 5 MINUTES OF THE CENTRE OF THE CITY BY CAR. Due to ill health, the owner is forced to sacrifice this beautiful block and it can be bought for the low price of $78,000.

8% INTEREST

HOW AND WHY YOUR MONEY CAN EARN 8% ON PROFITS FROM $3 MILLIONS IN MORTGAGES

During the past year, investors placed more than $1 million in the Sterling Pacific Mortgage Fund. Today, more than 1000 men and women hold Sterling Pacific Certificates, earning 8% computed semi-annually. Protection of capital is a basic requirement of each of our investors, and the Mortgage Fund is constituted so as to assure this protection.

YOU MAY INVEST AS LITTLE AS $500

You can become an investor in the Sterling Pacific Mortgage Fund for as little as $500. You receive a Sterling Pacific Certificate registered in your name showing the principal amount of your investment. Because all securities are pooled, your investment will be spread over the whole fund. This way you avoid the risks you might run as an investor in individual mortgages.

$1,000 EARNS $80 YEARLY

At 8% your money grows fast! You may build up financial security for those retirement years ahead, or you can draw quarterly interest payments from your investment and enjoy a regular income. As an example: Invest $1,000, and you'll earn $80.00 a year in quarterly payments. Invest $5,000, and you'll earn $400.00.

HOW CAN STERLING PACIFIC PAY 8% INTEREST WITH SAFETY?

The performance and security of the Mortgage Fund is based on the ability of Sterling Pacific to loan money which will provide an adequate and sure return. The corporation has arrangements which allow it to place investment capital in large mortgages on new commercial properties located throughout British Columbia. A number of first mortgages are held on sound residential properties. This assures a good return with maximum security and minimum management or placement costs. As further protection for you, Sterling Pacific has established a reserve fund to the extent of 3½% of all invested capital.

AN INVESTMENT "SAFE AS HOUSES"

The real strength of mortgage investment lies in this fact: A man's desire to keep and protect his real estate is very strong. That's why the Insurance Companies, Trust Companies and Chartered Banks of Canada have millions of dollars of their clients deposits invested in mortgages right now. The Sterling Pacific Mortgage Fund is extra safe because your investment is spread over many different mortgages.

IT COSTS NOTHING TO BUY IN OR SELL OUT

Sterling Pacific does not charge an acquisition fee when you buy into the Fund. Nor a selling fee if you choose to sell out later on. You can cash your certificates at any time without penalty after only one year of ownership. Should you choose to cash them within 12 months, a charge of 5% will be made.

OBTAIN READY CASH AT ANY TIME

Your certificates may be used as security at any bank or lending institution. Here's yet another reason why an investment in the Sterling Pacific Mortgage Fund will add to your peace of mind.

Color-By-Number Fun Poser

One for me, and one for you! Sis could hardly wait to give her younger brother a certain present. In fact, she thought so highly of it, she bought one for herself. To observe the hidden picture above, simply apply colored pencils or crayons according to the following color indicators: 1—Yellow. 2—Red. 3—Blue. 4—Orange. 5—Green. 6—Purple. 7—Black. 8—Brown. 9—Pink. If Pink is not handy, use red lightly instead.

Afterwards, you may wish to paste the picture to a piece of construction paper and hang it up in your room. Another possibility is to cut it up for a jigsaw puzzle.

SEE THE POINT?

A man walked into a cafe, strode to the bar, and asked for a glass of water. But the bartender, on seeing the newcomer's expression, pulled a gun from under the counter and pointed it at him. Startled, the man paused breathlessly. Then he placed money on the bar, smiled, and left the cafe without creating a stir.

Now, what circumstances or set of circumstances might logically cause such a sequence of action?

Here are a few clues: The men were unknown to each other; there was nothing unusual in dress or physical make-up about either of them; the incident occurred during the hours the bar was open. The bartender had a legal right to possess the gun for his protection from holdups.

THINGS TAKE A FANCY TURN . . .

In the spring a young man's fancy turns . . . and in many cases keeps turning all summer. Let's see how many of the following girl friends, real and fictional, you can identify.

1. Juliet was the g. f. of . . .?
2. Frankie was the shooting g. f. of . . . . . ?
3. Ophelia of . . . . .?
4. Portia of . . . . . .?
5. Hero of . . . . . ?

1. Romeo, 2. Johnnie, 3. Hamlet, 4. Bassanio, 5. Leander.

The sum of our ages is 22. I shall be seven times as old as you are now when I become twice your age.

STAMP CORNER

By REG. NAIRNE

Owing to so many philatelic works of reference making their appearance at about the same time, this column is being kept busy trying to review them all.

The sixth edition of Bileski's Canadian Plate Block Catalgoue is the latest to come to hand. As three years have elapsed since the previous edition, there is naturally considerable revision in pricing, as well as additional material, to be found in this volume.

It is evident that most of the activity in plate block collecting is to be found among the more recent issues. The issues previous to 1938 show little change in price.

A few of the 1942 series show moderate increases, and the 1946 pictorials are up about 20%. Plate blocks of the $1 Fisheries are now $30, and the Totem $1's have risen to $8.

The 1c of 1953, Plate 8, jumps from $10 to $20 and the 20c green in plate 3 goes from $2 to $5.

The various commemoratives of 1959, the air-mails, and Special Deliveries, average a 20% increase. The scarce booklet panes showing plate numbers in the binding-margins are all sharply increased.

Last year's 5c Christmas stamp with plate 1 is already priced at $2.50, and even the current Cameo type Queen Elizabeths are frequently listed at around $2 for many of the positions.

Few changes are noted among the O.H.M.S. overprints; but the "G's" from 1952 on move considerably. Flate 2 of the 50c moves up from $4 to $15, and all plates of the 20c green are now $6 each.

The controversial Type C overprints on the 10c, 20c and 50c are listed and priced for the first time—the 10c at $15 and the 50c at $16, which latter is not much more than the same stamp with the ordinary G overprint.

For some reason the 20c is only listed with blank corners, although plate-number corners do of course exist in all four positions.

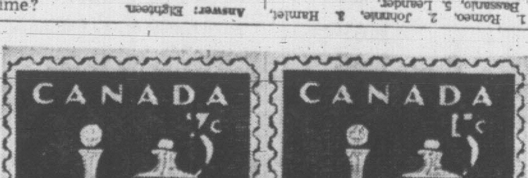
By the way, you can make an easy $100 for nothing if you happen to have a complete sheet of the latter stamp, for Bileski offers this amount just to have a look at it! Nobody has come forward with one since the offer came out a few months ago!

The general arrangement of the previous edition of this book has been followed throughout; which means that it is clearly printed on good paper, well illustrated, and with a layout that is easy to follow without eyestrain. It is published at $3.



CHRISTMAS BEGINS at local post offices Oct. 13 when the special 3c and 5c stamps will go on sale for an early start on overseas mailing. Designed by Helen Fitzgerald of Toronto, both stamps feature the hands of the Magi with gifts.

Sprinkling of Love Washes Bylaw Away

LADYSMITH—Romance isn't dead in city council—probably because the mayor's a woman.

Previously reluctant to lift the sprinkling regulations, council finally relented Friday.

And only because Mayor Kathleen Grouhel told them of a phone call she received.

A male resident called to say his wedding anniversary was coming up soon.

VOTE FORECAST

Maritimes Sweep Out

Canadian political scientist Peter Regenstreif is on a 10,000-mile coast-to-coast tour aimed at predicting what the Canadian voter is going to do on Nov. 8. Here is his first report.

By PETER REGENSTREIF

HALIFAX—Nova Scotia is running true to form in 1965.

Political affiliations remain relatively stable here with changes in partisan commitment few and far between. The basic party orientation and family tradition of not only this province but of the entire Atlantic region continue to stand in sharp contrast to the wild instability of the rest of the country.

The breakaway from Conservatism in federal politics so evident in 1962 and 1963 is no longer apparent. While there is no question that Diefenbaker's position is lower here than it ever was, there is little inducement for potential defectors to vote for any of the alternatives, either on grounds of leadership or issues. Certainly Pearson's standing with the electorate has not noticeably improved since last election.

There seems to be but one issue now: majority government. It is especially important here because Nova Scotia, to say nothing of the entire region, is a have-not area and, as such, depends heavily on federal largesse. But the dominant consensus is that no one will have a majority after Nov. 8. There is even some doubt as to the eventual winner.

"What I'm afraid of is an impasse—just like it happened last time. It could go one way or the other." This is how a bank clerk's wife saw it.

And the prime minister's decision not to campaign strenuously during the early weeks has only contributed to the uncertainty. As a Halifax photo-engraver who is voting Liberal again pointed out: "Reading the papers, you'd think Diefenbaker was more popular this year than last time."

A traditional Liberal supportter in Halifax readily admitted bolting party ranks in the last provincial election: "In Nova Scotia, Stanfield is going to get in for as long as he wants. He's another Angus L. Macdonald. People vote for him—not for his party. No one cares about his party. It's him."

It is understandable, then, why the Liberals in Ottawa get virtually no marks for the improved economic climate here which everyone recognizes. The wife of a fire inspector summed up the situation this way: "I don't know how to vote. No matter who is in, we're all doing better than we ever did. You know. We've had Conservatives here and Liberals in Ottawa and nothing's changed. We're all doing well and I can't see them having any effect."

In most other regions, the political coloration of a provincial government would count for little. But here, the evidence is very strong that voters maintain identical partisan commitments in both federal and provincial fields to a markedly greater extent than elsewhere.

The pattern for the province is essentially this: far more 1963 Conservatives claim they are "undecided" this time than any of the 1963 supporters of the other parties. But when they are probed fully as to their probable behavior on Nov. 8, they almost invariably come down to remaining Tory, often using their local candidate as an excuse.

The following exchange with a foreman who works in a Windsor textile plant is indicative of the difficulties confronting the Liberals in their quest for increased representation. He voted Conservative in 1963 and now doesn't know what to do. Why?

He replied: "Because you've got so mixed up you don't know who to vote for. I've always leaned Conservative. There is no question about that, but . . ."

I asked: "Well, what's stopping you this time?"

He answered: "Diefenbaker. We gave him a good majority and he blew it. He wouldn't let his men tell him anything—the great I Am."

I probed further: "Any chance of you voting Liberal?"

He blurted: "Not with all this mess Pearson's got into. Only if he cleans it up. He's a good man himself but not some of the people he's got with him . . . I guess I'll vote for Kennedy (the Tory MP for Colchester-Hants) again. Not for Diefenbaker. Kennedy. I guess we need the American system."

If anything, the electorate seems to be looking for an excuse for voting Conservative because of the absence of a Pearson appeal. As a car dealer who is voting Liberal in spite of his

THERE ISN'T MUSH-ROOM for any more, thinks Jimmy Bailey, 10707 Bayfield. And there isn't mush-room for doubting that the little clump growing through the one-inch deep blacktop at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Norrington, 138 Selkirk, Victoria, is unusual. Provincial botanist Adam Szczawinski said the mushrooms, of the Shaggy Main species, are known to perform weight-lifting feats. (Halkett Photo.)

Police 'Hot on Trail' Of Fraud Ringleaders

QUEBEC (CP)—Justice Minister Claude Wagner says authorities are hot on the trail of ringleaders of a fraudulent bankruptcy and arson operation that has cost the province $1,500,000 a year in lost taxes since 1959 and is blamed for the violent deaths of at least seven persons.

At a press conference Friday, the justice minister said steps have been taken to prevent several panicky leaders of the Montreal underworld from skipping the country.

Police were on their trail and "it is only a question of time before we reach the leaders."

Mr. Wagner said more than four persons — he declined to give an exact number—are being held as important witnesses, and a number of persons have asked for and received police protection in connection with the investigation.

Of the seven persons known to have been murdered to prevent them from testifying about the operations of the ring, four bodies had been recovered and three were being sought. The bodies of the victims had been covered in quicklime, in an apparent attempt to make identification more difficult.

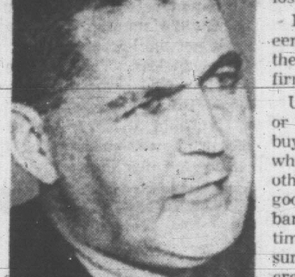
The most recent indication was a report released by Revenue Minister Eric Kierans in August which said the province was losing as much as $1,500,000 a year in tax revenue through phoney bankruptcies.



WAGNER

The shady operators often increased their rake-off through arson—paying small (from $20 to $500)—for setting fires that netted thousands in insurance and possibly helped to cover discrepancies in inventories — but precise figures for fire losses were similarly lacking.

Investigators say the racketeers either form companies on their own or take over faltering firms by various means.

Using false bank statements or doctored credit ratings, they buy merchandise on credit which they quickly resell to other racketeers, making the goods difficult to trace. Then bankruptcy is declared. Sometimes company buildings are insured. After the goods are secretely removed, the buildings are set afire to increase the harvest.

Mr. Kierans' report said one such group of racketeers had a

Woman's Suspicion Sparks Probes

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Pandora who lifted that lid on the latest sensational fraud and arson cases in Quebec is a 62-year-old business woman, Miss Rachael Smiley.

Miss Smiley had the suspicion she was being defrauded to the tune of $115,000.

Rather than work it out among friends she laid the charge which has placed top-level suspect Moise Darabaner before the courts.

For a year the Quebec government was delving into an investigation of fraudulent bankruptcy which Revenue Minister Eric Kierans estimates cost the provincial government $1.5 million annually over the past six years. The cost to the public was a minimum $50 million which Kierans has said is a conservative figure.

Some place it is as high as $100 million.

At any rate, the report of the investigation, drafted by a revenue chartered accountant, Lucien Mercier, came out last August and the government has been busily trying to get the whole thing rolling before the courts with not unlimited success.

Then along came Miss Smiley.

She wanted provincial approval for a building contract and a chap named Gaston Constantin said he could assist her if she put up $95,000 in cash. With one thing and another the total mounted to $115,000.

Constantin, who has travelled extensively in Canada, was then working for Darabaner, who is a money lender and Quebec city businessman. He was a director of one of Darabaner's companies.

Miss Smiley took the two of them to court on a charge of fraud. The preliminary hearing of that case will continue Oct. 12.

He said he had heard Darabaner and a Mr. Ray Daoust of Montreal discussing a plan to do away with Miss Smiley, an idea in which he did not concur.

At that point all Dara-

RHODESIA CRISIS

We'll Fight Not Crawl, U.K. Warned

LONDON — Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith said today his white-ruled African colony "would rather go out fighting than go out crawling on our hands and knees" in the clash with Britain over independence.

Smith has threatened to declare independence unilaterally—the first colony to do so since 1776. Such a move would face the Commonwealth with a grave crisis and in the words of prime minister Harold Wilson "set Africa ablaze."

Talks between Wilson and Smith broke down Friday night after an American warning to Smith the United States would not recognize his all-White government since there are only 220,000 whites in Rhodesia and 3.6 million Negroes.

RETURNING

Smith told a news conference he would return to his capital of Salisbury for a final decision on the declaration of independence. Observers believed he could not continue as prime minister if he does not make the declaration.

Wilson was reported to have made arrangements to call Parliament in emergency session if Smith declares his country's independence from Britain. Britain already has threatened economic sanctions which would cripple Rhodesia.

LIST PRINCIPLES

The British had told Smith Rhodesia must fulfill five principles before Britain could grant independence:

1. Progress toward black African majority must be guaranteed.
2. There would also have to be guarantees against amending the constitution in any way to harm the Africans.
3. The political status of the Africans would have to be upgraded immediately.
4. Progress must be made toward ending racial discrimination.
5. Independence must be acceptable to both Africans and whites in Rhodesia.

Primarily, the British object to the present constitution because they maintain it is being applied in such a way that African, cannot expect self-government for from 15 to 50 years.

UN SESSION FORECAST AS LONDON TALKS FAIL

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — United Nations Secretary-General U Thant said today the UN Security Council is likely to meet on the situation in Rhodesia now that the London talks have broken down.

"I think perhaps it's up to the U.K. to take the next move, perhaps even in the context of the United Nations," he told reporters who questioned him on the subject as he arrived for work.

Ontario Linked To B.C. Arson

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver newspaper says today three fires in Ontario have been linked with investigations of burn-for-profits rackets in British Columbia.

The Sun says it has also learned that number of "heavy-loss" blazes in the Prince George, B.C., area are being investigated.

Attorney-General Bonner said Friday police and fire officials are investigating 22 fires. One of the investigations was reported to involve $1,000,000 in fire losses.

Mr. Bonner said the investigations were being conducted in co-operation with officials of another province. He declined to name the province, except to say it was not Quebec.

The newspaper says it has learned the alleged rackets were discovered recently. They had been going on for four or five years.

Vancouver city police are involved in the investigation and police and fire officials were reported caught off base by Mr. Bonner's announcement halfway through their investigation.

STUDENTS FAST OVER HOLIDAY

OTTAWA (CP) — Gathered under a sheltered doorway entrance in overcast, drizzly weather, a group of students started a three-day fast today on Parliament Hill.

About 20 university and high school students started the fast through the Thanksgiving weekend to point up the need to fight hunger throughout the world.

The students, who had their last meal before 9 a.m. today, plan to limit themselves to a glass of orange juice and two cups of coffee a day throughout the fast.

"We're not trying to be martyrs," said Don Marcovitch, 18-year-old student at the Ontario Vocational College here and publicity director for the fast staged in connection with the Young World Mobilization Appeal and International Co-operation Year.

But the fast would help the students to realize the meaning of hunger and might help to dispel "the attitude of complacency that surrounds this soft country of ours."

NEXT PAPER ON TUESDAY

Members of the Times staff will observe the Thanksgiving holiday Monday and there will be no editions of the paper. Next regular editions of the Times will apear Tuesday.

PACKED and ready to head back to Alaska is Eskimo Bobby Pavela, 4½, who travelled to Denver, Colo., two years ago with serious illness—bronchiectasis. He gets goodby kiss from Denver friends. He won't return to his home where climate is too severe, but will live in a foster home at Anchorage, near medical attention.

WINDFALL SCANDAL

'It Can't Happen Here' Says Bonner

The royal commission report on the Windfall mines stock scandal will be studied here but Attorney-General Robert Bonner Friday expressed confidence it couldn't happen in B.C.

Mr. Bonner, who oversees the work of the provincial securities commission, said the government office was in almost daily contact with the Vancouver Stock Exchange.

He said this automatic system of co-operation enables the exchange to keep on top of any erratic movement of a particular stock so that it can be investigated early.

He said such watchfulness cannot prevent efforts at stock manipulation any more than crime can be prevented by legislation but it holds frauds to a "brief run."

WEEK ON MARKETS

Only Brief Flurries In Canadian Stocks

Canadian stock markets wandered through the week with investors unable to decide whether to be buyers or sellers.

As a result the market saw brief flurries in stocks affected by news in their particular field.

There was, however, a good deal of activity at the administrative level of the Toronto Stock Exchange. New rules were announced for some small mining companies and the royal commission report on Windfall Oils and Mines Lt. was made public.

Tuesday, the Exchange issued its new delisting policy under which shares of small, inactive mining companies will be suspended from trading for one year. If at the end of that time the companies remain without money the shares will be delisted.

WARN 10 FIRMS

Ten companies were told they will be suspended Oct. 20 unless they can satisfy the Exchange that they do not come within the policy.

Prices in all the issues were slashed at the opening Wednesday, with many cut by more than half.

Canadian Breweries fell ⅛ to 7⅞ and sold as low as 7¾, its lowest price since the stock was split in 1961. The company recently announced lower third-quarter earnings and said there is not much hope of any improvement in the near future.

Greater Winnipeg Gas dipped 1¾ to 22½, and Northern Ontario Natural Gas lost ¾ to 29¼.

Newsprint stocks moved lower after Abitibi announced it has cut its basic price for newsprint by $5 a ton.

Abitibi fell to a two-year low of 10¾ while losses were also taken by Consolidated Paper, B.C. Forest Products—a west coast producer which cut its price almost a year ago—Domtar and Bathurst.

Great Lakes took the heftiest setback, off 2⅝ at 21 3-8.

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1965—PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

To a preacher's kid in a little town (lost on the prairie, the tallest building the grain elevator down by the tracks) Thanksgiving meant more than just a hymn called 'Bringing in the Sheaves.'

Those Manitoba farmers didn't merely sing about the harvest. They brought the wheat sheaves, saved golden after the threshers, binders and separaters had done their work, to the church with its steeple and one precious stained glass window.

They came on the Friday night before Thanksgiving Sunday, by wagon, with their wives and pigtailed daughters and gopher-snaring sons. With them in the wagons were the sheaves, and pumpkins orange as a harvest moon, and corn in the withered husks, and apples with names like Northern Spy, and Russet and Snow.

With these, and with parsnips and Swede turnips, potatoes by the bushel and carrots in bunches tied with a twist of binder twine, they decorated the church.

In one of the wagons was a grain-fed turkey for the minister—who took half his salary in kind—and that noble bird was part of Thanksgiving, too.

★ ★ ★

It still is, at our place, although the turkeys we buy are smaller and pre-plucked, with two or three times the meat of those rangy prairie fowl.

We believe in keeping holidays as they should be kept; and of all such, Thanksgiving is the year's mellowest.

Christmas and New Year's are gayer, noisier and more exciting. Easter has its own quality and sense of earth in ressurrection. But Thanksgiving is a pleasant, calm sort of festival, the sort that rarely wearies the cook or, if shared with friends, demands of the host much more than an eye to the glasses and a well-sharpened carving knife.

When the first fireplace fire of the season is burning comfortably against the back-log, there is even time to give thanks, in one's own thoughts, for the good that has come our way, and the troubles that have been spared us.

Like most couples who try as best they can to make and keep a home, Win and I have had our share of both. But we have learned to distinguish authentic trouble from the synthetic sort; and we agree that any tallying-up of blessings would show us substantially in the black.

★ ★ ★

Not, of course, that we indulge in any such cool and detailed bookkeeping. I think to do so would be to cast a dare in fortune's teeth.

To be alive and together, to watch our son and daughter choosing their paths with intelligence and purpose, to be where we wish to be . . . those would be gifts enough, even if no others had been given us.

Enough? Those, by themselves, are so wonderful that even to mention them carries an inevitable suggestion of smugness.

As for security, an intangible that has no existence in fact, we tend to leave it out of our thinking. Our generation was born under a sword, and has learned to take matters as they come.

It is the young who have never seen the sword fall, and the professional worriers, who make security their prime goal.

However, no preachments. They don't belong to a holiday weekend, and to this one least of all, and I'd be better occupied in hunting a few armloads of fireplace wood.

We have a few sticks of Sooke alder left from last winter. If that's not enough, there are chunks in the woods, and fir bark on the beach, gifts of a land so good and so generous that we who live at peace in it are earth's luckiest.

And that too is a thought for Thanksgiving.

Guided tours along the park's trails to see fungi growth will be led by Victoria naturalist Freeman King.

Wound Up Or Plugged In?

Go-It-Alone Move Claimed Clouding View Royal Issue

By JACQUES ROUSSEAUX

An Esquimalt councillor today termed "futile" a late move by a group of View Royal residents to incorporate as a township rather than amalgamate with the municipality.

"It's a shame any disturbance should be created now just prior to the release of the amalgamation study."

Coun. Argyle said the group's move will only confuse the issue.

"Only the facts from the report will give a clear picture as to whether we should amalgamate or not," he said.

The amalgamation study was sponsored jointly by Esquimalt and View Royal. Retired deputy minister of municipal affairs B. C. Bracewell will release his report about the middle of next week.

A group of View Royal residents said earlier residents had not been fully informed of the advantages of incorporation.

Spokesman Dr. R. W. Morgan, 2946 Tillicum, said that although the group has no official status "it speaks for many people."

Dr. Morgan said the group "objects to amalgamation."

"There is an even larger group that wants to remain as presently organized, but of course that is not possible," he said. "We must organize ourselves and tell people the other side of the picture."

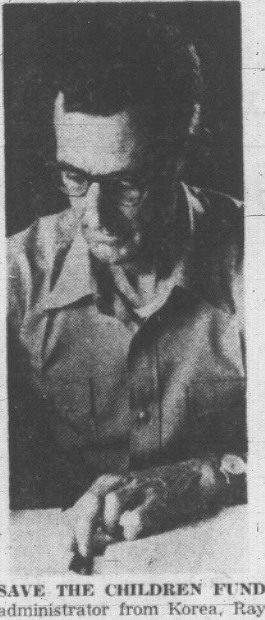
He said a pamphlet will be issued to show it would pay us not to amalgamate.

Dr. Morgan says the group has analyzed the area's budgets for the past 10 years and "we have projected the figures for the future and can prove we can support ourselves as a town."

"We like our residential setup. We don't want to become an industrial area and we don't need to," he said.

The group points out that North Saanich has incorporated on its own.

"So why shouldn't View Royal do it."



SAVE THE CHILDREN FUND administrator from Korea, Ray Dawson, will speak Wednesday at 2:30 p.m. at Centennial United Church Hall. Mr. Dawson's address will be titled "A Far Cry.

BRITAIN TOO, SAYS PAULING

'United States Pressuring Canada To Ensure Support of Viet War'

By BOB DONAHUE

Economic pressure from the United States is being brought to bear on Canada to ensure her support of the war in Viet Nam, Dr. Linus Pauling said here today.

Dr. Pauling, twice a Nobel Prize winner (peace and chemistry), said in an interview although he did not have details, the pressure would involve support of the Canadian dollar.

"It is most certainly coming from Washington," he said, "and the same thing is true of Britain in terms of support for the pound."

Dr. Pauling is a strong critic of United State's actions in Viet Nam.

"There are things going on in Viet Nam which make me deeply ashamed of the United States," he said.

★

He said one of these things is that the U.S. government has refused to negotiate a settlement with the National Liberation Front, the political arm of the Communist Viet Cong in South Viet Nam.

"On the other hand the NLF's refusal to negotiate unless American troops are withdrawn is equally unrealistic.

"The first step toward effecting at least a cease-fire would be for all the governments and interested parties to begin a negotiated settlement."

Dr. Pauling said a world without war is a certainty in the future but first all nations must relaize disputes must be settled by negotiation and political settlement rather than military might.

"We are suffering a set-back this year with the war in Viet Nam and the dispute between India and Pakistan," he said, "but there has been over the years a steady move toward abolition of war and development of world law to settle disputes.

★

"One recent favorable development was Pope Paul's speech to the United Nations which supported the abolition of war.

"We are making slow progress year after year in the direction of world peace."

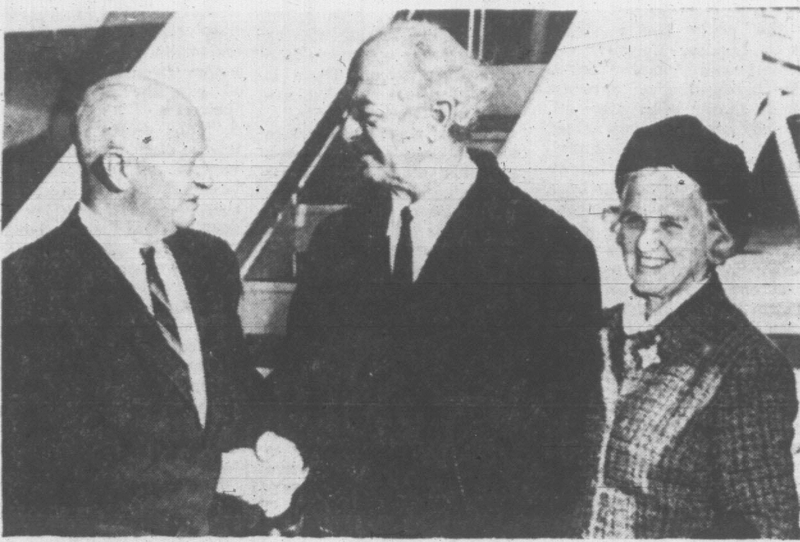
He said he believed the United States had reached a peak in its trend toward a militaristic attitude throughout the world.

"I wouldn't be so much of a pessimist to say it will get worse before it gets better. Perhaps President Johnson will change and the situation will be different tomorrow."

Dr. Pauling supported the idea of demonstrations and civil disobedience by peace groups and ban the bombers.

"This is an effective and desirable way for the public to express an opinion," he said.

Dr. Pauling will speak on the world quest for peace at 8 tonight in the Gordon Head gymnasium of the University of Victoria.



NOBEL PRIZE WINNER Dr. Linus Pauling and his wife were greeted on their arrival at Victoria International Airport this morning by Brock Chisholm, former director of the World Health Organization, and a delegation of University of Victoria students. Five Drivers Pay $1,500 For Drinking

Each was fined $300 or a total of $1,500 and prohibited from driving anywhere in Canada for four months by Magistrate J. A. Byers.

HIT CURB

He admitted to police he hit a curb on the Four-Mile Hill on the Old Island Highway.

Ernie Norris, 1375 Craigflower, was also nabbed by Esquimalt police. He was chased a mile and a half at speeds up to 65 m.p.h.

Police said he was driving on the wrong side of the road as he crossed Point Ellice Bridge.

.23 READING

When stopped he told police he hadn't had anything to drink, but a breath test produced a .23 reading.

Edward Brown, 1229 Oscar, hit the rear of a car stopped for a light at Shelbourne and Bay Streets, causing $75 damage and sending Gale Wilkin, 19, of 1560 Trans-Canada Highway, to hospital with back injuries.

Jack King, 3885 Cedar Hill Cross Road, was also involved in a rear-end collision.

Court was told he clipped the rear of a car at Government and Yates, and continued into the intersection narrowly missing another auto southbound on Government.

Cornelius S. Dyck, HMCS Jonquiere, was seen by police weaving as he drove on Blanshard, Yates and Douglas Streets Friday evening.

Ask The Times

Q. What amount is one allowed to have untaxable in a savings account?—A. G. B.

A. You aren't taxed on your total savings—just the interest, says a local bank. And any interest accumulated is taxable.

If a person earns more than $100 in interest, the bank is compelled by law to advise the federal government and the depositor.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

Probe Figure Charged

He was remanded without plea to Tuesday by Magistrate J. A. Byers.

The charge alleges Billett early today did "unlawfully and wilfully obstruct Douglas Wilson, a peace officer, while he was in the lawful execution of his duty."

Bail was set at $250.

Speaking to bail, Prosecutor Peter Birkett said the Crown does not allege any physical harm caused by the accused.

No details were given.

• • •

Billett this month initiated an investigation into alleged corruption at HMC Dockyard through a series of letters to associate defence minister Leo Cadieux.

He also charged inefficiency, attempted bribery and hinted at theft of materials.

Thursday he reported to city police his home at 404 Sherk Street had been broken into, ransacked and documents and a camera containing exposed film stolen.

The items, he said, were "concrete evidence" of his allegations of corruption at the naval base.

Trigger-Happy Person Sought by Police

Constable Ralph Warren said he believed the shot may have been fired from as much as a mile away.

No one realized the building had been fired on until the bullet was found by school teacher John Boel, 37, this morning.

Son-in-law of apartment block owner Mrs. Freda Lyal, who lives on the premises, said he had gone over from his home at 1280 Queensbury to clean up the shattered glass.

SALUTE to International Co-operation Year will be presented in McPherson Playhouse Thursday at 8:15 p.m. Four of the 100 costumed performers are introduced here by Prof. Harry Hill of the University of Victoria who will MC the production. From left, they are Mrs. Lee Forbes, representing Mexico; Rolf Gilstein (Norway), Kathryn Rhodes (Scotland), and Mrs. A. Gilstein (Norway). (Jim Ryan Photo.)

By HAL MALONE

FIRST RACE: They tried to rate Dark Interview last time and it didn't work. Anytime they go to the front under a pull we're impressed and they're switching riders here. Mac Man showed speed Friday but the fractions weren't too impressive. Morro Velko appreciated the slop but a pace duel set it up for him. Magic Eve belongs with these and Loncue, coming back after a layoff, should go better with a race over the track. If Mr. Spree draws in he could be difficult to handle . . . DARK INTERVIEW (Loncue).

SECOND RACE: Six and one half furlongs seems to be just a few steps farther than Kelly Joy likes to go . . . under pressure. But there's no apparent speed to go with her today and if she breaks promptly she could be long gone. Miss Simon is usually around the money and won't find an easier spot. Mantina travelled with slightly better and Axidental Affair is overdue. If Lees Time draws in, Kelly Joy's chances diminish. My Imagination lack early zing but gets Broomfield today and could run a big one . . . MY IMAGINATION (Kelly Joy)).

THIRD RACE: There's a lot of early speed in here but none of it is guaranteed to be sustained. No Soap and Champagne Waltz should bubble along in front for a ways with Totem Miss and Forall Speed in the second flight. Old Boag once would have scuttled these but his spark plugs have been rusty lately. Loodani could wear them down if he draws in and Baby Joe could wake up under the rider change. In a grab-bag . . . FORALL SPEED (Baby Joe).

FOURTH RACE: If he runs back to his last race Guessin' Boy shouldn't leave anybody guessin' where he'll finish. They took him off the pace and it worked like a charm. The conditions are identical here; Mil Easy, Power Tip, Green Again and Alice Kaput are the go-go kids. Rondocal and Big Clint came up with smashers but they need perfectly-timed moves here . . . GUESSIN' BOY (Rondocal).

FIFTH RACE: Even burdened with everything but the kitchen sink Orista could seize the lead here and be obstinate for a long way. Except for Wee Jock who didn't like the mud and has some lick, the contenders take a while to settle before making their move. Irish Jubilee will likely be the chalk; he doesn't get too far back and Shields fits him like a glove. Dark Doll was thwarted last time waiting for a hole that never came. Rough Road and Chow Jung could get on the board. It's interesting to note that Combs who won on both Eltadrive and Chow Jung is staying with the former. She was practically left at the gate, fanned out on the turn, came on the extreme outside and won going away. In a close one . . . ELTADRIVE (Irish Jubilee).

SIXTH RACE: He's running for a new owner and gets a different boy here but Little Boy Fly has been running like Big Boy Roar. At the distance, though, strange things can happen. Candy Capital closed resolutely at shorter and Broomfield might wake him up. Red Nictrum, Fighting Hawk and Chekaj Chekaj all have a good look and if Hamish gets in he could be trouble . . . LITTLE BOY FLY (Candy Capital).

SEVENTH RACE: Zounds! With weight shifts and rider changes, a handicapper's best friend here could be his crystal ball. Indian Spirit, Sefton Park and Crazy Arms should lead them away but we suspect the winner will come from out of the pack. Prince Scorpion and Lord Renraw might be in the second echelon and when it comes to heart they pay off 100 per cent. McGregor Glen has a fair charge. Our serious thinking, however, is between Devonshire Cream and Wild Deuces. The latter adds two pounds and gets a different boy but in the lane he frightens people . . . and horses. Devonshire Cream drops five pounds and is at her peak. If Combs finds room that might be it. In a close shave . . . DEVONSHIRE CREAM (Wild Deuces).

EIGHTH RACE: With all the early (but fainthearted) lick here, the race seems made to order for the chargers, Bay Toe and Tzatzkalla. Lady Flag won handily but the time was nothing to write home about. Bull Strength might hold on better but we'd like him more if there was less contention early . . . BAY TOE (Tzatzkalla).

Ontario Links With B.C. Arson Probe

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver newspaper says today three fires in Ontario have been linked with investigations of burn-for-profits rackets in British Columbia.

The Sun says it has also learned that number of "heavy-loss" blazes in the Prince George, B.C., area are being investigated.

Attorney-General Bonner said Friday police and fire officials are investigating 22 fires. One of the investigations was reported to involve $1,000,000 in fire losses.

Mr. Bonner said the investigations were being conducted in co-operation with officials of another province. He declined to name the province, except to say it was not Quebec.

The newspaper says it has learned the alleged rackets were discovered recently. They had been going on for four or five years.

Vancouver city police are involved in the investigation and police and fire officials were reported caught off base by Mr. Bonner's announcement halfway through their investigation.

Elderly Couple Stung to Death By African Bees

SAO JOSE DOS CAMPOS, Brazil (UPI)—African bees killed an elderly couple this week on the outskirts of this town, about 60 miles from the industrial metropolis of Sao Paulo, it was reported today.

Dr. Nelson Marelli certified after a post mortem examination that 78-year-old Antonia Alexxandre and his 80-year-old wife Benedita died of "poisoning caused by bee stings."

The Alexandres were attacked and stung repeatedly by a swarm of the bees, which have become a national problem since they were introduced to Brazil 10 years ago to increase the nation's honey production.

BULLETS FAIL TO HALT BUS

BRUNSWICK, West Germany (Reuters)—An East German refugee crashed across the West German border at the wheel of a bus today while Communist guards blazed away with sub-machine-guns. The bus crossed to West Germany where the refugee was taken to hospital with leg injuries, police said.

THERE ISN'T MUSH-ROOM for any more, thinks Jimmy Bailey, 10707 Bayfield. And there isn't mush-room for doubting that the little clump growing through the three-inch deep blacktop at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Norrington, 738 Selkirk, Victoria, is unusual. Provincial botanist Adam Szczawinski said the mushrooms, of the Shaggy Main species, are known to perform weight-lifting feats. (Halkett Photo.)

Police 'Hot on Trail' Of Fraud Ringleaders

QUEBEC (CP)—Justice Minister Claude Wagner says authorities are hot on the trail of ringleaders of a fraudulent bankruptcy and arson operation that has cost the province $1,500,000 a year in lost taxes since 1959 and is blamed for the violent deaths of at least seven persons.

At a press conference Friday, the justice minister said steps have been taken to prevent several panicky leaders of the Montreal underworld from skipping the country.

Police were on their trail and "it is only a question of time before we reach the leaders."

Mr. Wagner said more than four persons — he declined to give an exact number—are being held as important witnesses, and a number of persons have asked for and received police protection in connection with the investigation.

Of the seven persons known to have been murdered to prevent them from testifying about the operations of the ring, four bodies had been recovered and three were being sought. The bodies of the victims had been covered in quicklime, in an apparent attempt to make identification more difficult.

Just how much the hundreds of fraudulent bankruptcies in Quebec have cost investors over the last five years has not been estimated officially.

The most recent indication was a report released by Revenue Minister Eric Kierans in August which said the province was losing as much as $1,500,000 a year in tax revenue through phoney bankruptcies.

The shady operators often increased their rake-off through arson—paying small (from $20 to $500)—for setting fires that netted thousands in insurance and possibly helped to cover discrepancies in inventories — but precise figures for fire losses were similarly lacking.

Investigators say the racket-

QUEBEC CRIME JUNGLE STUDIED

Woman's Suspicion Sparks Probes

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Pandora who lifted that lid on the latest sensational fraud and arson cases in Quebec is a 62-year-old business woman, Miss Rachael Smiley.

Miss Smiley had the suspicion she was being defrauded to the tune of $115,000.

Rather than work it out among friends she laid the charge which has placed top-level suspect Moise Darabaner before the courts.

For a year the Quebec government was delving into an investigation of fraudulent bankruptcy which Revenue Minister Eric Kierans estimates cost the provincial government $1.5 million annually over the past six years. The cost to the public was a minimum $50 million which Kierans has said is a conservative figure.

Some place it is as high as $100 million.

At any rate, the report of the investigation, drafted by a revenue chartered accountant, Lucien Mercier, came out last August and the government has been busily trying to get the whole thing rolling before the courts with not unlimited success.

Then along came Miss Smiley.

She wanted provincial approval for a building contract and a chap named Gaston Constantin said he could assist her if she put up $95,000 in cash. With one thing and another the total mounted to $115,000.

Constantin, who has travelled extensively in Canada, was then working for Darabaner, who is a money lender and Quebec city businessman. He was a director of one of Darabaner's companies.

Miss Smiley took the two of them to court on a charge of fraud. The preliminary hearing of that case will continue Oct. 12.

He said he had heard Darabaner and a Mr. Ray Daoust of Montreal discussing a plan to do away with Miss Smiley, an idea in which he did not concur.

At that point all Dara-

'Rather Fight Than Crawl'

LONDON—Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith said today his white-ruled African colony "would rather go out fighting than go out crawling on our hands and knees" in the clash with Britain over independence.

Smith has threatened to declare independence unilaterally—the first colony to do so since 1776. Such a move would face the Commonwealth with a grave crisis and in the words of Prime Minister Harold Wilson "set Africa ablaze."

Talks between Wilson and Smith broke down Friday night after an American warning to Smith the United States would not recognize his all-White government since there are only 220,000 whites in Rhodesia and 3.6 million Negroes.

Smith told a news conference he would return to his capital of Salisbury for a final decision on the declaration of independence. Observers believed he could not continue as prime minister if he does not make the declaration.

Wilson was reported to have made arrangements to call Parliament in emergency session if Smith declares his country's independence from Britain. Britain already has threatened economic sanctions which would cripple Rhodesia.

LIST PRINCIPLES

The British had told Smith Rhodesia must fulfill five principles before Britain could grant independence:

1. Progress toward black African majority must be guaranteed.
2. There would also have to be guarantees against amending the constitution in any way to harm the Africans.
3. The political status of the Africans would have to be upgraded immediately.
4. Progress must be made toward ending racial discrimination.
5. Independence must be acceptable to both Africans and whites in Rhodesia.

Primarily, the British object to the present constitution because they maintain it is being applied in such a way that Africans cannot expect self-government for from 15 to 50 years.

Pope Under Fire

"He set back the hopes of millions that henceforth his church would support or at least not oppose a world-wide policy of responsible parenthood," said Dr. Harold E. Fey of Indianapolis.

Liquor Stolen

LIVERPOOL (UPI) — Thieves escaped today with a truck loaded with 5,000 cartons of export whisky worth 15,000 pounds ($42,000), more than a ton of almonds and 80 25-pound cans of cream. The missing truck had been parked to await loading aboard an outbound ship.

VOTE FORECAST

Maritimes Sweep Out

Canadian political scientist Peter Regenstreif is on a 10,000-mile coast-to-coast tour aimed at predicting what the Canadian voter is going to do on Nov. 8. Here is his first report.

By PETER REGENSTREIF

HALIFAX—Nova Scotia is running true to form in 1965.

Political affiliations remain relatively stable here with changes in partisan commitment few and far between. The basic party orientation and family tradition of not only this province but of the entire Atlantic region continue to stand in sharp contrast to the wild instability of the rest of the country.

The breakaway from Conservatism in federal politics so evident in 1962 and 1963 is no longer apparent. While there is no question that Diefenbaker's position is lower here than it ever was, there is little inducement for potential defectors to vote for any of the alternatives, either on grounds of leadership or issues. Certainly Pearson's standing with the electorate has not noticeably improved since last election.

There seems to be but one issue now: majority government. It is especially important here because Nova Scotia, to say nothing of the entire region, is a have-not area and, as such, depends heavily on federal largesse. But the dominant consensus is that no one will have a majority after Nov. 8. There is even some doubt as to the eventual winner.

UN SESSION FORECAST

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — United Nations Secretary-General U Thant said today the UN Security Council is likely to meet on the situation in Rhodesia now that the London talks have broken down.

"I think perhaps it's up to the U.K. to take the next move, perhaps even in the context of the United Nations," he told reporters who questioned him on the subject as he arrived for work.

. . . MARITIMES

last time. It could go one way or the other." This is how a bank clerk's wife saw it.

And the prime minister's decision not to campaign strenuously during the early weeks has only contributed to the uncertainty. As a Halifax photo-engraver who is voting Liberal again pointed out: "Reading the papers, you'd think Diefenbaker was more popular this year than last time."

A traditional Liberal supporter in Halifax readily admitted bolting party ranks in the last provincial election: "In Nova Scotia, Stanfield is going to get in for as long as he wants. He's another Angus L. Macdonald. People vote for him—not for his party. No one cares about his party. It's him."

It is understandable, then, why the Liberals in Ottawa get virtually no marks for the improved economic climate here which everyone recognizes. The wife of a fire inspector summed up the situation this way: "I don't know how to vote. No matter who is in, we're all doing better than we ever did. You know. We've had Conservatives here and Liberals in Ottawa and nothing's changed. We're all doing well and I can't see them having any effect."

●

In most other regions, the political coloration of a provincial government would count for little. But here, the evidence is very strong that voters maintain identical partisan commitments in both federal and provincial fields to a markedly greater extent than elsewhere.

The pattern for the province is essentially this: far more 1963 Conservatives claim they are "undecided" this time than any of the 1963 supporters of the other parties. But when they are probed fully as to their probable behavior on Nov. 8, they almost invariably come down to remaining Tory, often using their local candidate as an excuse.

The following exchange with a foreman who works in a Windsor textile plant is indicative of the difficulties confronting the Liberals in their quest for increased representation. He voted Conservative in 1963 and now doesn't know what to do. Why?

He replied: "Because you've got so mixed up you don't know who to vote for. I've always leaned Conservative. There is no question about that, but . . . ."

I asked: "Well, what's stopping you this time?"

He answered: "Diefenbaker. We gave him a good majority and he blew it. He wouldn't let his men tell him anything—the great I Am."

●

I probed further: "Any chance of you voting Liberal?"

He blurted: "Not with all this mess Pearson's got into. Only if he cleans it up. He's a good man himself but not some of the people he's got with him . . . . I guess I'll vote for Kennedy (the Tory MP for Colchester-Hants) again. Not for Diefenbaker. Kennedy. I guess we need the American system."

If anything, the electorate seems to be looking for an excuse for voting Conservative because of the absence of a Pearson appeal. As a car dealer who is voting Liberal in spite of his expectation of another minority government put it: "If the Conservatives would change their leader, so many people would switch Conservative that you'd think they were always Conservative."

This does not mean that changes in seats are not in the offing. But these changes are more the result of local situations than of regional or province-wide trends. All are potential Conservative losses.

The likeliest Liberal gain is the late George Nowlan's bailiwick of Digby-Annapolis-Kings. Nowlan's son, Patrick, came all the way from Vancouver to claim the Conservative nomination over local David Waterbury after Waterbury had been campaigning since the beginning of the year on this party's behalf. John Shaffner is once again the Liberal candidate and he came within 416 votes of the winner in 1963.

Purely on grounds that he is a local and young Nowlan is an outsider, Shaffner will probably have a margin more than twice that by which he was defeated last time.

A Kentville furniture store salesman who is switching to Shaffner this time expressed the prevailing mood: "A lot of people don't like the idea of this young Nowlan coming in here after being away so long. What does he know about conditions here?"

The other possible Liberal gain from the Conservatives is Colchester-Hants. However, this is a much tougher seat to take than Digby-Annapolis-Kings in spite of the mere 292 votes separating 1963 winner Cyril Kennedy and Liberal Hector Hill.

Kennedy may fail to keep it Tory because the locals feel neglected by his provincial government's policies.

As a Windsor taxi-driver complained: "Stanfield does too much for Halifax and Cape Breton and not enough for the Valley. People around here don't like that."

Finally, its new candidate, Ed Johnston, will probably make the difference for the NDP in Cape Breton South which was a CCF stronghold for 1940 until 1957 when Conservative Donald MacInnis captured it. The New Democrats won in 1962 but lost again to MacInnis by 980 votes the following spring.

The remainder of the ridings are more or less firmly in the camp of their present holders.

As for the rest of the Atlantic region, it is clear that there is no sweep under way. The Tories stand to lose only one more of the four they now hold in New Brunswick, the riding of York-Sunbury.

Newfoundland is still Liberal territory with Premier Joseph Smallwood in command. There is every indication there that all seven of the province's seats will remain with the government.

Sprinkling of Love Washes Bylaw Away

LADYSMITH—Romance isn't dead in city council—probably because the mayor's a woman.

Previously reluctant to lift the sprinkling regulations, council finally relented Friday.

And only because Mayor Kathleen Grouhel told them of a phone call she received.

A male resident called to say his wedding anniversary was coming up soon.

Memorial Service Held for Surveyor

A memorial service was held in Oak Bay United Church Friday evening for land surveyor Philip M. Monckton, a resident of Victoria for 50 years.

Mr. Monckton died in Vancouver Monday, after a brief illness, at the age of 73.

Born at Wynberg, Cape Colony, South Africa, he came to British Columbia with his parents in 1908. His father, a civil engineer, was associated with design and construction of the early irrigation system at Kelowna.

Mr. Monckton was commissioned as a B.C. land surveyor in 1913 and served in the First World War with the Royal Welsh Fusiliers.

Afterwards, he was engaged on a number of exploratory surveys in northwestern British Columbia.

In the Second World War, he was commissioned by the RCAF and performed engineering and survey work on the west coast and later in Quebec province.

From 1944 until his retirement in 1957, he carried out extensive surveys in B.C. under the Land Act. One of these was a reconnaissance survey of possible routes for a highway from Hazelton northwest to the Yukon.

Mr. Monckton is survived by the widow, Lavender, at 2199 Lafayette Avenue, Victoria; a son, Cmdr. George R. Monckton, RCN, in Hamilton, Ont.; a daughter, Mrs. Thomas B. Wilson, in Vancouver, and seven grandchildren.

An elder son, John Philip, was killed in action with the RCAF Bomber Command in 1943.

N.Y. Papers To Return

NEW YORK (AP)—Newsrooms stirred with activity today as New York Sunday newspapers—except for The Times—prepared to resume publication after a 24-day strike-shutdown.

The Times awaits AFL-CIO New York Newspaper Guild ratification of a tentative contract agreement before returning and the Guild's membership meeting is not until Sunday.

Nevertheless, The Times urged newspapers which had suspended publication because of its Guild strike to go back into print, without awaiting the ratification meeting.

baner was charged with was fraud, but as testimony rolled on a new charge was added — conspiring along with Gaston Cadrin to set fire to La Tour, a Quebec City sports centre. He has further been charged with conspiracy to commit arson in a house fire.

One of the alleged conspirators, as revealed in testimony in the preliminary hearing of the house fire charge last Wednesday, was Redempteur Faucher.

But Faucher was gunned down in the lonely woods near St. Gilles, Que., south of Quebec City last May. His body, decomposed by caustic lime poisoning, was found and identified several days ago.

Three other bodies have now been found in a similar state and the search continues for yet another three.

Justice officials say there were potential valuable Crown witnesses, other than Faucher, among the murdered.

Darabaner, who was taken into court in handcuffs, will stand trial along with another man for the house fire at the Quebec Assizes next month.

Carthorse Honored

CHATHAM, England (AP) — The British navy today provided a full-dress parade and an admiral's salute to honor Mary, a 20-year-old carthorse. The 400 officers and men of the naval barracks were saying farewell to Mary, who has pulled a water-cart around the establishment for the last 12 years. She will go to a home for old animals.

STUDENTS FAST OVER HOLIDAY

OTTAWA (CP) — Gathered under a sheltered doorway entrance in overcast, drizzly weather, a group of students started a three-day fast today on Parliament Hill.

About 20 university and high school students started the fast through the Thanksgiving weekend to point up the need to fight hunger throughout the world.

The students, who had their last meal before 9 a.m. today, plan to limit themselves to a glass of orange juice and two cups of coffee a day throughout the fast.

"We're not trying to be martyrs," said Don Marcovitch, 18-year-old student at the Ontario Vocational College here and publicity director for the fast staged in connection with the Young World Mobilization Appeal and International Co-operation Year.

But the fast would help the students to realize the meaning of hunger and might help to dispel "the attitude of complacency that surrounds this soft country of ours."

Using false bank statements or doctored credit ratings, they buy merchandise on credit which they quickly resell to other racketeers, making the goods difficult to trace. Then bankruptcy is declared. Sometimes company buildings are insured. After the goods are secretely removed, the buildings are set afire to increase the harvest.

Mr. Kierans' report said one such group of racketeers had a string of 60 companies in its operation.

Mr. Wagner said Friday that authorities are not surprised at the "violent reaction" of the underworld as the law draws closer to the ringleaders.

"I hope there will be as few deaths as possible," he said. "But on the other hand we must not forget that these people are playing for big stakes. It is them or us."

The justice minister also disclosed in an interview that there have been threats on the lives of two Crown prosecutors involved in the investigation—Anatole Corriveau, chief Crown prosecutor, and Roch Lefrancois, deputy Crown prosecutor.

Both men and their families were "well protected" under heavy police guard.

WAS THE LATEST

Meanwhile, a justice department spokesman said there are indications that Paul Chandonnet, a Sherbrooke businessman whose body was found in the Sherbrooke area Thursday, was the most recent victim in the underworld purge of potential witnesses.

Chandonnet, 38, who owned a Sherbrooke snack bar, was reported missing Sept. 25 and was believed killed two days later. His quicklime-covered body was found in a wooded area near the village of Ham-Sud, 30 miles northeast of Sherbrooke, and a revolver was found buried under a few inches of soil nearby.

The justice department spokesman said Chandonnet played an active role in the arson-bankruptcy ring and was to have been a witness in cases currently before the courts.

Mr. Wagner has said the number of potential witnesses killed by the underworld could be 12 or more.

DIEFENBAKER

'My Lips Would Be Sealed'

SELKIRK, Man. (CP) — Conservative Leader Diefenbaker said today if he accepted Justice Minister Cardin's invitation to examine department files concerning bankruptcy cases "my lips would be sealed."

Mr. Diefenbaker told reporters that as a member of the Privy Council he would be bound by secrecy.

He said if all the files were made available to him and he would be free to discuss them he would be glad to examine them when he returns to Ottawa. But he said he would be shown only the files which the government wanted to show.

"Mr. Pearson insists there is no such report and now Mr. Cardin is offering to show it to me — the report that doesn't exist."

Mr. Cardin said Thursday night in Ottawa there's nothing in the bankruptcy documents in his files to indicate any offences were committed by members of Parliament or other public servants. He said three particular files mentioned by Erik Nielsen, Conservative member for Yukon in the last Parliament, are "routine financial reports."

Mr. Diefenbaker commented on the bankruptcy cases as he spent the morning visiting Selkirk and Beausejour, where he walked the main streets shaking hands and talking to passersby.

Don't Steal From Lawyers!

Kenneth Harold Keith, 21, of HMCS Naden, received some sound advice after he pleaded guilty today in city court to theft of a garden hose.

"I don't do this all the time," he told Magistrate J. A. Byers.

"If you do go in for this again," the magistrate replied, "take my advice. Don't steal from lawyers . . . or policemen."

Keith was fined $25 and ordered to pay damages of $6.95, value of the hose.
